

JAWAHIR

PRECIOUS STONES

Part 1-2

A Collection of Proverbs

1. This is a Scripture of comfort sent to distant peoples, that they may gather together – for the lost 10 tribes of Israel, and also for those who belong to many nations but are bound to keep the Word of God

2. This is a Scripture of renewal for all people, throughout the whole expanse of heaven, that they may come to know Elah, the King of all the earth, and unanimously call upon His Holy Name.

3 They are beloved and joyfully welcomed by Elah of All Worlds in these Last Days.

4. O, listen, nations, your Elah is One, One, Indivisible, who is neither born nor dies,

He who has taken neither man nor woman for Himself

He who is the Great King

May His Name be exalted for ever and ever

The Day of Judgement has come

5. Whoever turns away from the words of this Book, sent down by the Spirit, in the coming days of judgement, shall lose his soul and remain in darkness.

6. But those who turn their faces towards the radiant Book, the Book of deliverance and joy, shall surely not be among those who are lonely or forgotten by the Most High.

7. My pen bears witness to my revelation, that it is in accordance with the words of Moses.

8. Nothing that the Holy Spirit has revealed is at odds with this.

9. May the name of the Most High be sanctified above all human names and pride.

10. Glory be to God, the One, the Undivided, who was never begotten nor created.

11. A wife must not be dependent on her husband, nor a husband on his wife.

12. We are to treat women with respect, as a gift from God and as holy beings.

13. Whoever turns away from the words of this book, sent down by the Spirit, in the coming days of judgement, shall lose his soul and remain in darkness.

14. But those who turn their faces towards the radiant Book, the Book of deliverance and joy, shall surely not be among those who are lonely or forgotten by the Most High.

15. My pen bears witness to my revelation, that it is equal to the words of the previous books.

16. Nothing that the Holy Spirit has revealed is at odds with this.

17. May the name of the Most High be hallowed above all human names and pride.

19. Glory be to God, the One, the Undivided, who was never begotten nor created.

20. A wife must not be dependent on her husband, nor a husband on his wife.

21. We should treat women with respect.

22. Mercy flows from God; His love, like an ocean, spreads to all beings; do not forsake His love, hope and mercy.

23. Share His love with all beings on earth, whether animals or humans; remember that all people are precious treasures, and every delicate, living animal, every sentient being that breathes, is of great worth in the eyes of God!

24. This admonition not to harm your wives, not to waste your children's childhood, and not to neglect them, comes from the Throne of God and has been revealed in these writings through the Holy Spirit!

25. God's Throne is grave and full of wrath when wives are left to fend for themselves and children weep and are neglected by their parents.

26. May God punish every parent who rejects, neglects and abuses their children, and may he be cursed who abuses his wife, disregards the Elah of the world and raises his hand against them!

27. Be perfect, then, and cast out all anger and hatred that lurk within your families!

28. Upon anyone who harms their neighbour, be it a brother, father, son, wife or daughter, harm and suffering shall surely befall them!

29. The soul cannot progress in earthly life, nor can the spirit progress after death, if people reject love for their neighbour and cling to their selfish habits!

30. Truly, all our behaviour and deeds influence how we shape our present world.

31. We cannot judge good deeds, but we should punish and judge evil deeds and not allow them to go out into the world and continue to consume it with their destructive fire of wickedness!

32. The destiny of every human being is to make another human being their companion; the highest task of every soul is unconditional service and the attainment of the highest goal – to love one's neighbour in such a way as not to harm them, inflicting no wounds upon soul or body.

33. True spiritual progress consists in loving Elah, professing that He is one and indivisible, and in unconditional love for others.

34. By applying God's laws so as not to harm people, we become part of God's army.

35. O Infinite One, we ask You today to bestow upon us every good, to help bring peace to the world, so that people may not harm one another, that all may love one another and not despise one another.

36. Grant, O Spirit of Elah, that joy may overshadow sorrow, and happiness may overshadow misfortune, when all people abandon quarrels and hatred towards one another!

37. Soar like birds and fly towards the perfection of knowing God, inhabitants of this world – I call upon you to establish the House of Peace, the House of Light and the House of Joy for all nations!

38. We can be children of the promise not merely in name, as the Jews are, but we can be children with circumcised hearts, and anyone whose heart is softened may enter into a covenant with Abraham.

39. Improving the world, observing the Ten Commandments and obeying God the Father is the best example of the covenant that Abraham could have made with God.

40. It is worth treating every person with love and not putting oneself above others.

41. We should not repeat the bad behaviour of the biblical characters, but learn from them how to avoid the mistakes and sinful paths they followed.

42. It is also possible that, whilst failing to set an example to one's neighbour, one still reads the Bible as a book; in which case, the efforts of such a sinner will bring him neither salvation nor respite.

43. Enoch, in all his greatness, was righteous; that is to say, he unconditionally observed moral laws and never doubted the righteousness of God's work in transforming people's evil intentions.

44. There is no other way but to renounce sin; repentance consists in changing one's way of thinking and confessing one's sins before the One God, regardless of what the nations call Him!

45. He is indeed the Forgiver, the One who has no intermediaries!

46. Salvation comes through steps such as changing one's attitude towards sin and hating it, and persevering in righteousness until the end.

47. All these steps lead to eternal life, and without them, and without faith in Elah Yahweh as the One God, it cannot be attained.

48. Our old life can be transformed and purified through the power of Elah, His gifts, and repentance – turning away from sin, changing our thinking, and ceasing to do evil.

49. To persevere here means to persevere in good deeds and in faith in the One God, in a manner pleasing to God.

50. Become, then, disciples of Elah, become my disciples, apostles of God Himself!

51. To have eternal life and be certain of it, do not hesitate to persevere in righteousness – keeping all the commandments.

52. It is a difficult path, full of many hardships, trials and adversities, but it is worth the effort.

53. The call to serve others – wives, husbands and children – and to do good deeds is a form of work for God.
54. It is also worth observing whether people in the world share a common goal and how they are developing, and we should be grateful to God that there are no unnecessary quarrels or hatred arising amongst us.
55. Let us also give people the freedom to express themselves; let us give them the freedom to speak on spiritual matters; then there will certainly be no disputes or quarrels, which form the basis for unnecessary wars. Let us therefore be grateful to God the Father that He cares for us, that He gives us life-giving rain, and that He does not allow people to hate us.
56. It is also important that we free ourselves from the influence of sin, which can be like a millstone that we have been dragging spiritually throughout our lives.
57. We must face this burden and cast it aside, throwing it into the depths of the ocean.
58. Elah has enabled me to overcome my weaknesses, and as I change my way of thinking and strive to do what is right, I also do everything in my power to persevere in this attitude, to persevere to the end in love, in Elah's loving home.
59. Desiring and doing good is a continuous process, and salvation depends on our faith and good deeds.
60. We must be circumcised in our hearts to be saved, freed from the influence of sin.
61. We, as human beings, are responsible for our existence here on earth; our actions affect the social and spiritual environment in which we live, so let us observe the laws of the land, the laws of God, and the law for all people – 'love God and your neighbour as yourself'. 7 The aim of every person is to direct their thoughts and actions wisely, in order to build a better future and civilisation.
62. The Kingdom of God begins in our hearts, and through excellence in good deeds we bear witness that we are children of God.
63. The words of Holy Scripture have never been abolished or replaced by other writings; they remain holy and unchanging.
64. Christianity is a kind of stage of growing up, to come to know the fullness of God.
65. Christians are children who do not know the Holy Scriptures, whilst believers in the One God are adults who understand what is good and what is evil, what must be rejected as falsehood, and what is truth and wisdom coming from Elah.
66. This holy faith is neither Jewish, nor Christian, nor Muslim.
67. It is the path to knowing Elah through all the faiths of the world, through all the prophets of God – from Adam to the present day.
70. Moses' father was not characterised by cruelty or bestial behaviour. A father's love may 'never cease'. Moses, too, was righteous among the righteous; the children loved him not out of pain and fear, but because he was an exemplary father and husband to his people.
71. Moses was gentle towards children and just towards the people.
72. We too should 'embrace one another with tenderness'.
73. Just as Moses did towards his own children.
74. Moses, in his unparalleled wisdom, forbade the killing of children, the rape of women, and even cruelty towards animals not yet born.
75. There is therefore no need to demand the blood of sinners or to punish them. In those days, in ancient times, Moses' killing of sinners stemmed from the necessity of maintaining independence, unity and justice, as far as was possible at the time.
76. Despite Moses' seemingly cruel commands to kill a disobedient son, etc., these commands have been abolished
- The Words which he now writes down are the same as the Words spoken by God on Mount Horeb to Moses; they are the same Words of Truth sent to the prophets of the Torah.
77. This matter is the same as in the case of Moses.

78. 'Truly, let all hatred cease, let love never pass away!' This principle for our times is one of God's most important matters; the eradication of all manifestations of war and hatred, and the instilling of mutual respect and love into people's hearts, is the greatest safeguard against unnecessary wars and bloodshed.

79. In this Book I declare that God is far removed from bloodshed, hatred and the instigation of wars; it is the fanatics who, in their egocentricity and by desecrating the holy scriptures of the Bible, invoke God as the source of truth, yet portray Him as a bloodthirsty tyrant; but Elah is far from war; He is the One who unites nations and spreads peace amongst many.

80. Is our God not the One who does not practise tyranny?

81. He spreads the heavens over us; all deeds are visible before His eyes; He weighs all our deeds in His hand.

82. In Him the nations place their hope; He is our One Father; in Him no living deeds have been justified; Elah did not command murder, yet they continue to murder; Elah did not command hatred, yet they continue to hate; Elah did not give books that contradict one another – nor did Elah give books of hatred.

83. This is an attempt to exonerate themselves from fanaticism and the consequences of their evil deeds; God truly condemns such people!

84. Those fanatics who call for war and hatred are indeed ignorant people who are destined to be cast into the fire.

85. Their faces have turned pale and their tongues have fallen silent; the faces of pagans, Christians and Muslims have withered; they will be scorched by the sun of divine power.

86. And I rejoice in the Elah of my life, the Only Rock of Salvation, the Elah of resurrection and rest.

87. There is therefore no need to judge and persecute sinners, provided they do no harm to others.

88. Such are the transgressors of the law, those who stand out because they bring harm, hatred and strife to the world.

89. God is the centre around which the holy angels circle, singing songs of praise – from eternity to eternity He is the One, the Merciful and the Forgiving!

90. He is the most perfect in the universe and calls upon us to foster friendship amongst people, so that we bring neither wrath nor misfortune upon anyone, and commands us to befriend both the deserving and the undeserving, and to forgive the transgressions of both the deserving and the undeserving.

91. 13 In order to worship God and do good to Him, people must have free will, without anyone being forced to do anything.

92. Thus God has done; He is the God of free will.

93. He has not made us His slaves, but has prepared us for freedom, so that we may journey with Him to heaven.

94. The gift to us is not to serve Elah as slaves, but to submit to His law out of love for Him.

95. The Law of Moses is divided into laws directed towards God and laws governing human relations.

96. The laws governing human relations concern morality and not harming others, whilst the laws concerning God concern the fact that He is the One and Only worthy of worship.

97. Haykal d-Libba signifies the gathering of people of all kinds into one family, regardless of their race, nationality and languages.

98. A temple built of stones – a symbolic people as a portable Third World – is far more precious and dear to God than buildings erected by human hands.

99. The temple of unity opens the gates of heaven on earth.

100. The temple built of people as holy stones is a place of comfort and growth in Elah. Ceremonial law, such as the Sabbath and other rituals—though these are only for Jews—has never been abolished and replaced by the law of love in the Gospel, whilst moral law remains constant and unchanging like God Himself; thus, the ceremonies and the Sabbath will remain unchanged forever.

101. In the 'last days', Elah commands the renewal of ceremonies; all burnt offerings will be resumed.

102. Moses taught the same doctrine of love, but the old commandments and rituals of Moses were never fulfilled in the teacher Jesus, and it is necessary to await the return of the Corban and the peace offering – as the prophets commanded.

103. For the righteous will be gathered, as Elah prophesied, from all corners of the earth and will rejoice, offering burnt offerings on ‘the holy mountain of Elah’.

104. It has even been prophesied that in the future a foreigner will cleave to Elah, giving thanks to Him with burnt offerings: ‘Even the sons of foreigners who join Elah to serve Him and love the name of Elah, to be His servants – everyone who refrains from desecrating the Sabbath and keeps My covenant – I will bring them to My holy mountain and cause them to rejoice in My house of prayer.’

105. Why, then, should we endure what God requires and what He Himself has commanded, written by His finger in the golden tablet left for us?

106. If God alone is the source of life and immortality, then He lives forever.

107. Truly, He would rather meet His souls and rejoice in their literal, luminous resurrection than allow them to remain for eternity in the grave of death!

108. Our Elah is the giver of life, not death, the giver of health, not sickness, for He alone is the infinite spark that creates life.

109. He, Elah of mercy, is the Father of us all, He who is neither born nor dies, existing from all eternity.

110. Truly, there is no greater Saviour than God; He is the only Father who can save, who can free us from the burden of sins!

111. Coercion brings only misery, a desire to know the unknown, a sinful life and yet another cycle of enslavement.

112. I have proclaimed His justice, so that wealth may be distributed as intended.

113. Out of love for Elah, out of love for people, let the surplus of wealth go to the poor.

114. This surplus is alms, a tithe or other tribute, which is to go to the poor and to God’s people in greater measure than for the sake of the Divine Faith.

115. The proclamation of this Holy Faith should be carried out in accordance with the duty of every believer.

116. One must take into account and not neglect the duties, actions and families of believers.

117. Raise, then, the banners of peace, true peace that shall not pass away, peace of mind and friendship.

118. O God, grant that Your cause may be fulfilled, that wars may vanish, and that peace may reign forever among the nations!

119. We must not rashly assume that there are no dangers in life.

120. The idol of wealth and materialism has flooded today’s world with its filth; it is clear that the idols of entertainment are full of immorality, addictions to gambling and alcohol, and the influence of evil people.

121. You can bear witness to God through your life, not just with words, so be a light among people!

122. So do not turn away from the source of the water of life which I give you; do not turn to idols or the Kaaba, lest you be condemned by God!

123. .

124. ‘It is better to do everything in a spirit of love, mutual forgiveness and reconciliation than to hate one another for no reason.

125. .First, serve one another at home.

126. There is nothing more precious than family, love for children and mutual devotion to children!

127. Praise parents who care for their children.

128. Behold, if your Father has wronged you, you will not forgive him.

129. A father’s love for his son depends on the circumstances.

130. A father must not coerce or command, but must care tenderly for his son.

131. There must be no violence whatsoever from the Father's mouth or hands.
132. Do not harm one another.
133. Love without purpose, without feeling and care for the child, has no right to exist. Be like a belt of compassion; surround everyone with love.
134. Treat your wife as your own soul; it is not right to punish her, nor even to think of raising a hand against her.
135. God hates those who boast of violence and anger.
136. Let us love God's creations, people and animals, with all our hearts; let us not harm them, but protect and care for them.
137. Your gift to humanity is the love with which you have blessed us, so that we may be gentle, live in peace and never hate one another.
138. God's love is timeless; it traverses all ages with the speed of lightning and does not bypass the heart of any creature who heeds Your guidance!
139. Love will never die there, virtuous feelings will never fade, and hatred, divisions and loneliness will surely perish.
140. Materialism, selfishness and greed destroy souls, and wealth does not bring happiness.
141. A woman needs no veils – a woman full of righteousness is clothed in faith in the truth, just as the First Man clothed her, purified light!”.
142. You shall not inscribe upon the tablets of human hearts hatred of evil and darkness – selfishness, lust, anger, greed, complaining, pride, envy, lies, self-hatred, violence, insolence, cruelty, neglect of children, despondency, dishonesty!
143. And contempt for parents, rudeness, insincerity, laziness, vindictiveness, ingratitude – let these be atoned for within us!
144. Let us avoid these demons; let us destroy them.
145. I love my neighbours and lead them out of darkness into the light.
146. These Words were sent by God; Elah is the Victor who will turn the ‘swords’ of hatred into the ‘blades’ of love!
147. Every true prophet will speak in accordance with the letter of the Holy Scriptures.
148. As has already been said, the sophisticated words of false ‘prophets’ do not prove that they come from God, ‘who says to those who see: “You must not have visions”; and to the prophets: “You must not prophesy to us what is right; speak pleasant words to us, prophesy illusions”’.
149. I, Elah, say: No one can save you, neither man nor any other prophet. I, the God of the whole earth, will not worship idols, nor intermediaries, nor mortals, nor angels.
150. Elah – I am Elah of the whole earth, He who gives no glory to intermediaries, who sends rain upon the righteous and takes away the words of knowledge from those who stop their ears.
151. It takes a mind endowed with insight to understand that whilst certain principles in the Tanakh remain sacred, some laws were nevertheless prescribed for a specific time and depending on the circumstances.
152. These were linked to the conditions in which the Israelites lived and their survival as a nation.
153. Although some principles have been abolished – ceremonial laws and rituals – and other teachings should be viewed as symbolic, the spirit of the Tanakh should continue to live on and be recognised as the Holy Book.
154. My child, be brave and do not give up; do not repay evil with evil, but with good.
155. Elah said to me: No one is spiritually unclean because of what they eat, not even because of blood or pork, if they do not know or realise it.
156. Let each person judge for themselves what is suitable for them to eat.
157. For everything comes from God; do not despise those who eat unclean foods, but rather admonish those who commit lawlessness and boast of bloodshed.
158. Avoid accusing one another of what you eat and drink, and how you dress; this has no connection with God or His cause.
159. Elah has forbidden us to use force, but has commanded us to love everyone as our own soul!
160. So here is my advice: do not follow people who speak fine words, who preach poetry and philosophies that have nothing to do with the words of the prophets.

161. Elah is not God incarnate

Cursed be anyone who claims to be God in the flesh, yet is in reality a mortal man!

162. Our Elah is not a man and cannot become a man!

163. A curse and disgrace shall fall upon anyone who claims this; may the fire of God's jealousy and the wrath of Elah rest upon anyone who claims to be God whilst being a mortal!

164. Great light has enveloped this world thanks to the pen of Brama; thanks to his greatness and the majesty of his understanding of the Father of the Scriptures, no cleric could compare with him.

165. Verily, my sacrifice was not in vain.

166. Blessed are those who believe in the One Creator, the visible and invisible Elah, who created all things.

167. The tears they shed because of the yoke, they shed because of weeping and oppression.

168. Elah has not turned His eyes away from you; His blessed eye watches over you day and night.

169. He is the One, the Infinite, Elah of the twilight; He says: 'Without Me there is neither end nor beginning; I am the One, and apart from Me you shall find no other Lord.

170. Truly, for the sake of My name and to bless you, let all creation exalt Me, let every being express love for Me, let the dew and the rain call out only for Me.

171. None of My words indicate that I wish to exalt Myself in place of God, but it is I Myself who have exalted God and have constantly commanded My faithful to pray to the Father and to worship Him alone.

172. My fruits are Words full of mercy and great compassion. The unspoken words of wisdom of the Prophet of Prophets bear witness that power from the Throne of God flowed through His body, power which He had from above, and not from below.

173. Let us therefore take the prophets as our example, for He was the best of all men, full of love for sinners, forgiving, interceding for the poor in body and spirit 29, so that we may bear witness through our lives that we are children of God, by helping the poor, orphans and widows, and all who need comfort.

174. Has not the Gospel itself deceived the whole world, causing it to believe that He is 'God'? Is this not what the Holy Scriptures speak of in reference to the lies of the Gospel?

175. Yet, in His infinite wisdom, the Gate warned us not to give money to beggars, but to encourage them to work on themselves, so that everyone might earn their own living.

176. The Light of the Gate said that one must fight in defence of the faith, but I said that it is better for us and for the whole world that we raise no fight or sword against a believer or a non-believer!

177. God's love is boundless, available to both sinners and believers alike; there is no difference!

178. Elah has written in my heart that every human being is worthy of respect, and no one may take another's life on the basis of what they believe or do not believe!

179. All disputes should be referred to the governments of this world and should not be fuelled by bloodshed, hatred and quarrels!

180. We must avoid becoming the rulers of this world and instead be humble servants of God – this is what is best for the world and its children!

181. The war of faith must be waged in our hearts, and we must guard ourselves better against any interference from evil people – fighting with words, but also with the sword if necessary.

182. We must fight with the sword when we are threatened, but we must not cause harm or start wars in the name of faith!

183. Elah is the God of peace and desires peace with all people on earth!

184. True faith and understanding of all the holy scriptures lie in loving all people as one's own body!

185. 32 These are the words that God Himself has revealed to me, and the seal upon the hearts of men which He commanded me to record – spread, spread this message amongst all people – enough of killing in the name of God, the God of Peace and Infinite Love!

186. 33 It is He, God, who brings peace to prevent all harm; therefore, we should be advocates of peace between different faiths and treat followers of other religions with love and respect!

187. 34 No matter what sort of people God has made them, all are equal before Him; He loves all people...

188. Those who commit injustice, who steal and harm others, whether in body or in spirit, come from the depths of hell; let them come to their senses and turn from their evil ways, let them turn to the God of all worlds for forgiveness; perhaps He will hear them!

189. 35 There is no solution on earth that does not involve peace; peace is best for us all, lasting for everyone for as long as possible.

190. No struggle or dispute can control us; they bring only unnecessary chaos and confusion, for God is the God of order, not of confusion, and God does not like anxiety or fear, but He overcomes fear and sorrow!

191. 36 He [God] has revealed Himself in my words, words of love, words of repentance, admonishing rather than hurting!

192. Why, then, should He punish you for an obvious sin? If the punishment for wickedness is to be life in this world, He will repay you with suffering in this life!

193. In Deuteronomy 28:21–61 we read that God sends sickness.

194. Some mistakenly believe that ‘Elah sends sicknesses’, but in reality Elah has placed us in a world of suffering and love – and I tell you, the opposite is true.

195. God does not send sickness, but people, who are themselves to blame, have been sick since the fall of Adam and Eve.

196. They lived in the immaculate beauty of paradise, but their whole paradise fell apart when sin appeared, and since then sin, sickness and death have reigned.

197. This is true understanding; let those who listen understand!

198. God is indeed the healer of those who fear Him – that is, those who listen to His words, keep them, and live in holiness, so that God, in His infinite wisdom, grants them health and long life.

199. Yet breaking the law brings sorrow and sin; such are the consequences of disobedience, so let everyone hold fast to the Ten Words of Moses [the Decalogue] and not omit a single verse, nor twist it to the right or to the left!

200. 37 What sort of God [a reference to a God imagined in a fanatical manner] is he who sheds human blood, whether through their own fault or innocence?

201. To me, such a God would be nothing but an illusory shadow of a man!

202. 38 And I tell you that, on the contrary, God is the One who metes out the final punishment, but He also grants unlimited possibilities for its execution.

203. But He also grants unlimited transformation to anyone who asks Him for it!

204. God does not gain from sin and death, and the hell of hatred and war can be found here on earth; no further explanation is needed!

205. Truly, it is right that God should punish sin on earth, and there is no need for the soul to go to hell. Whoever does evil shall be cursed on earth during their lifetime; God shall punish them with every misfortune and the mark of death here on earth, and not in the grave!

206. And I tell you that a man will be judged according to how his conscience acts.

207. Even the pagans have a conscience and deal with it better; they are more moral than the people of the Book.

208. It is true that God has placed within their hearts – in their minds and consciences – the ability to recognise good and reject evil.

209. So these poor people will be judged according to their conscience, and not because they failed to recognise and believe in the Oneness of God!

210. In Exodus 15:3 it is written: ‘Elah is the God of war’ – are we to take this literally?

211. ‘Fight in the way of God’, and I say to you: On the contrary, fight for justice and do not allow bloodshed!

212. A criminal who kills an innocent soul, only to kill again and again without changing his heart, should never see the light or live.

213. In Leviticus 24:17–22 it is written: ‘An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth’ – but I tell you that this law has not been repealed and has always been understood figuratively; anyone who wages war against sin and claims not to be a sinner is a hypocrite.

214. But the law of retaliation came from the pen of Moses, so why should it be abolished?

215. Because that law applied to the people of Israel when they were weak and exhausted, and Elah commanded them to keep these commandments so that they might not all perish!

216. But now we have various kinds of governments that ensure everything is in order!

217. Nevertheless, Sharia law is not a law from the Tanakh, so it should be abolished immediately!

218. So decreed Elah, the Creator of all things!

219. Every law of retaliation is to be abolished and is to be .

220. Anyone who adheres to the law of retaliation is a thief and a murderer.

221. At the climax of these sermons, the point was raised that .

222. It was raised that one must not murder the innocent; one must not do this to anyone.

223. In Numbers 31:17-18 it is written – and I command you the opposite: do not allow yourselves to be killed by any man, and if at all possible, fight the fanatics with words or deeds.

224. Fight all the more out of faith in God, so that you may prevail through words, conduct and good deeds.

225. Words, attitude and good deeds.

226. By walking in holiness before Elah, you become true victors, and let those who attack you fight!

227. And whoever would wish to harm you because of your faith in God, who is a merciful Father, let them have no chance to crush you – defend yourselves with words!

228. If anyone raises a hand against you to cause you physical harm, repay them in kind!

229. If possible, defend yourselves against fanatics by any means available!

230. ‘Be like beasts among the reeds, a herd of bulls amongst the calves of the nations.

231. Humble yourselves; let the beast bring forth bars of silver.

232. Scatter the nations that delight in war.”

Warning and frightening people brings more misfortune than good.

233. A faith based more on free will than on human traditions should be professed by those who believe in the signs of God and in the great Revelation!

234. Prohibitions have brought humanity nothing better than the circumvention of those prohibitions once they have been established.

235. For people have a tendency to rebel, and one should not impose prohibitions on them regarding what they should drink and eat, nor whether they should drink wine and play games!

236. True faith should instruct, but not moralise people excessively, exalting their leaders instead of God!

237. One can only advise people on how to live, and we should lead a holy life so that people may bear witness that ‘God is with us’!

238. Pesakha – a verdict is the passing of judgement based on legalistic laws.

239. God does not wish to make us His slaves and servants of the law; He wishes to be our servant; God Himself wishes to serve us as the best example through the unchanging ‘Ten Words of Moses’ – the Decalogue.

240. Did not the prophet Jesus say that when the woman caught in adultery was brought before him, was he not somewhat right?

241. Was the truth not mixed with lies – and called the Gospel?

242. Is this not the best principle for giving people a second chance to change their lives?

243. It is truly the case that God allows for a change of heart and does not judge without cause or in advance!

244. God is far more merciful and forgiving than you think.

245. His anger can be quickly appeased.

246. He does not hate the sinner, but abhors sin; that is the best way to understand this matter.

247. He does not tolerate anyone who hates without cause – His love prevents wars, quarrels and hatred!

248. Above all, God wants people to love one another, not to be enemies!

249. His love makes it necessary to forgive all those who hate us and wish us ill!
250. .
251. Love and brotherhood will destroy and condemn all discord and all inequality, whether based on gender, race or religion!
252. God truly desires that all people love their neighbours as if they were their own flesh and blood; this is the greatest of all commandments – to do no harm and not to allow oneself to be harmed by anyone on God's path.
253. Do you think we should rebuild the temple of stone, or should we build ourselves spiritually as one temple united by the bonds of love and friendship?
254. Surely the most important thing for Elah is the reconciliation of son with father, and of parents with children.
255. Give every person the freedom to express their thoughts, even if they do not agree with the revelation He gives you.
256. Have you not heard, do you not know, that Christianity, Islam and Judaism are a sure path to knowing God in this world, and that those who follow these paths will surely be rewarded according to their grace, having pure hearts full of the fire of divine love?
257. Is it not the case that the Antichrist – symbolically – represents the tyranny of man, ruling over and controlling people?
258. If we practise the spirit of love and compassion within ourselves, helping one another – surely the world would be a better place.
259. Original sin does not exist, and I know that we are still sinners, and that each person is accountable to God for their own sins; children cannot inherit the faults of their parents, for that would be a complete injustice. The soul that sins is the one that will die.
260. A son shall not bear the guilt of his father, nor shall a father bear the guilt of his son.
261. The righteousness of the righteous shall be upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon him.
262. The sacrifice of Jesus is a Christian invention.
263. Sacrificing oneself in place of another person does not change the person we wish to change.
264. The teachings of the false Gospel concerning Christ's sacrifice are erroneous and do not bring salvation, yet Christians continue to insist on his sacrifice, turning the prophet into an idol.
265. Children are born innocent, so they do not inherit original sin or the sins of their parents, but they do inherit sickness and death. Original sin is a Catholic and Protestant doctrine derived from paganism; it does not lead to a change in the heart and inner being of a person; on the contrary – if sins are 'covered' by the cross and the death of Jesus, it is easy to justify sin through one's own deeds.
266. Is this not a detestable command [to beat one's wives], which God has never issued?
267. It is forbidden to abuse wives and beat them in the name of faith or without faith.
268. God will surely punish every soul that harms another soul.
269. Cease enslaving any women, whether they be your daughters or your wives!
270. It is forbidden for you to harm anyone with words or deeds, and all the more so your wives and daughters should not be your property, for they are not your possessions.
271. Truly, they are your equal partners!
272. Love your wives; they are neither your merchandise nor your property.
273. Nor is it permissible to attack or harm, either verbally or physically, anyone who holds different views. Nor is it permissible for us to hate Catholics because they have been wronged and deceived by popes and bishops, most of whom remain in the dark regarding the teachings of the Pope and his bishops.
- He [God] calls for a temple for all nations, in peace, desiring that destruction and wars cease.
274. I challenge the unificationists who uphold teachings and fables, teaching people evil ways, claiming to be the light, yet their very fruits testify to the unrighteousness of their deeds. The ways of these fanatics—Christians, Muslims, Jews—are confused, for one contradicts the other.
275. It is better for a person to suffer than to be a persecutor.

276. It is better for God to be humble than to be proud.

277. It is better for God to make everyone better day by day than for people to seek holiness within themselves. It is better for God to bring peace between nations than for one nation to hate another. It is better for God to forgive than for people to speak words full of prejudice, mistrust and contempt.

278. It is better with God when equality is evident in daily life, whether in the family, where man and woman are equal because they are created from one flesh.

279. It is better before God when you speak the truth, for falsehood will return to you unexpectedly, so you will not be able to hide.

280. It is better before God when you have a pure heart and body.

281. So follow this voice, go and do not look back, become believers – great in the fear of Elah, become God-fearing, guardians of Elah's peace.

282. Men do not deserve humiliation; do not raise your hand against a woman, nor take many wives; you are destined for one!

283. 52 Do not be angry, but respect that which is other and different; all that breathes deserves life; do not kill in the name of God.

284. God makes no distinction between one and another; He created all alike, and placed love within them; do not turn away from it, but be a friend to humanity. 53 Do not tell your neighbour what to do; do not take away the freedom of the noble; imprison and severely punish criminals.

285. Do not condemn the noble to exile; do not abuse anyone; do not harm or torment the defenceless!

286. God is the Healer; heal the hearts of those who are corrupt!

287. Do not judge people you do not know; why do you judge?

288. Are you holy enough to do so?

289. Do not cause suffering to those you love; reward generously those who love their families; respect your sons and daughters; do not waste time on trifles; spend time with them; say – my family is my home, and my wife and children are my heaven!

290. 56 Do not curse others, lest you yourselves be cursed!

291. Those who incite wars are guilty of shedding innocent blood!

292. Remove the oppressors; do not let a bloodthirsty ruler rule over you!

293. 57 Do not deceive, do not accuse, do not make enemies amongst people.

294. Truly, those who shed innocent blood are already devils who must be trampled underfoot!

295. Fight in the name of God not with the sword, but with the word!

296. 58 Do not give access to those who wish to rob you; do not let the unjust engage in quarrels!

297. Woman was taken from Adam's rib; she is your equal companion, your friend for life!

298. Threefold purity is commanded of all – purity of thought, word and deed!

299. Make amends for the wrongs done to a woman who has been raped; do not let this happen to her again!

300. 59 Do not refuse food to the hungry, nor water to the thirsty!

301. 60 Do not whisper amongst yourselves or think that God will reward you in heaven if you fast, go on pilgrimages or celebrate.

302. Clothe yourselves in the beautiful garments of righteousness.

303. Believe in the One God, and knowing the Almighty and His grace, you shall do good!

304. 61 Do you not see that a messenger has come to you; truly, God is your only Saviour, the One who forgives sins!

305. 62 Trust in God; do not bow down before people!

306. God neither rests nor sleeps; have you forgotten the spiritual sustenance?

307. He is more important.

308. Fulfil your duties every day and do not say that one day is holier than another!

309. Elah is your feast, God is your Sabbath and your joy!

310. 63 Thus says Elah: Do not exalt man in place of God; do you think that a mortal man can save?

311. Can a man who claims to be the Saviour atone for sins?

312. No, by the name of Yahweh, God is merciful, the only one who blots out sins!
313. If a man says, 'I am the Saviour, let the people worship me', do not bow down before him, even if he has performed miracles by means of incantations.

Destroy all idols

314. The truth is that there is only one God, the Lord of good and prosperity; God does not share His authority with other foreign gods.
315. I am not a [corrupt] cleric who commands you to submit and be submissive.
316. They call debauchery love and tolerate sin, calling it understanding.
317. Carelessness and laziness lead to the ruin of every man, bringing poverty and misery upon families.
318. This plague of laziness spreads amongst those who have not abandoned their habits, and bad habits and passions lead to a life of poverty, want and ruin.
319. The power of their sword and violence [of ancient Sodom] was broken, for God would not allow the poor to be oppressed, nor children and women to be raped.
320. Their love was greed and money; they indulged in pleasures, forgetting their families, neglecting their wives and children.
321. They treated their wives and children as slaves, and women as tools of their pleasure, mere objects for their sinful consciences.
322. Their violence went so far that they abused every orphan and stranger.
323. 68 Cursed be he who, being a man, considers himself a god!
324. He who abhors war and bloodshed calls you to peace!
325. But I bless them from the bottom of my heart and do not hate them.
326. First look at yourself and do not judge others, for you know that no one was conceived without sin. Cursed be the man who considers himself God, yet whose inner self betrays his wickedness!
327. 69 His love never ceases, untainted by the blood of the innocent, never!
328. Finally, when a husband asks his wife how she is feeling, he does so with tenderness and expresses himself with tender words; so we, as the chosen ones among many, should embrace one another with tenderness, just as a righteous husband shows love to his wife!
329. 70 Thus, in a relationship, one can achieve the patience not to quarrel; so be patient and forgive one another.
330. 71 It is better to do everything in a spirit of love, mutual forgiveness and reconciliation than to hate one another without cause.
331. God is indeed the Peacemaker.
332. 72 Serve one another first at home, then in society, and then in faith.
333. There is nothing more precious than family, love for children and shared devotion to them!
334. Praise be to parents who care for their children.
335. Blessed are the children who do not curse their parents, but forgive them their transgressions!
336. Here is your Father: if he wrongs you, you will not forgive him; but if your Father tells you that you are fools, you will forgive him!
337. This is the law of justice!
338. The law of dignity!
339. A father's love for his son depends on the circumstances; therefore, a father cannot force or command anyone, but must feel as tenderly towards his son as if he were a part of his own body!
340. 73 There can be no violence from the Father's mouth or hands, so the Son cannot raise his hand against the Father to harm him.
341. Do not harm one another.
342. It is God's will that the Son and the Father should be of one mind, just as a daughter is with her mother.
343. True love is based on harmony; when someone weeps, weep with them.
344. When someone falls, lift them up.

345. And when someone rejoices, rejoice with them.
 346. 74 Oh, what joy fills me when the Father loves His Son selflessly.
 347. Meaningless love, devoid of feeling and concern for the child, has no right to exist.
 348. O our Elah, take this child under your wing.
 349. Almighty, supreme Giver of life!
 350. We praise Your holy name!
 351. You give life, but You never take it away!
 352. Most perfect, most gracious, overflowing with abundant love!
 353. Full of grace and infinite love!
 354. The whole earth rejoices and praises Elah!
 355. The ends of the earth rejoice, the flowers sway in the field, and may the sun sing a joyful song over You!
 356. Behold, our Elah heralds joy!
 357. May families be united, a rock against which the many injustices of the world will shatter!
 358. 75 O God, purify the hearts of fathers, that they may not offend their sons!
 359. O God, purify the hearts of mothers, that they may not chastise their daughters with word or hand.
 360. O God, purify the hearts of spouses, that they may no longer quarrel.
 361. O God, purify the hearts of friends, that they may agree, that they may support one another – O my most errant one!
 362. 76 O God, give yourselves a belt, a belt of compassion, not of punishment, a bundle of all virtues, and so gird yourselves with it!
 363. Take heed to these words: Truly, Elah has loved us a thousand times; therefore, parents, be vigilant and guard yourselves, your precious gems, which are your children!
 364. 77 O God, my dearest friend!
 365. Friend of my youth, friend of my beginnings, when I was still in my mother's womb, friend of my adolescence, friend now and forever!
 366. My Almighty, my Just One, whose Throne is as unchanging as His Law!
 367. You are my friend, the perfect role model, O Almighty God!
 368. 78 Many faiths in the world have nothing to offer but hatred.
 369. They have forgotten the love with which God has endowed them from within.
 370. God truly does not hate; He is compassionate and impartial!
 371. I shall remember His love, grace and devotion until the end of my earthly journey.
 372. 79 The scent of flowers and the wings of birds are true testimony to God's creation of the world!
 373. One who is unchanging.
 374. He has given colour to all flowers, spread the rainbow as a sign of the covenant of peace, and given diverse names to the creatures of the world.
 375. For God, there is nothing more special than His creatures, who require our care and commitment.
 376. 80 Behold, I am filled with love, bestowed by the Almighty!
 377. I shall spread His love to all, to the ends of the earth; let whoever wishes drink these words of the water of life, that they may not thirst.
 378. 81 So eat this bread of life and take it freely, without a moment's hesitation.
 379. Come, and I will refresh and satisfy you.
 380. 82 O Almighty God, my Beloved!
 381. You have cleansed me of all iniquity; You have given me a new spirit, that I may love those who desire me and those who hate me.
 382. Truly, I bless all those who hate me!
 383. 83 O God, my Beloved God!
 384. Behold, strive to treat your wife as if she were your own soul; it is not right to punish her, nor even to think of raising a hand against her.

385. Verily, God hates those who boast of their violence and anger!
386. He will destroy the wrathful and all sinners; their lives will be cut short and they will die as stewards of Hell, where they will perish in their wrath, and hatred itself will suffocate them.
387. Such is God's justice; He knows what people are capable of, so the wicked have already condemned themselves.
388. 84 Long live the love of God; He is indeed not a man, nor has any heavenly creature called Him by a human name.
389. He brings not misfortune, but happiness.
390. He brings not sorrow, but joy.
391. He brings not war, but peace.
392. 85 It is a holy reality that all nations gather in the camp of Elah to serve Him and praise His holy name.
393. He is truly one, indivisible.
394. He has one face and no many likenesses.
395. Pass through the gates of His light, that the radiant Elah, shining with the light of an infinite number of stars, may be revealed to you.
396. 86 O, I am intoxicated by Your love!
397. O my Almighty!
398. O Elah of the entire circle of the heavens and of all things visible and invisible!
399. There is none but You, O Most Beloved, O Forgiving One!
400. O Elah of mercy!
401. 87 I am intoxicated by Your words!
402. Your Scriptures are absolutely true, untainted, and it is worth seeking answers, advice and guidance in them.
403. May everyone who seeks solace in Your Scriptures be happy.
404. 88 O Your infinite grace, Your love reaches everyone who calls upon You for help!
405. You always care for me, you cherish me, so I come to You on my knees, O great Saviour of mankind!
406. O, how marvellous is Your love, a grace freely received by many at no cost!
407. Your love never fades and will never be taken from us!
408. Because of so many cares, I draw near to You, and You give me solace, O Most High Elah, Saviour and our King!
409. 89 Your love spreads throughout my heart.
410. As my love for You sprouted from a seed, love for You, slowly the light of hope emerged from the bud, and the radiance of Your Spirit blinded me!
411. 90 If compassion between you is visible and flows ceaselessly, and is not clouded, then we shall love God all the more.
412. Let us love God's creations, people and animals, with all our hearts, and let us not harm them, but protect and nurture them.
413. 91 O infinite Love!
414. Let not your love for your wife and children be spoiled by inner pride and self-exaltation!
415. Let children respect their father just as much as their mother!
416. Let not a wife curse her husband, nor a husband curse his wife, calling her an adulteress.
417. 92 God's love consists of mutual respect, preventing quarrels and hatred!
418. Oh, how terrible it is to see, through God's eyes, how parents hurt their children, and children do not respect their parents!
419. 93 Your gift to humanity is the love You have given us, so that we may be gentle, live in peace, and never hate one another.
420. Your love is timeless; it traverses all ages with the speed of lightning and does not bypass the heart of any being who heeds Your guidance!
421. We, being of one heart and one soul, truly become children of God!

422. 94 O all the ends of the earth, draw near to your Elah, and He will give you comfort and solace in your sorrow and misery!

423. 95 O, join us then in our sanctuary; together we shall create eternal peace!

424. On the holy mountain of Elah, it shall be forbidden to lie, to kill, or to wish ill upon one's neighbour.

425. Love will never die there, virtuous feelings will never vanish, and hatred, divisions and loneliness will surely perish.

426. No tongue shall then cry out that foreign gods are true gods; idols of clay and precious stones shall perish!

427. In the assembly of nations there will be no strife, no discord, but pure unity!

428. 96 O God, You will not permit pilgrimages, ceremonies or processions that mock You.

429. 97 Remember!!!

430. Materialism, selfishness and greed kill souls, and getting rich does not bring happiness, but sensible wealth-building aids happiness!

431. 98 What is this covering, how much brighter than the light of justice!

432. A woman full of justice is clothed in faith in the truth, just as the First Man clothed her, purified light!

433. Let us cover our breasts, not our faces!

434. When you spy in the name of Elah, before some battle.

435. Is it not better to cover one's face with a veil to protect one's skin!

436. Is it not better to be recognised abroad, amongst others, when someone sees a woman wearing a veil!

437. `.

438. You only stoke hatred between them by invoking God in vain; they, too, treat their women unjustly, claiming that violence is necessary.

439. But Elah hates violence, and anyone who uses violence has clearly prepared themselves for the Fire; when brothers kill brothers, they receive such a reward.

440. Sodom knows no love; they have fallen in love with someone who is useless and empty.

441. They did not like one another; they sought only anger, not love, only lust.

442. O friends, turn away from adultery and help the homeless children, for they have been wronged.

443. Forgive those who have not forgiven you and who despise you.

God is spirit

There is nothing on earth like God!

445. He is a spirit, holy and unchanging!

446. Do not accept other messages; spiritual snares await you under the guise of sweet words and praise; if possible, do not follow those people who are considered great, the chosen ones, simply because they have had some revelation!

447. On the path of God!

448. The most important thing is to respect your mother and father, even if they are unbelievers.

449. This is the way of God!

450. To live and not kill mercilessly, not to murder the guilty and the innocent in the name of God!

451. This is true faith, when a friend does not condemn his brother to death, but feeds him and saves him from it.

452. Thus, being righteous and harming no one, he deserves death; whether he is a believer or an unbeliever, it matters not!

453. God is the Lord of sinners and saves them from their sins; therefore, do not judge sinners, punish sin, not people!

454. And Elah, from on high, has set a seal upon your heart and written a scroll within it – He hates no one.

455. How much blood has been shed in wars, and how many cries from distraught mothers and grieving fathers who have lost their children!

456. Kill no one, neither the child yet to be born, nor the various people whom God has created!

457. 103 Lust and debauchery are like the lust for money; they are like an addiction that only Elah can forgive!

458. And reconciliation with God is the only way to obtain forgiveness!

459. 104 Oh, remember not to take property or profit from the families of the poor!

460. We must not take a tithe from them, nor does Heaven command us to plunder or impose charges on those who lament their fate!

461. 105 Do not share with God; do not share with Him in prayer with any creature, neither a prophet, nor a saint, nor an angel!

462. Do not be led astray by your illusions and your love of nothingness!

463. 106 He, God, is your husband, your wife, your daughter and your son.

464. Truly, let all hatred cease, let love never fade!

465. Prayer does not save, nor do rituals save; they think that rituals lead them to God, but pure faith is faith submitted to His commandments and His will!

466. It is better not to associate with those who commit all manner of sins, and to avoid hypocrites!

467. Those who love the truth are free from the sins of this law and neither follow them nor desire them!

468. You permit nothing; You do not permit theft or robbery in Your name.

469. Lies and deceit are to You like the incense of idols, and debauchery like an offering of impurity on Your altar!

470. All that has been revealed to me in the Bible is the Truth; there is no obscurity or error in it!

471. Let the earth be filled with the knowledge of Elah, let streams of knowledge flow among the nations, and let a garden full of fragrant flowers blossom to the delight of the Holy Spirit!

472. Let everyone who desires come and reap the harvest!

473. The Father is rich in love; He is Elah over all, and He has given no one the authority for one man to rule over another!

474. There is no such authority or permission in heaven or on earth for one man to become the slave of another!

475. Likewise, women should teach men how to live and guide them, whether they be young or old; there is no greater permission than to give advice to one's husband!

476. The time will come when there will be one faith, one God and one world full of goodness, which will leave evil behind.

477. He, the Most High, will never allow a solitary fruit to be destroyed and cast to the ground before it ripens!

478. But Elah allows every healthy fruit to live and not die!

479. Mutual support in marriage, so that the husband does not hinder his wife's development and the children grow up unhindered, is the greatest blessing of Heaven!

480. As the servant walks up the hill, by the holy lamp of his tzaddik, which they share, I saw a light

. Why then do you worship the mirrors [of the prophets], instead of looking upon God and worshipping Him as the Sun of Truth and of all virtues?

481. I am the Father of you all; there is no God but Me; I am the Most High, existing eternally.

482. Burnt offerings, if not offered with faith, become a pagan custom, just as all the temples of Islam and Christianity and their furnishings, whether of gold or precious stones, but without the proper and equitable treatment of the temple of the soul, such a temple becomes an empty trinket, it becomes a human idol, it becomes a human custom followed by blind crowds who do not know the true will of the Father?

483. Burnt offerings are nothing compared to the burnt offerings made in repentance before God, on the altar of humility and conversion of heart!

484. .

485. Christianity and Islam are based on fear; hell and heaven set boundaries which people should not cross.
486. But far worse consequences of wrongdoing befall us here on earth; if the offence is serious, sooner or later it will be repaid and will be unbearable
- If a prophet does not speak in accordance with the Bible, does not exalt God, but instead exalts himself in place of God, then surely his words do not come from Elah, and the prophet has spoken these words in his pride.
487. Prophetic words need not be conveyed perfectly; what matters is whether they are consistent with the previous Revealed Scriptures and whether the prophet leads a holy life.
488. A true prophet must exalt the Bible; although sceptics may agree that they find contradictions and errors of the prophets in the Bible, they should not alter the Word of God once it has been spoken. Everything that a person can comprehend in a human and mundane way must not take the words of the Bible out of context, but one should understand the Words of these books through the Spirit that guides them – the spirit of reason, love for one's neighbour and God.
489. The spirit of reason, if properly guided by the Bible, will surely uncover the true treasures contained within these books, setting aside themes of hatred, discord and intolerance.
490. Many beautiful gems can be gleaned from the Bible, so that God may guide us through reason rather than through the constraints of a particular religion or tradition.
491. God is the God of reason and has given it to us so that we may use it wisely.
492. Prophets do not come to destroy previous revelations, nor do they come to replace new revelations with a new religion.
493. Nor are prophets here to bring fear, darkness and sorrow to people, but on the contrary – to lead every person to worship God, to love God and His creatures as their own body, to rejoice in all God's blessings, to be courageous and joyful in God and His selfless love.
494. All evil that stems from human selfishness comes from sinful man, but everything that enslaves and inclines one to evil certainly comes from evil spirits.
495. Common sense and reason are the most precious gift sent by God to humanity; it is thanks to them that we are able to distinguish good from evil, guided by our conscience, and reason itself gives us the ability to think and organise our thoughts without external aid; reason inspired by God is far more precious than mundane reason and human understanding of the world; faith supported reason and rationality does not deny the existence of God nor destroy His image as the Creator, but helps us to understand and exalt Him.
496. False prophets worship themselves and force others to worship them, thereby denying God's eternal order – that God is One, and not man.

God, the propagator of truth

- 497.
- God will exalt your writings and your knowledge, your deeds, because you exalt Elah and praise Him above the world.
498. My aim is not to create a new faith, but the aim of Elah, who called me, is to reveal that He exists, that He is the one and only God of this world, that He is the Elah of miracles, that He is the Elah of life, not of death, that He is the Elah who desires to live with us in eternity.
499. God Himself is the Elah of light, who has called all people to live in the light, in the truth, and not to deny the truth revealed before.
500. I therefore, through the Holy Spirit, the power of God, the Word of the Most High – I praise the heavens of Elah of Hosts, I praise His servants, I praise the angelic hosts of God Himself.
501. He is Elah, who dried up the Sea of Reeds; He has paved a safe path for us.
502. Praise Him, heavens, praise His Name; nations, praise His majesty; be enlightened in Him.
503. May the Name of Elah alone be exalted; so look upon the word as a mirror—does it not reflect the precious rays of light—the 'Sun'!
504. Elah of the whole world!
505. O, come then, surround Him, O nations, sing Him a sweet song.

506. Truly, the Spirit that guides me says: I will exalt this matter and carry the word of life to the ends of the world.

507. And no spirit or angel has appeared to me to mention the name of God, but the power of God has rested upon me, and I write all that this almighty power desires.

508. I seek help from God, who created me and is my only Saviour.

509. 125 All harmony and all goodness, love and joy are found in God, who is a merciful Father, drawing us into harmony as brothers – let us therefore be leaves of unity and not reject one another because of our differences.

510. I shall not rest until peace and harmony spread throughout the earth, and brotherly love reigns throughout the world.

511. It is God's will that we should be friends to one another, and we must cast aside venom and hostility.

512. Christians await the sudden destruction of the world, but I await the world's renewal, so that it may once again become a paradise, a place of rest and peace, where 'swords shall be beaten into ploughshares' and no one shall incite others to war.

513. He [God] cannot die, cannot incarnate as an infinite number of deities; He is the Spirit who has always existed, and may He alone be exalted among the nations once and for all.

514. Be aware that only God is able to cleanse you of all your sins, all your addictions, and all the wounds that are in your hearts.

515. He is your Redeemer and Saviour, the Rock upon which you may rely and which you may remember day and night.

516. God has not commanded any man to strike his wife or to mistreat her!

517. Exalt, therefore, the God of the whole world, and seek no companion; add no creature that would worship your God and Creator on a par with them.

Swords turned into ploughs

518. That which is not worthy of being upheld in the world has been abolished; it is not worthy of waging holy war, bearing arms, or causing unrest and violence.

519. Verily, God is the Creator of peace, the Lord of harmony and concord.

520. Any spirit that robs a person of joy and brings sorrow and inner suffering, as well as a lack of hope in the power of Elah and His infinite love, surely such a spirit and such a Revelation cannot come from the source of Truth and the source of Life.

521. Is it not the case now that people expect the teacher Jesus to have died for their sins, yet they delude themselves in vain that he died for them, and do nothing to change, but persist endlessly in their sins? Jesus was neither the Saviour nor the Messiah; he fulfilled no prophecies.

522. But Elah, in his wisdom, warned that the laws of Elah, good deeds and faith in God are sufficient for salvation; no sacrifice of a human being can bring salvation or remove sins.

523. Is it not better for the sinner to turn away from his sins and reject all the martyrdom of the prophets, and instead of worshipping the prophets, is it not better for the sinner to turn directly to Elah and the Saviour for forgiveness?

524. Then Elah will surely forgive his transgressions, blot out his sins from the books of heaven, and his good deeds will become a sweet fragrance to Him.

525. I rejoice only in God, who is life and will grant immortality to those who are faithful to Him, who love their neighbours as themselves, who are holy and faithful servants of the Unity and Indissolubility of the Covenant between them and God.

526. I do not proclaim these momentous truths to exalt myself, nor do I proclaim them to gain any income, nor do I desire fame.

527. I desire what God desires; He is jealous for every soul and rejoices when I convey the meaning of the holy scriptures to all who desire it.

528. I was sent to people all over the world to unite their hearts, to renew hearts hardened by rituals and the veneration of imams; I brought life and a glimmer of hope into people's hearts.

529. He brought life and a ray of hope into people's hearts.

530. As a renewer, he instilled peace in people's hearts instead of violence, and gave women the freedom to be equal companions to men, rather than subordinate servants.

531. Obey God; He is the One who gives life to everyone who listens to Him and keeps His commandments of love.

532. Did not God Himself say that some people follow human traditions in vain?

534. .

535. Is it not best to worship God Himself through 'prostration'?

536. Not bodily worship, but worship in humility and service to others!

537. 136 Let every virtue, therefore, be evident in our hearts, just as it was in the hearts of the ancient prophets; hold fast, then, to what is just and good; ask, therefore, as God's messengers, for help solely from Elah, and He will open the gates of heaven for you, guard you, and not leave you alone!

538. He is the Elah of peace, who with His wrath will burn away all war, who will withhold all blessings from those who add to their neighbours and worship Him on a par with mortals!

539. 138 I was imprisoned on the island, and there God sent him to proclaim the wonderful news of peace, of living in harmony with one's neighbours, and of the liberation of women from the tyranny and slavery imposed upon them by their people and their own kin!

540. 139 See for yourselves how many people are in darkness; the whole world does not yet worship the One God; not everyone speaks the one language of love and peace!

541. They are imprisoned in 'prisons'. They sleep in hiding, thinking they are in paradise, yet the world is still full of blood, war and discord; they do not seek peace, and yet God is Elah of peace and harmony!

542. 140 Is it not so today that no one sings the true song of peace and harmony for eternity; everyone is driven solely by hatred and discord, which brings all manner of misfortune upon the world!

543. 141 Sing to Elah a new song, a new song that Yahweh, our God, is One, to all the nations of the earth; let all the ends of the earth praise Elah and give glory to Him alone; let everyone call upon Him as the Father who created you all equal!

544. Let all be equal before God; let women be equal to their husbands; let children honour their parents in what is good and just; let justice and love flourish on earth and endure all misfortunes and disasters!

545. 142 He truly desires peace for all and said to me: to me belongs the temple in which I shall dwell forever, and people from all over the world shall gather to honour and worship me.

546. 143 The pursuit of perfection should be the desire of every person who loves God and His cause.

547. Therefore, dishonesty, alcohol and gambling must be avoided.

548. Moral laws have been given to us by God to restrain our animal instincts and our predatory, unbridled lust.

549. Temperance is necessary so that God's power may dwell within us and lead us into a relationship with God and His holy angels.

550. All good spirits will protect and watch over us if we ask our Heavenly Father to take care of us, and He will surely repel the snares of Satan, the snares of lust and unbridled debauchery.

551. 144 Ask in your prayers for guidance, so that you may walk in all His righteous ways.

552. I too love people and serve them as much as I possibly can, to lead them to selfless love of God and to the salvation that can be attained only in Him.

553. 145 And if anyone doubts what I preach, My Elah, should I convince him? replied the Spirit – do not convince him; he has the right to doubt and to have doubts, having his own opinion and caution.

554. 146 How should I act and what should I do, my Elah?

555. If anyone doubts your cause, it is better for them to examine all your knowledge, your knowledge of Elah and the teachings of God.

556. Do not prevent them from deep inquiry and study of divine and revealed subjects in your works. Lead people along the path of eternal life, so that they may drink the water of life and eat the bread of salvation.

Your words, O God, are the water of life and the bread of salvation

557. Thus says Elah – be wise and do not lie to others.

558. 148 And what of those who are quiet; should I still press them to be even quieter?

559. Do not do that, says Elah – let them speak, nurture self-love and self-confidence among them; each of them was created in the image of God, and each of them has a different opinion, knowledge and understanding of divine matters.

560. Even if you know the truth, do not force them to know what you know if they do not want to.

561. And even if someone leaves and opposes this revelation, let them go; let them believe what they wish.

562. 149 Elah declared – speak sincerely, do not mislead anyone, do not be like the hypocrites who claim to lead a holy life, yet on the contrary, deny the law of the Ten Words and God.

563. 150 God, in truth, has revealed this to me to comfort people and lift them out of their sorrow.

564. But my revelation is in accordance with God's will, having also given us reason, and I base my revelations on reason; I do not command anyone to be fanatical, I do not command them to dress modestly or immodestly, I neither command nor forbid them to eat this or that food.

565. God has also shown me not to pursue religion, for God is above religion and traditions.

566. Furthermore, no one should rule over another; any superiority of one person over another in this holy faith is to be negated.

567. Every authority figure, be they rabbis, popes, imams or pastors, shall be humbled and shall not rise again; for each of them has transgressed the eternal laws of their religions, each of them exalting themselves above the people.

568. What the clergy do, what they preach, and the fact that they exalt themselves, is unlawful, for they exalt one another.

569. 151 No leader is the supreme authority; for us, God is to be the supreme authority and our leader.

570. 152 The Temple and its rebuilding signify the restoration of ties between Jews and Arabs, who have been in conflict for many generations.

571. We ourselves are the Temple, and we should care for our spiritual temple by bringing peace among people and supporting one another, trusting in the One God who will transform hardened hearts into hearts of flesh and purity.

572. 153 Because of belief in the Messiah, unnecessary wars, bloodshed and hatred break out amongst people, for everyone seeks their own chosen Messiah.

573. 154 Here is divine counsel: pay greater attention to God and His attributes, so that you may draw strength and power from Him; love people more than yourselves, so that you may improve the world; treat your neighbour as your own body, with the utmost dignity and love.

574. For the world to continue to develop, it is essential that its inhabitants speak one language of love, peace and mutual service; then surely the longed-for reconciliation will be suddenly restored by God.

575. Let us hope that the promotion of tolerance and the maintenance of friendly ties will bear abundant fruit for the whole world.

576. 155 Let us speak of this in the language of love, blurring the boundaries of meaning and avoiding pointless arguments.

577. 156 [Reconciliation is necessary] between people of different faiths...

578. 157 Offer help to every child who is hated and oppressed by their parents.

579. In my heart, I wish that no child should be left to fend for themselves, beaten and abused by cruel parents.

580. Do not turn the other cheek, and do not forgive your wife for being abused by her fathers or husbands.

581. Neither children nor wives should turn the other cheek and endure abuse from their violent husbands, nor should they apologise to them and allow themselves to be humiliated for years on end.

582. 158 All court cases concerning domestic violence, and arguments between husband and wife that lead to violence, should not be kept quiet but brought to light, and the perpetrators must be punished.

583. No domestic torment suffered by a wife, be it abuse at the hands of her husband, must be concealed, and the bonds of an abusive husband must not be allowed to bind an abused wife.

584. All those who vent their hatred, act under the guise of violence, and are enslaved by the spirit of abusing their wives and children, are dogs and criminals.

585. Women, wives and brides who oppose their husbands in matters contrary to the law of 'love for one's neighbour' should be happy.

586. Let a woman murmur, complain and spread the word that she is being wronged – then the wise man, sent by God, will certainly not allow her to be beaten and enslaved.

587. A wife who speaks kind words is not enough for a husband who is aggressive; they will always be dissatisfied and will complain about their wives.

588. Do not allow anyone to be wronged, be it an old man, a pregnant woman, a parent, a child or a woman.

589. 159 Problems arising from a husband's violence towards his wife must not be concealed, otherwise the situation will worsen.

590. See for yourselves how many women are oppressed by their cruel husbands, so do not allow injustice to spread.

591. Surely God does not permit violence, for the world before the Flood was full of violence and hatred; see for yourselves in the Holy Scriptures that this world was drowned.

592. Those criminals who beat their wives and abuse them will certainly end up in the fire, and there they will find neither salvation nor comfort!

593. People seek an easy solution to every problem, so they fall into the trap of sects and the manipulation of those who derive material and spiritual benefits from this.

594. For our inner peace of mind, it is better not to trust people who exalt themselves above God; those who place themselves on a par with God lead people down a broad path that leads to ruin and the destruction of their relationship with God.

595. 161 Fanaticism fuelled by religious motives destroys families, destroys social bonds and destroys one's relationship with God.

596. 162 That is why it is essential to worship God and honour Him every day, not just on one chosen day.

597. It is good to flee from false piety and a lack of joy.

598. Do not deprive yourselves of the joy of life, the presence of your wives and children.

599. How much more important it is to spend time with your children and wives, to love them, and to be present in their lives.

600. Turn away, husbands, from indulging yourselves and failing to meet the needs of your children and wives, and may he be cursed who neglects his family both materially and emotionally.

601. 164 Not only is compassion needed, but we must roll up our sleeves to combat violence and eradicate all neglect and violence within families and amongst children, and to protect wives from harm.

602. 165 Every day we must become better people to reflect the divine qualities of the prophets.

603. By showing love to our neighbours, we love God, we draw love and joy from helping those who suffer, and we become like God.

604. Here and now we are to become better people, filled with the Holy Spirit like olive lamps, so that we may express the divine qualities of the prophets in our lives.

605. 166 I am changing my garment so that it may be cleaner and whiter than before, so that all

606. God helps me to fight against my evil inclinations, and Elah carries the burdens of my life with me.

607. When I pray to God and do penance, I feel that God is drawing near to me, and so I speak with God.

608. He bestows upon me His guiding spirit, so that I may not stray into sin, and by remaining in bodily and spiritual purity, I allow God's angels to dwell in my chambers.

609. God's grace is freely given to everyone, but God also expects us to excel in good deeds.

610. The effort we put into good deeds is necessary so that we may reflect the divine attributes with which God the Father has endowed us.

611. Divine grace alone is not enough, for a person cannot be saved merely by faith in the existence of the Most High; it also requires effort in performing righteous deeds to manifest the fruits of the Holy Spirit.

612. Striving for excellence in righteous deeds does not stem from a desire to show off one's piety, but from love for God, love for people, and a healthy love for oneself.

613. 168 To be perfect like God, we must undergo many trials in life, but to encounter God on our journey, it is not enough to profess Him with our lips alone; we must profess Him through righteous deeds, trusting in His boundless love – His grace.

614. 169 Nor do we have the right to condemn and accuse our neighbours, but we must be merciful, just as God Himself is.

615. Every person guided by God will not mistreat their neighbour, but will love them, just as they would treat the animals that God has entrusted to our care.

616. We should not judge criminals ourselves, but they should be judged in accordance with the law of the land, and the punishment should be all the more severe the more heinous the crime.

617. Such crimes include the deliberate taking of life, incitement to persecution, and the spreading of hate speech.

618. There is not the slightest doubt that the Holy City of Jerusalem was holy, but for us the holiest are the inhabitants of those lands where the Oneness of God is revered and God is loved beyond measure, where God dwells and is present.

619. In vain do they hoard treasures, gather trifles, thinking that by being greedy for worldly things they will be satisfied, yet they depart with emptiness within.

620. These are the leaves of the tree of life that heal nations; that is, love shown to one another, uniting in friendship, and refraining from waging war.

621. May these divine leaves heal the wounds of humanity; may they also heal the scars of those who engage in disputes; may they heal discord and hatred.

622. He, Elah, is the leaves, the healing herbs for the sick; in our sorrow, He is our Healer. May the Father of the Book, who gives power to the leaves, cause them to become healing herbs and medicines; may our prayers be heard, to heal the incurable, O Elah of our salvation.

623. From the treasury of divine healing flows nourishing water, which soothes torn, despairing hearts and heals wounded souls.

624. Whoever administers medicine to a sick soul, whoever fights against quarrels and disputes, will surely restrain their vain thoughts and turn towards love for their neighbour, so that they may love their own body just as much; this is the medicine.

625. Then, in the shadow of one who refrains from hatred and indecency, he shall shine like the morning star.

626. In such a man there shall be no eclipse nor corruption, for in his shadow great greatness shall be accomplished, and there his mind shall be transformed by the grace of God and the Creator.

627. In the shadow of Your wings, O Elah, Uncreated One, we have come to seek refuge.

628. We lift up our hands to praise You, the Humble One; in the joy of my heart I rejoice in Elah of All.

629. Behold how much good Elah, the Almighty, has done for us.

630. We are a drop in the ocean of goodness; blessed is He, the Creator, who sends forth waters to the rivers, flowing within Him with the waters of righteous deeds, deserving of all that Elah, the Benevolent, expects.

631. Behold, do this to please God, our only Judge.

632. Serve those whom you love, and those whom your heart despises; such is the path of holiness.

633. Keep away from selfishness and all debauchery; a mind filled with purity is closer to heaven and the presence of the messengers of heaven.

634. A heart filled with every virtue, far from mere greed, far from selfishness, far from pride – such a soul awakens in us humility and a love for our neighbour full of wonder.

635. There is no greater gift to humanity than loving one's neighbour as oneself.

636. Do not resign yourself to fate if it is unpleasant to you and you cannot bear it; make every effort to transform your unhappy situation into a place amongst the wise and those who care for distinction both before God and before men.

637. Do not boast if you are too wise, and do not acknowledge your greatness before people; it is the will of Elah that you should behave in this way.

638. Control your anger and do not succumb to any lust that might take hold of you; drive away all the devils that whisper vain temptations of wickedness into your ear, and keep away from that which is fleeting, sinful and worldly.

639. 174 Every soul that is sober, moderate and far from licentiousness is more valuable than the possession of all possible goods and wealth.

640. Those who measure by their own standards of decency should not, either, judge others by standards imposed by their own minds; God will judge all people; do not judge, and do not consider yourselves gods.

641. Just as God loves animals, do not harm any animal as you would harm a human being.

642. Do not treat animals as your property; your heart must not treat another human being as an object.

643. There is not the slightest benefit to be gained from people who do not turn away from the path of murder, who shed innocent blood; such people are to be despised, and when they are despised, being humiliated, they must improve their conduct.

644. Fly to the shores of your Elah's knowledge like a bird soaring over the boundless sea.

645. So spread your wings and soar like a bird towards the heavens, reaching for the light of the Spirit itself, which permeates the very heart of God and His boundless love.

646. Speak out loud and do not hesitate to tell others – thanks to Elah I have spread my wings, we have become birds thanks to His mercy, we have come to know the limits of God's love and respect for our neighbour.

647. We have spread the wings of flashes of insight and have become cherubim.

648. Let it be a crime for you not to punish those who beat their wives, abuse their children and despise women.

649. Such people are indeed far from the face of God, for they have stolen His countenance; they call themselves wise, but they are fools and ugly images of His glory.

650. Such are the signs in heaven and on earth, to proclaim the good news to all the nations of the earth; let no one reject this counsel and these teachings.

651. 177 Be filled with all wisdom from above, seek God's love, comfort one another, care for the poor and the marginalised; this is my message and these are the commandments which God has given me.

652. Come out of spiritual darkness and turn towards the Light of righteousness in God; seek in every person all that is noble, but above all, be filled with the gifts of love and help for your neighbours.

653. And to those who suffer, those who are neglected, and those who are sad, give joy and bring the gifts of warm words of love.

654. Such is the Kingdom of God amongst you, when you become an example of holiness to strangers, not to flatter your own selfish soul, but so that the hope of joy and love may flourish and not fade away.

655. Let every good deed flow from within you, and bestow upon all a compassion that reaches to heaven, so that the sweet fragrance of your noble deeds may draw near the presence of God's angels.

656. 179 It is best when one finds support in another: a wife in her husband, and elderly parents in their children; it is a duty and the greatest joy for you to love your parents when they themselves are infirm, poor and destitute.

657. 180 And those who hate what I preach will persist in their opposition.

658. And what Elah showed me is that all violence must be avoided; for violence reigned harshly as in the days of Noah, so too today; therefore, refrain from all hostility, hatred and violence towards one another.

659. 181 Do not serve me, but serve your neighbours, strangers and all who are oppressed.

660. Serve God and all those oppressed by men; serve those who are weak in body and spirit, that they may have a treasure with God and receive from Him an eternal reward.

661. 182 All prophets who claim to be divine shall fall before the throne of God to breathe their last; no prophet who claims to be God may be admitted into the assembly of Elah nor reach its gates.

662. 183 Anyone who hears and rejects the Gate and my message—the law of love and equality of all people—will be blotted out of the books of life, and anyone who accepts its teachings of love and equality of all people will surely be found among God's angels and sit in the Kingdom of God upon the thrones of princes.

God, do not forsake me in times of trial and struggle with my sinfulness, with my animal nature.

664. Give me the strength to fight against my sinful inclinations; do not let sin consume my inner being and cast me into the fires of hell?

665. 185 May my mind and body be pure; I do not wish to sin before You any longer, though my body opposes my mind; I discipline my body so that my mind may rule it, and my mind so that it may be subject to the power from on high, the power of the Holy Spirit!

666. 186 Even if the end of the world were to come tomorrow, you must continue to think of reality and not let yourself be overcome by the fear and sorrow of this mortal world.

667. 187 My God is my helper and my torch on the narrow path to holiness.

668. I am also composed and ready to lay down my life on the path of Elah.

669. I will wage a defensive war on behalf of the defenceless and will not abandon the defenceless in all their afflictions.

670. 188 It is not our faith that is unique, but Elah is unique and exalted among the nations as the One God and Ruler from the ends of the earth!

671. 189 Nothing has been altered or deleted by Elah in that which is right and which inspires the mind and body to do good.

672. Everything contained in these books of justice should bring you nothing but benefit!

673. 190 Belief in jihad is dangerous.

674. Devotion to hatred in the way of God is to be completely abolished in this Revelation and not even mentioned!

675. 191 The first Revealer was Adam, who revealed the institution of marriage and mutual love in his relationship with Eve.

676. In this way, the Revelation of Elah was established for the comfort of humanity and to bring forth all good virtues from human hearts.

677. God's Revelation is unchanging and is based on the 'golden rule' of loving one's neighbour as oneself; it is the principle of doing no harm to any human being; just as one should nurture and care for one's own body, so should we love those who hate us and those who wish us ill.

678. 192 Judgement over those who reject the laws of love and non-harm belongs to Elah; such people, who spread hatred and chaos through wars and disputes, judge themselves – and we, as God's people, have no right to judge people on the basis of their religion, but we have a duty to judge the unjust – those who shed innocent blood, and such people should be severely punished!

679. 193 Those who are truly 'unbelievers' are exposed to the fire – those who commit adultery, are licentious, are driven by greed, do not help the poor, those who abuse their wives and children, those who do evil are certainly doomed to the judgement of Elah and should not be protected or acquitted; on the contrary, evil should be purged from among the people of the unjust!

681. Nor do beautiful words expressed poetically prove that Elah revealed Himself through a particular soothsayer; on the contrary, all revelations must be in accordance with the Tanakh; no matter how many contradictions people may find in it, this Book remains the Book of Books, the foundation of all Scriptures.

682. Salvation is attained through listening, and not merely by saying that one believes in God, that one believes in His miracles.

683. If someone believes in God, yet their heart is not sober, is not sober and is not sober, their faith is in vain and fruitless.

684. We need faith in God, and we bear the most fruitful fruits of love for God, family and all humanity.

685. Those who claim to be good are worldly and walk the path of doubt, straying from the path of light and entering the path of darkness.

686. Those who stumble into sin, who do not obey the Most High, their deeds are fruitless, and their speech is like sharp venom which they spit out.

687. God will rebuke the souls that have been wounded, and He will severely punish those among the people who break the law of loving one's neighbour as oneself.

688. Cursed be the clergy, whoever teaches the Gospel and the Qur'an and elevates them above the teachings of Moses and the Book of the Father

O you governors, kings and princes of the earth, why do you turn away from the One God who fashioned you from dust?

689. Why do you call yourselves great?

690. Is not God Himself the Sovereign of the whole earth?

691. He is the Greatest Ruler over all things; He governs nations, establishes kings, and casts tyrants and despots from their thrones!

692. 198 Behold, you Jews, who base your faith on love for the teachings of the rabbis, you strive to satisfy your empty minds, whose souls are not filled with Nur d-Elah from on high.

693. By rejecting Me, you bring upon yourselves the mark of contempt from the nations, for you despise women and nations.

694. 199 How can God repay you for the punishment He has justly imposed upon you for centuries?

695. He is the best Executor; He punishes everyone who hates Him, and He blesses and raises to thrones of glory everyone who loves Him, regardless of origin, faith, skin colour or any other characteristic.

696. 200 Listen to the prophet Ezekiel, what they have proclaimed: every man is accountable to God for his own sins, and the sacrifice of Rabbi Jesus has nothing to do with this.

697. 'Whoever sins shall die.'

698. A child is not to blame for a parent's wrongdoing, nor is a parent to blame for a child's wrongdoing.

699. 'The righteousness of the righteous shall be credited to them, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be credited to them.'

Is it not true that everyone who beholds the Father in His glory shall die?

700. But do not take part in martyrdom, nor in bloody clashes, nor in protests leading to bloodshed.

701. Avoid all violence, all killing; do not maim people or animals, do not allow the blood of animals to be shed in slaughter – oppose all burnt offerings that are soon to come!

702. 202 Forgive those who wish you ill, thinking they serve God, yet they serve their own perverse minds!

703. For I am the one who warns the world against sin, and I shall not rest until I have urged people to do what is right and to reject all sins that defile the soul and the body!

704. 203 Reading that which is edifying, moral and strengthens the mind will always bring us greater benefit than idly listening to various pastors, priests, imams and other clergy.

705. Any story that is not based on facts or scientific research can be classified as a fairy tale, and this is precisely how we, as students of the Tanakh, should view the world.

706. Being sceptical by nature allows us to maintain a distance from the world around us and not be swept away by the pernicious influence of other people.

707. Neither Christian, nor Muslim, nor Jewish stories should be the subject of our contemplation; they may be regarded as curiosities, but they are not part of our faith nor the subject of our studies.

708. 204 If we do not know the meaning of a prophecy, we do not know it and do not interpret it; such caution does not lead to fanaticism, as is the case with Muslim sects or other factions.

709. Christians claim that anyone who does not believe in Jesus as the sole saviour will inevitably end up in hell; if this were the case, tracing everything back to the beginning, we would conclude that God is the sole saviour, so Jesus cannot be one; hell is a misinterpretation of the Father of the Book, and salvation can be attained directly through a person's relationship with God, without any intermediaries – Jesus, Mary, the saints, or angels.

710. 205 The ability to read a text with understanding, using reason and drawing on the Tanakh, allows us to distinguish between good and evil.

711. What we read, when translated into action, has an impact on our surroundings.

712. The key to changing any person for the better is self-awareness of the wrong committed, accepting that a mistake has been made, but also that it is worth changing one's behaviour for the better.

713. The Spirit of God fills me and speaks once more through my lips to Moses himself – preserve what is good, hold love for people in your heart, do not condemn neighbours unknown to you, and do not judge them on the basis of their spiritual knowledge or the mistakes they have made!

714. 207 Behold, my mouth, my body and my deeds bear witness to my love for humanity.

715. 208 How can you trust in human traditions and seek the face of another god besides God Himself, the One Elah of the whole earth, He who was never born nor dies!

716. 209 Was it not so from the beginning, that Eve was taken from Adam and they became one flesh, a unity, equal and indivisible in their marriage?

717. Neither Adam nor Eve exalted themselves above others, so why, husband, do you destroy the image of your wife?

718. Why then, wife, do you not trust your husband?

719. The first human couple lived in perfect harmony, in communion with God and the holy angels.

720. Truly, their marriage was a paradise for them, and the fruit of their union was the greatest blessing!

721. 210 They [Adam and Eve] were bound together by the bonds of love, just as the trees of paradise were bound together in Unity, one tree trunk firmly intertwined with another, and thus they bore the fruit of purity, care for one another, and a sense of duty to proclaim words of praise and love.

722. One was not separated from the other, and their leaves healed their souls.

723. These were souls whose leaves gathered the nourishing juices of mutual aid, mutual support and reconciliation!

724. And the juices from these leaves healed their wounds!

725. 211 There is no greater punishment from Elah than to regard a woman as inferior to a man.

726. Whoever upholds equality between men and women, such are the inhabitants of heaven here on this earth, and indeed they shall be the inhabitants of boundless light after death!

727. Those who beat, abuse and mistreat their partners and wives are surely the inhabitants of the fire; no punishment shall pass them by; they are cursed by Elah, far from His presence, so far that they shall weep in the darkness, and the fire of their wickedness shall consume them for eternity!

728. Elah is indeed the God of order and has accepted from the Book of Revelation conveyed by Moses that men and women are equal companions, that there should be no distinction between people of different skin colours; there is no need for animosity, no need for war.

729. Truly, God has commanded us to 'turn our swords into ploughshares', so that we may not meddle in the affairs of rulers, nor follow the leaders of this world, tyrants or kings of this age!

730. May dignity, equality and love flourish in the marriage of everyone who trusts in me and follows my counsel!

731. Praise everyone who acts in accordance with these admonitions, and curse everyone who rejects them and does not act in accordance with them, for such a person is a sinner before God!

732. There is not the slightest doubt that God has established equality amongst the many nations, that there is no difference between Jews and Gentiles, nor between men and women.

733. 212 It is not Elah's purpose that you should place all your faith and your whole life in me.

734. Nor is it Elah's purpose that you should regard me as a Revealer who is without sin; in truth, I am humble and never claim that I myself am without sin!

735. 213 Is it not so that the Book of Revelation of this Mother of Scriptures, which some have not yet come to know, is a 'silent book', for it is a revelation that explains the previous Scriptures and does not alter their meaning, not by a jot, nor by a single line of the Scriptures of God's previous prophets!

736. 214 Therefore, do not mock me when you do not understand, do not comprehend, and do not see what I see, which you do not see.

737. 215 Do not listen to me or to any prophet; listen to God. Do not be guided by religious affiliation; why should belonging to a religion save you if you do not sincerely give to God what is divine, and do not bless and love people?

738. I am not one who gathers followers; I show the truth, even if it hurts and is unpleasant!

739. This is my role; Elah has sent me to show you this!

740. 216 O come, peoples of the whole earth, in the footsteps of the prophets, in that which is wise and joyful, soothing to the soul and multiplying goodness!

741. I have not yet proclaimed to the peoples of the whole earth the splendour of God Yahweh, and when I do, they will surely turn away from their idols, the idols of hatred, selfishness and mutual contempt.

742. They will turn to the source of Yahweh's wisdom, return to Him, worshipping Him as the One God without intermediaries; they will walk among the nations in peace, in peace within families and marriages.

743. They will turn their faces towards the Elah of the whole world, cast aside selfish thoughts, and live with a desire to help their neighbours, treating one another with dignity, having 'hearts of flesh, not of stone'.

Be courageous, go and polish your mirror, so that you may be pure before God.

744. He, the Almighty, has made your soul pure; He has poured Başre d-Nur – the sparks of life – into your breast, so shine; let your mirror shine; from the realm of mysteries you shall receive all forgiveness from the God of the worlds.

745. Polish your mirror – wipe away all impurity with the strength of your spirit and receive wisdom, and perhaps that sublime beauty which the Holy Blessed One of the four realms of God has instilled in you will shine in your breast, as though we were all one messenger of the Benevolent, Most High God.

746. Do you not look into the heart of man, do you not look with human eyes, judging one another without reflection?

747. They, those who have strayed from the path of God—the people of Lot, the people of Noah's time, the people of Pharaoh's time—have not cleansed their hearts of the stain of sin and attachment to falsehood, hypocrisy, hatred and violence.

748. They did not turn to the source of truth, which is God Yahweh, but were guided in their selfishness by a craving for the mundane and the transitory.

749. But you and I, as saints, shall 'polish' our souls like mirrors, to rise to the heaven of knowing God here on earth and to experience paradise and His joy here, amidst the darkness of this world; we are the light for the world that destroys spiritual darkness!

750. Tell me, my dear friend, of Elah of Love: even if all manner of adversity awaits you, do not weep over your head, even if you must forsake it to serve Elah of Greatness.

751. I speak to you of the heights of the love and mercy of Elah of all worlds!

752. Why should I weep over my suffering? I trust in You, O Elah, God of great love; I rely on Your mercy.

753. You are my salvation; I know that You will never forsake me.

754. O, serve one another; give your money as gifts to the poor and the needy, to those who are worthy, to those who do not beg to deceive you.

755. 221 Consider equality between men and women to be the greatest value, for it serves the good of the family and society.

756. Verily, Elah desires your independence of thought and that you should not rely on man in what seems right to you.

757. Among the People of the Book are those who merely pray, read the scriptures without thinking, do not lead a life worthy of holiness, and do not help their neighbours or the poor.

758. 223 So when you fast for Elah during the 19-day fast, promise that you will devote your resources, strength and money, which you can set aside for this purpose, to the poor amongst you and amongst those who dwell within your gates!

759. 224 It is not the greatest wickedness to forbid all forms of entertainment, provided they do not lead to addiction!

760. Be wise and level-headed, and do not let yourself be drawn into gambling!

761. 225 Do not do evil to harm someone or sadden their soul!

762. Truly, God curses anyone who inflicts pain upon another soul and harms the innocent!

763. 226 Since time immemorial, one man has been destined for one woman; there is no doubt that arousing desire in women for women and in men for men is a sin; God has allowed such people to remain celibate for the rest of their days; anyone with sense should understand this!

764. Two men cannot make love; it is debauchery, just as two women cannot make love; it is debauchery!

765. 227 All sinners are the same; all on earth are by nature unjust. The Spirit of God calls all people to repentance and to turn away from the false paths of selfishness!

766. 228 Thus, all who are righteous and do good deeds shall be inhabitants of Paradise here on earth and in the life to come, whilst those who take pleasure in iniquity and commit it shall be inhabitants of the spiritual fire; such shall be far from the presence of God and His holy angels.

767. 229 I have already affirmed that the desire of my soul is the reconciliation of Jews and Arabs, children and fathers; so why do you not reconcile and cease shedding blood for one another?

768. But in reality, the Jews still regard the Arabs as enemies, and the Arabs regard the Jews as enemies, and in this way they make Mount Elah a curse.

769. 230 In their folly, each of them who draws the sword against a brother or a stranger inflicts harm upon one another; instead of perceiving suffering, in their blindness they are firmly bound by the futility, worldliness and folly of their minds!

770. Their selfishness and hatred pursue them like death, war and despair!

771. 231 Love between people cannot disappear, and hatred, anxiety, mutual resentment, jealousy and envy must be banished from the human heart.

772. You must strive to purify your minds of all vanity and mundane things that cause quarrels, wars and hatred!

773. All those who are the cause of quarrels and wars, who are violent, angry and do not restrain their aggression, are enemies of God.

774. They are indeed devils, those whom God has cast out of His mind as godless, the least worthy of desire; they are the inhabitants of hell, for they have committed iniquity and shed innocent blood.

775. On the other hand, the inhabitants of paradise, in the presence of God and His ceaseless ardent love, will be those who reconcile their neighbours and are the cause of the spread of peace and harmony.

776. Those who restrain their anger, are self-controlled and do not pursue the desire for supremacy, shall be the inhabitants of paradise, in union with Elah for ever, for they have not shed innocent blood and it has never occurred to them to kill a man.

777. We are the servants of Elah; we rejoice in harmony and condemn intemperance, hatred and aggression.

778. We seek refuge in Elah to protect ourselves from the devils who bring hatred, discord and strife.

779. These fools regard the venom of hatred as a remedy for their vengeance; truly, their path is the path of Satan!

780. Aggression is fuel for their selfishness; anger is fuel for their twisted minds; they are afflicted by a sickness of the soul, a true sickness of the mind.

781. These weak souls drink from the bitterness of war and, instead of drinking the medicine that eases the pain of suffering, they do not realise that only forgiveness, unity and mercy heal the wounds.

782. He who harms no one, he who shares his wealth with the poor of his own people and with strangers.

783. He who nobly protects those he loves, his brother and his enemy, without seeking any earthly gain—these are truly the army of God's angels, the great servants of God, the saints of the Most High.

784. The majority, who bring discord, war and bloody strife, turn away from God's love and are led into darkness.

785. They wander like lost souls, mute, deaf and blind.

In the Tanakh, it is unacceptable to invoke and adhere to rules that were in force in the past.

787. Therefore, all the wars, hatred and hostility towards women, and cruelty towards animals described in the Tanakh are unacceptable and should be banished from our minds; it is a crime to accept these stories and their principles as the true word of God.

788. The books of the Tanakh are equally inspired by God, but they must be interpreted wisely, not treated as a source of hatred towards strangers and women, or as a pretext for wars or cruelty towards animals.

789. Any principles contained in these books that defy reason and destroy tolerance should be rejected.

790. Just as I understand this Book, anyone who rejects the Revelation should consider what they are losing, what curse they incur instead of receiving the boundless blessings from Elah over the Elahs.

791. 236 It is God's intention that all people should come to know Him, and that people themselves should build His temple here on earth, within their physical bodies.

792. 237 There is nothing more repulsive to God than the endless repetition of sacrifices which He, in His mercy, has endured.

793. Certain fables cloud people's minds, and those who walk in darkness follow, spiritually blind, towards their own ruin.

794. The teachers who follow them naively believe the lies of rulers and manipulators, who are interested only in power and money.

795. Some clergy contradict themselves and therefore cannot be trusted or supported.

796. .

797. Anyone who, being a human being, claims the names of God is indeed a liar and a blasphemer.

798. And no matter what this liar and blasphemer does, his good deeds will neither save him nor wash away his sins.

The spirit of brotherhood and peace

799. One must turn one's gaze away from animal nature, the filth covering the soul that has accumulated during man's absence from the world.

800. Far more important than ablutions and prayer is the instilling of a spirit of brotherhood and peace amongst people, so that the bonds of humanity may be strengthened, not severed by anger or hatred.

801. Among the People of the Book, one seeks in vain for peace, mutual care or friendship.

802. Their rituals and superfluous customs destroy the unity they have built up over the years through human, rather than divine, means.

803. The age-old divisions between sects in Christianity, Islam and Judaism have been and continue to be a cause of discord, hatred and unnecessary wars.

804. To prevent this, we must forget the differences that divide us; we must instil a spirit of tolerance and reject the spirit of fanaticism.

805. As for the festivals celebrated by the descendants of Abraham, there are various differences between them, and each of these groups claims that only it knows the truth.

806. But in reality, it makes no difference to God which day is observed; for God, every day of the year is the Sabbath, not just one chosen day.

807. Everyone rests in their own way, according to their knowledge and understanding of the scriptures.

808. 243 Some people are so absorbed in materialism that they cannot take their eyes off what is dead and transient.

809. 244 Some Buddhists pray, yet they have no regard for the sick man who is hungry and begging on the street because of poverty.

810. They pray for their own ruin, and their prayer is not heard by the Most High, for they have forgotten to help the poor and those living in misery.

811. 245 An unbeliever who does much good is worth far more than a believer who prays and calls upon God as his Saviour.

812. 246 Stupid and ignorant people seek hope in things that perish and are fleeting, seeking momentary pleasure and joy that will pass away.

813. 247 Every person is born innocent, but as time passes and under the bad influence of others, as they grow up, they often choose darkness over light.

814. The nature of such people is contrary to God's desire that man should lead a holy life, far removed from the animalistic and fleeting events of life.

815. 248 It has been and remains beyond human comprehension to grasp the meaning of existence and destiny.

816. People have been pondering and reflecting on this subject for countless centuries.

817. God's purpose is indeed to serve people, so that His love and joy may not fade away, but spread amongst them.

818. God does not command, but sincerely pays attention to every person; He is a patient listener, not an angry and cruel judge.

819. His name, expressed in love, truly reflects His Majesty and Power, which shall endure for ever.

820. Those who truly seek another God, those who do not believe in the existence of God, who consciously mock, believe only in their own strength and in no one else, yet through their own strength they cannot free themselves from pain and sorrow.

821. These people are truly poor, for they think that the material and mortal world can free them from suffering and all misery; it can do so, but only for a brief moment.

822. Their own ego becomes their God.

823. Mock and distrust to your heart's content, for you are not slaves to people or religion.

824. If someone is a slave to religion, they have probably not chosen God, but religion with all its rituals and attachment to transitory things.

825. His true peace will reign amongst people and cause them to seek peace themselves; wars will cease forever, and swords will be beaten into ploughshares.

826. There will be no more burnt offerings or sacrifices, for the Jews will understand that the God of the whole earth demands nothing beyond measure, that He is the sole ruler, the One who loves and forgives transgressions, requiring no burnt offerings or sacrifices offered in prayer or in honour of God's name.

827. He has inscribed in my heart, inscribed in the treasury of my inner being, a love for every human being and respect for all; He has commanded all people to love one another despite all differences.

828. 254 I shall be more praised than cursed.

829. And see nothing holy in me, for no man on earth is worthy to call himself holy and sinless; otherwise, he is a liar.

830. To pursue self-love [is] – a choice of evil.

831. Holy Revelation commands that one should not approach any other 'god' apart from Yahweh, who is from everlasting to everlasting – that is, the Infinitely One and Indivisible, who is neither born nor dies, who has not taken on human form and is unlike anything.

832. 256 God judges according to one's own deeds, as the prophet Ezekiel said: the son shall not bear the father's guilt, nor the father the son's.

833. In accordance with this principle, the Christian view that God punishes humanity for original sin is groundless and destroys the relationship and bond with the Father, who loves humanity.

834. 257 Just as Muslims offer sacrifices (qurbān) in honour of the sacrifice of Ishmael, some Jews are convinced of the necessity of resuming endless sacrifices in the future temple established for God; no man should support such an act.

835. Elah desires no sacrifices or burnt offerings, except for sins committed inadvertently; this has been reiterated in my words and confirmed in this unchanging Revelation.

836. I have been instructed to tell people not to worship the sun nor to bow down to the Eucharist as to Baal – the false God; whoever exalts and worships the host in the Eucharist worships the sun – worships Tammuz, and the false God whom he worships is Jesus Christ.

837. Christians sincerely believe their clergy when they say that Jesus lives, is the Saviour and has the power to save, but Rabbi Jesus is not alive; they worship the illusion of their own minds – the angel of Rome – Satan, who performs miracles, deceives and steals the honour due to God, against His will.

838. This is contrary to the inspiration of the Tanakh, in which God warns us not to turn our eyes towards the worship of the sun, not to worship that which is earthly and sinful.

839. We must not worship any man or woman, any image of a man or woman, any animal, nor must we worship angels.

840. "16 Lest you be corrupted and make for yourselves an idol, an image of any form, whether of a man or a woman, 17 or of any animal on the earth, or of any bird that flies in the air, 18 or any creature that moves on the ground, or any fish in the waters beneath the earth' .

841. God is the One who acts through sincere prayer, whose miracles are not for show, and who loves selflessly as the Father of all people.

842. Why, then, should you seek other sources of help?

843. Elah is the One who will protect you from all evil; He is your Protector and refuge from misfortune.

844. 260 The result of 'divine judgement' and this holy revelation is to prevent the spread of hatred amongst mankind, and people are commanded not to corrupt themselves nor to destroy the eternal and unchanging Decalogue of Moses.

845. In their folly, they think that the Mahdi means the saviour, but God alone is the saviour.

846. They have gone astray by accepting the corrupt teachings of Zoroastrianism, so do all Christians, Muslims and Jews expect that a man can be their saviour?

847. What a disgusting claim!

848. I speak and write only what God, in His wisdom, shows me and reveals to me in the pages of His Holy Book.

849. Swear to one another – to proclaim the Oneness of God, provided that family matters and duties must first be settled.

850. 263 Thus God has shown me that a true sect always presents itself in a better light and whitewashes the errors of its founders.

851. I am not your leader; I merely describe the foundations of faith so that you may follow the right path.

852. I do not command you to neglect your families; on the contrary, service to God must come second; the most important thing is that you first serve your loved ones – your children, parents and wives.

853. Do not neglect your families for the sake of God; preach the cause of God when you feel inclined to do so or when your circumstances allow; we are not commanded to preach God ceaselessly – day and night; this is forbidden and immoral in the eyes of the righteous God.

854. 264 God has endowed us with healthy humility, so that we do not exalt ourselves in place of God; He alone is worthy of being remembered and exalted.

855. We also need a change of heart; our conscience must become sensitive to the power of the Holy Spirit, then we shall see that we need no building, nor even a creed, to walk with God and enjoy His presence.

856. I do not exalt myself nor do I establish a hierarchy that would bind people in the snares and bondage of other people.

857. 265 We must not read the Hebrew Bible through fanatical spectacles, but we must seek in it wisdom and verses of love, so that our spirit may rise to unity and union with God forever.

858. Everything I write here becomes a sacred commentary; everything I write is wise and helpful in leading a righteous life.

859. 266 I am not telling you what to do or what rules to follow; you may accept or reject this, it all depends on your free will.

860. Do not impose your will on anyone – whether through diet, dress or other actions; everyone is accountable to God, and everyone has a conscience to keep their mind pure.

861. God does not need slaves who merely repeat prayers and follow rules to please other people.

862. One should not allow oneself to be unduly enslaved by religions, priests and rituals – all of this is harmful and constitutes an unnecessary burden.

863. 267 No one is allowed to exalt themselves above others; the Revealer is no one special, except that God has shown him how to interpret the Word of God.

864. There is no difference between the Revealer of God and ordinary people; all are equally sinful and fall into sin.

865. 268 God commands that no one should decide for another person how they should behave, whom they should marry, or what they should do with the faith they possess and profess.

866. In Eastern countries, girls may still be married to adult men – this is unacceptable and constitutes an abomination for anyone who commits such a crime.

867. God will indeed punish anyone who commits the crime of lusting after children, animals, and abstinence.

868. 269 I made a pledge before Elah that I would preach freedom in faith and would not allow Elah to be preached for money.

869. God has warned me that no material goods can satisfy God, let alone money or human wealth.

870. God is not a man and does not need money, just as we do not need clergy to decide what we should believe, how we should act and how we should behave.

871. 270 I urge you all to be sceptical and to harbour doubts, if you have them.

872. 271 You must not condemn one another or bear witness to your lives before others, for this is the aim of Christians.

873. I do not intend to impose upon you what I believe, and if you believe in what is good and right through this Revelation, do not impose this message on others, but rather live your lives to the best of your ability, thereby becoming a light for people and multiplying justice amongst them.

874. 272 Even if someone holds a negative view of me or of a member of our faith, it is not permissible to cut believers off from unity with their family, friends and spouses.

875. Whoever leaves the ranks of our faith, no member shall ever shun another person who has left our cause; on the contrary, show love and kindness to all people.

876. 273 Be steadfast in wisdom, seek wisdom...

877. Any spirit that preaches fear does not come from God; any intimidation or deriving pleasure from the power of fear does not come from God.

878. 274 Do not call anyone your enemy, neither Jews, nor Muslims, nor Christians; the difference between this Revelation and them lies in the fact that they have excluded reason from their thinking and often follow the doctrines of the clergy, not strictly submitting to the Divine Revelators whose messages God, in His unchanging wisdom, sent in the past.

879. 275 All people across the earth, regardless of skin colour, are equal.

880. To repeat what the Revelators whom God sent in the past have said, whether they be white or African, all are equally intelligent and capable of acquiring knowledge.

881. Calling anyone a gutter-level insult has brought no glory to anyone, but only sorrow and despair; do not call one another by vulgar words, but use pure words and words expressing mutual gratitude and admiration.

882. God loves diversity and has no objection to members of the human family intermingling with one another.

883. 276 I would also like to mention that none of our believers should mix faith with human power, for mixing these two things is harmful to us.

884. 277 Take care not to fall into confusion, chaos and fear of natural disasters, earthquakes that will strike the earth.

885. 278 Without this understanding and mutual love, hatred will spread throughout the world.

886. 279 The Spirit of God prompts me to speak what is right, not what people like and want to hear.

887. God has no intermediaries, and I say this with full conviction: neither Jesus, nor Mary, nor the saints can take the place of the Most High God, the Creator of the Universe.

888. Everything that is unclean, smoky, and excessive dependence on alcohol is not even worthy of mention or imitation.

889. See for yourselves how much quarrelling and confusion there is amongst Christians; is there not even unity amongst them regarding baptism and the Lord's Supper?

890. They like to say that 'devils' have confused their minds, whilst in reality they act lawlessly, accepting the fables of the four Gospels, just as Muslims accept the fables of the Quran as a valuable and reliable source for their claims.

891. The time will come when everyone will forget their fables and accept the laws and God as He is – that He is One, Unchanging, Indivisible, equal to none.

892. 282 Fight in the way of God for the sake of ordinary people, the poor and those who have been wronged, and then the fountain of God will flow from the Temple of Elah, and His love will spread to all people.

893. His stream of the water of life shall not run dry and shall be unquenchable.

894. O yes, the water of life, sweet water, shall flow from the Holy of Holies to cleanse and renew the ruined earth, so that what is faded, parched and sinful, what is transient, may be replaced by water that nourishes – giving life to the fish.

895. O God, how great You are, that You have sent me into the world to give hope to the nations and to exalt You among the worlds.

896. May your souls now be healed, just as those ordinary fish swimming in the sea, which were dead, have become full of life.

897. God has commanded me to continue writing and working until my cause triumphs fully.

898. It is clear that the Tanakh itself requires a distinction to be made between prophecies, historical events, or outdated commandments and prohibitions – which are to be replaced by love for God and people, and this is more important than observing ossified and restrictive laws.

899. We must understand the Hebrew Bible in both a figurative and a literal sense, and this depends on the context of the narrative.

900. 284 The murder of the innocent is not encouraged; on the contrary, all anger, hatred and murder must be condemned and presented as a crime.

901. 285 The wickedness of this city [Sodom] stemmed from the fact that its inhabitants cared nothing for strangers, were extremely selfish, boasted of their wealth, and instead of showing hospitality to the poor and strangers – they raped every stranger they encountered to humiliate them and assert their power over them.

902. The example of this city helps us understand that no sin, whether small or great, nor any crime, can be justified.

903. It is difficult for us to understand why a valley full of every blessing, enriched with magnificent vegetation like Paradise, was supposedly destroyed by God.

904. We should learn a lesson from this parable: that every sin is destructive; that a city ignorant of God and His laws undermines the foundations of society, and the backbone of society is weakened; and that whoever destroys families and is at the mercy of pleasures and desires awaits destruction, just like the city in the parable.

905. 286 We should humbly study the Holy Scriptures [the Bible] to discover their true meaning, rather than being guided by impulse and fanaticism.

906. Nevertheless, negligence, selfishness and all forms of crime bring ‘God’s punishment’ and judgement upon humanity if it fails to observe God’s laws and seeks other ways to justify its crimes.

907. 288 Even pagans, who do not know the commandments of Moses, know full well what is good and what is evil, so they will live in accordance with how they were brought up and how they responded to God’s call.

908. 289 Just as Lot’s wife looked back at the city of iniquity, dripping with spiritual filth and materialism, so too should we not turn away from love for our neighbour and for God, turning instead towards what is mundane and fleeting.

909. Lot’s wife was turned into a pillar of salt; she became, figuratively speaking, indifferent to the call of the Holy Spirit – the spark of God’s guidance; she turned away from helping and bearing the burdens of her family, choosing materialism and wealth instead of helping her neighbours and persevering in improving the lives of her loved ones.

910. Thus, any motives that lead us to focus on ourselves rather than on helping our neighbours and those in need inevitably turn us into a pillar of salt, a pillar of ignorance and selfishness.

911. 290 Any lust, whether of women towards men or of men towards women, unless bound by marriage, is harmful, destroying true purity and love.

912. 291 Rape is something far more serious than mere jealousy.

913. Rape is, figuratively speaking, tantamount to the murder of an innocent person.

914. 292 It is the privilege of every man not only to father children, but also to care for them, to provide them with everything they need, and to support them in all their cares and trials.

915. 293 He [God] is the Spirit who does not seek to kill a child, but to protect children from all harm and the difficulties of life.

916. 294 There is nothing more cruel than murder and the pursuit of vengeance and power over people who have not come to know the Oneness of God, and even over those who have come to know and understand it.

917. It is obvious that the murder of innocent people, even if they commit acts of desecration or rape against women, cannot justify their killing.

918. There is nothing more cruel and inhuman than burning a person alive for any act they have committed, be it heresy, adultery or immorality.

919. Therefore, burning people alive can never be justified or ordered.

920. 296 When people love materialism, as was the case in the time of the Pharaoh, it brought them greater instability and destruction, because they chose to enslave themselves rather than humbly come to God and ask Him for forgiveness.

921. God is Elah, who excels in miracles and has the Power to do things beyond comprehension!

922. What sense is there in those who are born again in one place dying immediately upon entering the path of life?

923. Elah is the God of the resurrection of the body – there is no doubt about this.

924. Not to believe in the resurrection of the body and to reject it means not to believe in God's promises, His love, His Last Judgement, and submission to His Reign in eternity – the reunification of humanity with God.

925. 298 There is a need to promote all the virtues essential for the development of the human spirit...

926. It is not God's intention that one faith should prevail over another; Elah's true purpose is to guide people towards all righteousness and to remind everyone that He is One and Indivisible.

927. 300 Nor is it in God's nature to blame the followers of other religions.

928. God is the giver of peace of mind and tolerance, and He will not allow people to shed blood despite their differences.

929. Nor is there peace on earth; it has been taken from the earth because of blasphemies against the earth, its love for humanity, its care; it is being destroyed and polluted by the sins of its inhabitants.

930. God is the Arbiter of nations; He destroys war and commands the destruction of weapons.

931. There is no better piety than adorning oneself with good deeds and following God's will; a life lived in accordance with one's own purity and nobility is the best; a life lived in accordance with a conscience that is not corrupted by sin is the most precious.

932. One could write an infinite number of books, sermons and teachings, but if the memory of sin, passions and lust is not removed from the mind, we labour in vain, we learn in vain.

933. Words alone are not enough; effort, sobriety and self-discipline are needed to resist temptation.

934. Temptations come from within ourselves, so wash the filth of lust from your minds; cast aside debauchery and the greed of the flesh.

935. 302 Love all people, and especially your families; let all coldness between children and parents disappear.

936. Let unceasing care and concern grow among you, and let all punishments be replaced by admonitions, so as not to hurt or humiliate.

937. God has not the slightest need or intention to harm children by word or deed.

938. Certainly, mothers and fathers should be patient and loving from the bottom of their hearts, rather than angry, judgemental and distrustful towards those they love and who are part of their family.

939. Truly loving parents surround their children with love; they do not pity them or punish them for trifles.

940. 303 May the waters of life flow in the families of those who truly worship God.

941. They should fear Him, provided they do not cause misfortune or neglect one another.

942. In the comfort of your homes, let all minds be directed towards showing respect to your elders, to your parents who cared for you, protected you from misfortune, guided you in love, and sought every good in you.

943. Do not chase after what is dead and fleeting; do not chase after carnal desires, if you wish to be loved and truly appreciated by the infinite hosts of angels of light.

944. 304 There is no doubt that the poor should not hide their poverty from the rich.

945. Let the rich lend to the poor all that they have, so that they may survive; there is not the slightest doubt that God has commanded that the wealth of those who are generous, willingly giving their surplus to those who live in poverty, should be distributed.

946. Spare no effort in helping one another.

947. Do not think of worldly gains, or of the power wielded by the leaders of this world, which is illusory and fleeting.

948. There is not the slightest doubt that Elah leads us to the kingdom of His immeasurable glory and that here, on earth, He makes us masters of our own conscience, so that we may rule our passions with dignity, and not allow ourselves to be misled or deceived by the dominion of our own selfishness.

949. 305 Do not wish upon others what you yourself sow and reap, yet which does not grow; do not bring them straw, but bring them all the abundant fruits of your labour.

950. Do all that is good to those whom you love and to those whom you do not love; such is the reward for those who are truly obedient to Elah, who persevere in His purpose, which has the power to deliver from all oppression and from all sin.

951. This is the power of God, to uproot the weeds of all unrighteousness and to plant the fragrant flowers of reconciliation, friendship and love in our minds for everyone, near and far, stranger or kin, man or woman—it matters not; respect all, treat them equally.

952. 306 Do not judge between yourselves and God regarding good and evil deeds; trust in justice and do not allow injustice to prevail, lest the innocent be murdered – do not even entertain such a thought, do not speak of it, and do not cry out about it.

953. Such is God's will: to truly love all people, to be merciful and forgiving towards all, whether worthy or unworthy.

954. 307 Nor judge unjustly if you do not know someone, if you have not experienced reconciliation with yourself – do you judge in order to appear more important?

955. Does God divide people into better and worse?

956. Or do people divide themselves, building walls between one another?

957. God does indeed hate sin, but He neither permits nor commands it to harm sinners.

958. 308 God truly protects those who are righteous, those who love one another, those who do not allow hatred to take root, those who respect their wives and children, those who treat their parents with dignity.

959. These are all those whom Elah truly loves and protects.

960. There is no worse 'death' than a lack of reconciliation with Elah, and there is no worse spiritual separation than a love of inequality, being the cause of division amongst those who ought to be strengthened and comforted by encouragement and a kind word.

961. Thus, Elah has truly placed in my heart a love for all people, loving the world too, so as not to be the cause of spiritual 'death', nor to become a cause of hatred and discord.

962. 310 There is no more ardent desire than to renounce oneself, one's weaknesses and selfishness, in order to serve one's family, those whom one truly loves, cares for and will remember forever.

963. 311 Truly, let your selfishness die.

964. Divine revelation grows and expands from a lower level to a higher one.

965. There is therefore no doubt that God reveals all truths gradually, so that shame and wrath may not befall those who do not believe.

966. Thus, whoever gathers the fruits from the tree of knowledge of this Revelation shall gather the sweet fruit of the knowledge of God.

967. He will not be troubled nor frown; he will run joyfully through the meadows, gathering the flowers of peace and all virtues.

968. Gather, then, the fruits from the tree of life in your garden; assemble in one place to worship Elah sincerely, and you shall gather a bountiful basket of your righteous deeds.

969. 312 O Christians, turn your faces towards the One God; if you wish to be faithful, reject the Trinity and embrace faith in the One God.

970. Why do you follow people who cannot save? Our Elah is the Saviour of saviours, the King of kings.

971. 313 So do not worship that which is carnal, which was created by God and fashioned from clay; why do you turn your gaze towards mortals?

972. .

973. Greetings to all who call upon God – He is the Healer who heals all wounds, He is the One God, the Most True!

974. The rebuilding of the 'Temple' should be understood figuratively as the gathering of believers.

975. The One Elah is the Saviour of Saviours and the God of Gods.

976. God, however, is the only true Saviour who desires no intermediaries – neither in the person of the Messiah nor in other ‘spiritual fathers’. ‘No man can redeem his brother or pay a ransom to God’.

977. Every man is responsible for his own guilt before God, and no one can take another man’s guilt upon the cross or anywhere else – such Christian teaching is utterly pagan.

978. Christians must choose the truth, and if they do not, let them choose the lie – let them feed on the illusory belief that ‘Jesus died for them’, and then they may do as they please – such is their illusory belief that good deeds cannot save anyone.

979. The Gospel is like a dream – beautiful, full of light, but the dawn of the Mother’s Book awakens us from our sleep.

980. But was the dream not necessary to savour the morning?

981. These verses prove that every person is directly accountable to God – “Yet everyone shall die for their own iniquity.”

982. If anyone eats sour grapes, it is his own teeth that will be gnawed.” “The soul that sins is the one that will die.

983. The son shall not bear the father’s guilt, nor shall the father bear the son’s guilt.

984. “The righteousness of the righteous rests upon him, and the wickedness of the wicked falls upon him” (7) “No one can ransom another man’s life, nor pay God a ransom for it – 8 the ransom for life is costly; no payment will ever suffice.” (7-8) “He who justifies the wicked, and he who condemns the righteous, are both an abomination to Elah.”

985. Oh yes, use all your strength to be pure before Elah, so as not to harm anything that lives.

986. Use all your skills, abilities and strength so as not to beg or steal.

987. Your talents and work are important in the eyes of God and society.

988. Use your wisdom in accordance with your conscience – do not lord it over the weak, but support one another.

989. The husband yields to his wife; they are one with each other – this is the essence of unity under the tree of harmony.

990. Let him sit beneath the tree of harmony; let the children grow more luxuriantly in its shade.

991. Be helpers to people; be sincere in word and deed; be an example of honesty and commitment to spreading love.

992. In this way, God has drawn a line between what is good and what is evil, which accumulates in people’s minds.

993. Thus, all anger and hatred originate from man, and if they bear rotten fruit within the family and between spouses, they must be suppressed at all costs.

994. What is the source of evil? Is it possible that an angel rebelled in heaven?

995. Was it not Elah himself who sent him?

996. Does not all good come from Elah, including Satan’s forces?

997. How, then, could all evil rest upon the heads of men?

998. The holy angels are Elah’s messengers amongst those who accumulate good deeds, and they are the essence of unity and joy within their families.

999. Every husband who comforts his wife is welcomed among God’s angels, and God’s light is with him.

1000. Every wife who loves and cares for her husband is a heavenly virgin, and the angels of mercy will descend upon her to protect, strengthen and comfort her, should the need arise.

1001. 318 The best form of preaching is not encouragement, but showing by the example of one’s own life how to live with dignity.

1002. Draw your neighbours out of the grave of their impurity and make them radiant and pure; ensure that those who have not found the strength to rise may rise from the grave of suffering and pain to the paradise of joy and happiness.

1003. Care, love and devotion are wonderful gifts that distinguish humans, but animals possess them too, and sometimes display human qualities far more than humans themselves realise.

1004. Animals are therefore quiet and gentle; they feed and care for their young, and you, people, should follow their example, the nature that surrounds you.

1005. 320 Be the embodiment of all virtues, full of kindness, and speak kind words to one another.

1006. Do not let love and care fade away, but spread them throughout the family.

1007. Be noble towards your wives, and let wives help their husbands, honouring them with kind words.

1008. This is the best advice: to be compassionate and tender on God's path, whenever and wherever He leads you in life – within the family, amongst friends, and amongst strangers.

1009. 321 A society that is ready to sacrifice itself for others is far more valuable than a nation where jealousy reigns and there is no room for selfless action.

1010. Lift one another up, perfect your deeds with love; though you may start out like uncut stones, purify yourselves through your failures and rise to the heights of mercy and understanding.

1011. Only on this path can you become jewels that stand out, helping the weak in their needs and the poor, troubled souls, humiliated and broken by a hard life.

1012. It is dangerous when a husband seeks to dominate his wife or a father his daughter; stand on the side of kindness, not severity.

1013. Reject all harshness; be a manifestation of mercy from children towards parents and from parents towards children.

1014. At the time of judgement, God will hold to account every child who has been mistreated, and every mother who has not been treated properly by her offspring.

1015. 323 Show compassion within your families, so that your faces may radiate love for your parents, and your spouses may show mutual understanding.

1016. Do not hide your virtues from one another; there is nothing more wonderful than selfless love for one's wife, and there is nothing in the world purer and holier than a husband who becomes his wife's protector against all evil.

1017. Do not, however, restrict your wives in what they expect and what their hearts desire.

1018. Let love and truth shine in your homes, and let the light of mercy grow in your hearts.

1019. 324 It is so important not to steal or take what is not yours and does not belong to you.

1020. It is very important to imprison criminals and thieves, so that evil cannot spread.

1021. Nor will God permit any excessive anger to flow from a husband's lips towards his wife; therefore, God commands that any husband who beats his wife be punished, and such a husband is counted among the criminals.

1022. Nor are rape and murder forgiven by God; He commands that they be imprisoned, for there is no other means of reform than that which precedes severe punishment.

1023. However, it is not a serious offence if someone starves and steals in order to feed themselves and their children; be wise and judge fairly.

1024. 325 Verily, Elah will rebuke every soul that has suffered at the hands of another soul, and the latter has condemned it to death.

1025. There is nothing more repulsive than murder; adultery is less unlawful, but it is also an obstacle.

1026. Murder, fighting and feuds bring only misfortune, hatred and endless despair, an avalanche of anger and despair.

1027. Lay down all weapons, if you are wise and obedient to the One Elah, the Undivided!

1028. 326 Be impartial on the path of God and do not favour whites over blacks, or one nation over another; we are all the same, we are all human, and we shall all return to the One God who created us equally.

1029. In the sight of God there is no difference between a man and a woman, so God will not spare with the fire of His wrath anyone who makes a distinction between a man and a woman in any matter, from the smallest to the greatest.

1030. 327 O righteous people, justice is enjoined upon you as people faithful to God.

1031. You see joy where there is none; have the strength to resist evil where it is strong.

1032. Have the strength to resist delusions and impurity of mind, if you are wise and steadfast on the path of God.

1033. You are not forbidden to eat meat, but if Hindus do not eat meat, respect their custom when you are their guest.

1034. Similarly, do not hunt if they do not wish you to.

1035. Hunting, or hunting for the sake of hunting, is not forbidden to you, but shooting game for sport is not beneficial either to you or to your neighbours, so beware of this practice.

1036. 329 And if you wish a donkey to carry your luggage, which is now rarely the case.

1037. Do not let any animal suffer, and strive to ensure that animals are respected, cared for and protected just as much as people.

1038. God will take care of every animal that is not treated in accordance with His commandments, for He is the Wonderful Protector, the Healer of the souls of humans and animals.

1039. 330 Be kind to those with whom you disagree or agree; kindness benefits everyone.

1040. We are those whom not man, but the Spirit of God leads to the whole truth; therefore we do righteous deeds, boasting of them not even a jot or a tittle.

1041. Is not faith in Allah a matter of Oneness? Therefore, believers should know that faith has various degrees; prayer, helping the poor, and faith in the One Allah are the first steps towards heaven.

1042. Let us establish a connection between the Holy Blessed One and the Shekinah; let the earth be united with the heavens.

1043. And you should know that knowledge has various degrees, the unification of which is the verbal profession of Elah and His Oneness, His Indivisibility.

1044. Verily, Elah does not wish for people to become slaves to one another, but rather affirms that people should love one another selflessly; what use is faith to anyone if they do not perform acts of mercy, for then their faithfulness to Elah is in vain.

1045. Confess the Sunday Elah with words, and then do not say: 'do as you please'; confess Elah in such a way that you are enchanted by love for Him, that you may hover between heaven and earth, where, as guardians of law and love, you are angels embodying all virtues.

1046. 332 Keep your promise in God's way, as the saints instruct; you are commanded to speak with purity, not to curse anyone, nor to accuse one another unjustly.

1047. 333 Thus, God desires a sincere turning away from impure thoughts and corrupt deeds.

1048. 334 Be honest with others and with yourselves, for in this way your heaven is amongst you, and the spring of the water of life flows within you.

1049. 335 This teaching is so obvious, yet it is worth repeating and recalling time and again – love, mercy and service to others are the needs of the heart; that is why we have given man the right to love his neighbour, to mutual love, and not to harm one another without cause.

1050. It is a gift from God to rejoice when one soul loves another soul, to give gifts to another soul who is poor, whose life has been unhappy, who is full of trials and sufferings.

1051. 336 Show love to your neighbours and do not give in to hatred or violent anger.

1052. Both—that is, anger and hatred—will be erased from the tablets of your hearts when you fill your baskets with mercy, when you give to people according to their gifts, regardless of their origin or appearance, and provide what they desire when they are oppressed and poor.

1053. Greedy people do not wish to help those oppressed in spirit and body; such people rarely come to the aid of the poor with money.

1054. We are not in the habit of giving alms, but it is essential that people love the poor among the faithful, whether deserving or undeserving, or those they do not know – if they are worthy.

1055. Help is necessary for those who truly deserve it, and not for those who merely claim to be poor and in need.

1056. Do not be eager to keep wealth for yourselves; give something to the poor, to those who truly have no means of support.

1057. Desire is destructive if it is not supported by external means and methods.

1058. Yet God is our help in our spiritual battles; our 'animal instinct' must not control us so that we display all manner of worthless traits, such as greed; further works of iniquity, frozen by Elah, are envy, deceit, anger and vengeance, all manner of hatred, evil words, cunning and the sowing of prejudice. Do not stand in God's way like Esau, cunning in his deeds; straighten your paths like Jacob.

1059. It is noble counsel to guard one's tongue against all evil and to restrain one's lips from speaking lies.

1060. Some choose the path of deceit, misleading others through trickery.

1061. They are as though clothed in the ornate robe of their pride.

1062. Pull out the weeds of pride and selfishness from the spirit of the mind; plant a sapling of understanding, gratitude and kindness.

1063. Let your tree grow; let your speech be pure.

1064. On the path of God, forget also your prejudices against your fellow human beings and all of humanity; from the one womb of the earth, all people were created.

1065. Why then do you forget your neighbour, why do you consider them inferior?

1066. All that is evil comes from us, and if you ask your heart – what caused your neighbour to become angry – answer: his evil impulses stirred him to anger, and thus cut him off from serving the Blessed One. Choose the good path, far from anger, hatred, hostility and all cruelty.

1067. Let only love and mercy be like the scent of incense to Elah, the One, the Blessed.

1068. With Elah, the Blessed, there is no jealousy arising from brotherhood, nor will you find among His servants hatred arising from inequality.

1069. And if you seek Elah, O man of love, Elah will grant it to you from on high; He is your One Saviour, ready to forgive sins.

1070. All faults are traits that cannot be washed away like dirt from our garments; they must be washed away and purified by God, otherwise we shall not know that Elah is He who purifies all faults and every evil inclination.

1071. It is therefore necessary to cast aside worries on the path of Elah; difficulties will always exist as long as we are in this world, which is full of evil.

1072. But our aim is to strengthen our spiritual backbone, and it is essential to 'remove obstacles' in the form of all life's trials.

1073. Gradually, step by step, seek a solution based on the best possible methods, which are founded on the pursuit of perfection.

1074. The heavens were given to destroy all vengeance, hatred and wrath in retaliation.

1075. Such is the purpose of self-discipline: first to remove from the heart all thoughts—obstacles on the path to Elah of Love.

1076. Let us remove external cares, and He will straighten the paths for us.

1077. Let us also avoid dishonesty in our hearts, perfect ourselves in righteousness, and strive wholeheartedly for perfection

The goal of self-improvement is gradual – first one must remove obstacles, including unnecessary worries, to set the sparks free.

1078. Secondly, the subjugation of the animal soul to the divine soul, and then, in true perfection, clinging to God, the Most High.

1079. Thus, the true nobility of God lies in being merciful towards one's loved ones, not abandoning them in their hour of need, and not fanning the flames of anger between spouses.

1080. It is good when families live long and happily, when children are neither lonely nor left to their own devices.

1081. It is good when the adornments of service and mutual care grace the members of the family; they are closer to Heaven than they would be to Heaven and its unity.

1082. 342 O God, You intend to unite all God's children, not according to their possessions, but according to their virtues and perfection.

1083. Be poor in spirit, that you may obtain mercy; such humble souls are closer to Heaven than those who exalt themselves and seek easy fame.

1084. 343 Neither wealth, nor haughtiness, nor power, nor fame can replace true unity, love, and the fervent power of the virtues with which God, the Eternal and Loving Father, has endowed us.

1085. 344 In weakness lies the power of care and help, and it is precisely this weakness that distinguishes women; though men are physically strong, women surpass them in love and care.

1086. Praise to women for their strength and greatness.

1087. God's love permeates and flows out to all human children; there are no restrictions regarding race or origin. God loves all the children He has begotten equally; He is not partial, nor does He Himself attempt to distinguish between them.

Women

O women, do not fall into despondency when no one listens to you or expects to praise you for your achievements.

1089. Your love for your children and your divine touch are profound.

1090. See yourselves as pilgrims on God's path; you never rest in your efforts to care for your children, to raise them with the greatest devotion, and yet you are their guides in life.

1091. What love of God fills you, that the Spirit of Truth and Peace Himself dwells within you and is present every day?

1092. Do not be sad, but stand up to every man when you suffer wrong; do not fall into depression when you are surrounded by perpetrators of violence who are your husbands and fathers.

1093. God is not so much a helper as a stranger standing at your gates, a guardian of the law; turn to him and seek salvation in your distress.

1094. Do not tolerate violence by husbands against wives or by fathers against daughters.

1095. 346 God has endowed women with all the attributes of divinity – grace, love, a wonderful smile.

1096. Such a great flame of love is contained within them; how could the world exist without them?

1097. No particle of earth nor ray of sunlight would know love without them, surrounding them with their warmth and selfless love.

1098. Similarly, every man is born of a woman, so why treat women with contempt?

1099. Nothing could come into being or exist without a woman.

1100. Do not deceive yourselves, Jews – you must admit that without Rabbi Jesus there would be no deep love for women, mothers and daughters.

1101. Rabbi Jesus united the hearts of women and raised their status very high, but the name of Jesus will be forgotten, for it will be revealed that the Gospels blaspheme against God by saying: 'I am God incarnate'.

1102. Yet God, out of the darkness of Christianity – truth mixed with lies – has allowed a great light to shine forth.

1103. Elah replied to me – And Rabbi Jesus will return as a liar, for he has deceived many; he will return from beyond the grave, atoning for his sins.

1104. Let every man inscribe in his heart love for women and equality towards them; there is no doubt that God placed these words in my mouth, and through His Spirit of love poured love for all people into my heart.

1105. Do not turn away from love for your wives and daughters; do not punish them or harm them.

1106. God will surely punish anyone who commits injustice against innocent women, whether they be wives or daughters.

1107. God is severe in His punishment; He will not allow them to be harmed.

1108. Letter to the Jews 348 At this moment, right now, they will not say: 'Be cursed'. No one on earth will be cursed any longer, neither the children of Ham, nor of Shem, nor of Japheth.

1109. They shall know the Oneness of God and His love!

1110. .

1111. Neither of them is a slave; both are to be equal companions.

1112. If they understand my advice, it will be better for us if man strives for peace and establishes friendly relations.

1113. Hatred and war bring no benefit, only suffering and death.

1114. There is nothing more destructive than war and the fear it brings.

1115. 349 And I say to you the opposite – people of different nations do not know the difference between lies and truth, so anyone who believes in Jesus is, for them, a simple way to oppose the evil of this world.

1116. Just as in the world of the depraved Avestan and his faith there exists, according to him, a God of evil and a God of good, so every pagan of the past who embraced Christianity wished to follow the God of good, not of evil, and so went and was baptised.

1117. They truly and sincerely believed that the illusion they saw was the truth.

1118. They sincerely believed the rumours that Jesus had risen from the dead, but in reality this did not happen; he died.

1119. And when Jesus failed to fulfil his promise to the Jews, the Christians – wishing to remain true to their beliefs – turned to lies; whilst convincing everyone around them of their faithfulness, they became ‘serpents’ teaching the lies of the pagans.

1120. Lies about the virgin birth of Jesus, to bring the God Yahweh closer to the pagan nations.

1121. It was God’s will that this should happen; He is Elah of darkness and light; without Him, the pagans could not continue their search.

1122. Now, if anyone seeks, their heart and eyes have been opened, and in these days they shall see that Christianity has partly turned the truth away from the essence and worship of the One God: ‘8 For my thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways my ways’ – the oracle of Elah.

1123. 9 For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts higher than your thoughts.”

1124. I am no one’s enemy; I have not been sent to hate, but to unite the hearts of Christians, Jews and Muslims.

1125. 351 But I tell you the opposite: God does not demand of man what he is unable to bear beyond his strength.

1126. That is why it is not worth following those who believe that they can bear witness as martyrs on God’s path through their bodies.

1127. There is nothing more foolish than thinking that God will help and save those who sacrifice their lives or suffer martyrdom.

1128. Be sensible, be guided by reason, keep a clear conscience, and do not harm your neighbours either in word or deed.

1129. Truly, God is Elah, who loves justice; He protects against all violence and hatred.

1130. It is better to avoid the path that leads through difficulties and is guided by unreasonable thoughts.

1131. It is better to use reason, not to labour in vain, but to persevere in what is right and proper.

1132. They may utter many empty phrases and false promises, but if these are not kept and fulfilled, their efforts and labour are in vain.

1133. 352 There is nothing more harmful on earth than trusting in people, trusting the clergy more than God, who created them all; strive for the circumcision of the heart, to attain perfect purity and holiness!

1134. This is a sign of purity for all who truly worship God and wish to be pure in body and soul.

1135. 353 If a woman is holy and prophesies, it matters not whether she wears a head covering whilst prophesying or not.

1136. For whoever proclaims the good news of God is guided by an inner light that radiates from within, whether they be a woman or a man.

1137. There is no doubt that, when it comes to prophesying, everyone is clothed in a radiant garment; whoever is sincerely guided by God and sincerely serves only the One God, then a woman’s head is covered by the very presence of God within her!

1138. God created man and woman equal to one another in the beginning, so whoever claims that a woman is inferior to a man does not truly worship God, whose Shekhinah is manifested in the woman.

1139. Whether a woman wears a headscarf or not is her legitimate choice, not a command imposed by God and His servants, the prophets!

1140. "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them."

1141. 354 Some Christians, Jews and Muslims claim that in churches, synagogues and mosques, women must be subordinate to their husbands and obey them in all things. Such commands are deeply harmful to women, and these verses are absurd.

1142. How many women have suffered because of such thoughtless distortion of the Holy Scriptures.

1143. How many women have fallen victim to violence and depression because men are supposedly superior to women in God's eyes?

1144. On the contrary, God created man and woman as equals, so that they might complement one another.

1145. If anyone desires, as men do, that women should serve them as obedient wives, they are misinterpreting the Holy Scriptures and condemning their sisters to slavery at their hands and to unnecessary suffering.

1146. Verily, God hates without exception anyone who makes his wife a servant, and cursed is he who commands women to wear veils and head coverings.

1147. Husbands, have compassion for your wives because of the burden they bear, because of the responsibility they bear for your families, and respect them as you would your own bodies.

1148. 'And to the woman he said: "I will greatly increase your pain in childbirth; in pain you shall bring forth children; your desire shall be for your husband, and he shall rule over you."'

1149. It is not men who blame women for Adam's sin.

1150. On the contrary, the first parents, Adam and Eve, were both guilty of the sin they committed against God.

1151. This is a prophecy that some Christians, Jews and Muslims try to whitewash, claiming that in their view women should be obedient beings.

1152. In reality, this is a description of how women have been treated, slandered and humiliated throughout history simply because men are stronger than women, and women are peace-loving beings.

1153. 'God is in her midst; she shall not be moved; God will help her when the morning comes.'

1154. Women should be courageous in the face of injustice and should take action, rather than hiding the burden of suffering they bear.

1155. Women should not remain indifferent to their own harm, sorrow, despair or violence.

1156. They should seek help not only from God through prayer, but above all from people they can trust, who are able to understand them and care for them.

1157. Through such people, who become a source of help, protection and comfort for them, God reveals his power, heals wounds and brings relief from suffering.

1158. 'Have I not commanded you?

1159. Be strong and courageous.

1160. Do not be afraid or dismayed, for Elah, your God, is with you wherever you go." 356 Remaining in a marriage where one spouse is aggressive is very dangerous and distressing.

1161. It is better to divorce than to remain forever in quarrels, abuse and violence.

1162. All violence stems from the minds of people whose minds are corrupted.

1163. There is no doubt that this is a grave sin – the sin of violence.

1164. Wives, daughters and women in general must never be subjected to violence by their husbands, brothers or sons.

1165. God will take vengeance on those who, instead of separating families for a just cause so that violence may cease within them, act unjustly and spread spiritual corruption.

1166. "Elah examines the righteous, but the wicked and those who love violence, His soul hates."

1167. If we take this verse literally: 'To the woman he said: "I will surely multiply your suffering in childbirth; in pain you shall bring forth children.

1168. Your desire shall be for your husband, yet he shall rule over you', we are faced with the husband's utter tyranny over his wife, and there is nothing holy or good in this.

1169. God does not even allow the thought of inequality between man and woman in marriage.

1170. God created man as a distinct being, but in this way man and woman manage their bodies separately; one is not subordinate to the other; on the contrary, they complement one another in the tasks of daily life.

1171. Since when are wives to obey their husbands as they would God?

1172. Since husbands are neither masters nor gods to their wives, they are just as mortal and sinful as their wives themselves.

1173. It saddens me greatly to see women treated so unjustly by their husbands; let us all treat one another equally, even if each of us plays a distinct role in life.

1174. 'So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female he created them.'

1175. I call upon you to speak honestly; you have been commanded to love your enemies, to care for women as if they were your own bodies, you have been commanded to give every person a second chance, and not merely to punish and humiliate them mercilessly.

1176. 359 Christians and Muslims will seek the face of Elah, find Him, and unite as one family of God.

1177. He indicates that we should walk the path of love amongst our Christian and Muslim brothers.

1178. May their hearts be transformed for the better; may they not see me as an enemy, for I am their friend.

1179. I seek peace and harmony with them.

1180. 360 I will not rest until I proclaim the Oneness of God, the commandments of Moses, including love of neighbour in stopping wars and bloodshed.

1181. God urges us to live in truth and morality.

1182. Do not be afraid if you love God!

1184. Satan, as an 'adversary' in a figurative sense, can become any person who causes trouble, sheds blood, or harbours hatred.

1185. Such people, figuratively speaking, become 'Satanists' or 'adversaries' of God.

1186. or 'adversaries' of God.

1187. Spiritual people should 'die' every day, that is, transform their selfish traits into divine ones. As 'children', we must therefore strive to agree with one another.

1188. Step by step, God reveals the truths of Heaven, and step by step sends divine Revelators to sweep away all resentment and helplessness from the table of the human heart.

Prohibition against bullying the weak

1189. The world has matured to the point of making no distinction in the equality between men and women.

1190. It is forbidden to strike a woman; in many places sent by Elaha, the Elaha of all worlds, this is figuratively called 'heresy'.

1191. O people, see for yourselves: Muslims are still stuck in the Dark Ages and command their wives not to leave their husbands' homes without their consent; the enslavement of wives is a complete crime, whether they are kind and submissive or disobedient; Elah granted every woman freedom and decreed, as it was in the beginning, that women should be equal to men in all things and should not be subject to them.

1192. 363 Similarly, some unbelieving Christians beat their wives, and this scourge is spreading throughout the world, its source being hatred of women, whom Elah has made the most precious gift.

1193. You, Jews and others, do not restrict women in their affairs, in their pursuits, in their domestic and non-domestic roles.

1194. 364 Such people sit in the dust, being far from separation from God, His bond and His love.

1195. And if a husband has abundant union with Elah, thinking he is ‘a part of Paradise’, yet ‘sits in the dust’ of his ignorance and hypocrisy and is guided by inequality in marriage, I assure you that such a sinner is a criminal, and his feet become a quagmire upon the earth.

1196. He staggers in his sins like a drunkard; his earthly life and his coming death will be for him a fire of God’s wrath, drawing him away from the sources of all joy and Unity with the Most Pure Elah, who knows no sin!

1197. 365 Do not doubt for a moment that every wife is far more precious than ten sons.

1198. If men wish to restrict women and claim that this is equality, why do they not make one another slaves?

1199. Why do they not wear headscarves themselves?

1200. After all, it has been known from the very beginning that a virtuous woman is free from temptation; temptations do not gather around her, and her veil is the pure light of angelic holiness!

1201. Yes, all virtuous women are surrounded by an angelic radiance of light, just like all the holy messengers of God, all the Revealers of God’s messages!

1202. In the holy religion, that is, in this Book, it is forbidden to harm a woman with words, by hand, or by deed.

1203. Remember, people, women carry in their wombs the seeds of new life; what right do you have to beat, harm and cause suffering to that which is holy and virtuous from birth, in accordance with God and His cause?

1204. You have never been commanded to mistreat your wives, daughters and concubines.

1205. God does not permit them to be harmed or subjected to great injustice!

1206. 366 Gender equality is the greatest good for the unification of society, the strengthening of families, and the prolongation of peace between spouses. For people who do not understand the ways of God, polygamy is a blessing; for people who are guided by the Holy Spirit, by the power from on high from God Himself, polygamy is a curse and a human tradition to be avoided.

1207. There is nothing more abhorrent to God than polygamy; God has strictly forbidden this custom under threat of a curse and condemnation, a curse – jealousy amongst wives, the hatred they spew, and the division of souls, so that children will fight amongst themselves for their father’s love, just as their mothers do; this is an unbearable pain for both women and children if they live in such depraved families.

1209. ‘To uncover her nakedness’ means the same as to have sexual intercourse with her and to marry her.

1210. Polygamy is therefore strictly forbidden by Elah when one takes one sister as a wife and the other must be cast aside; thus it is written: ‘Thou shalt not marry a woman besides her sister as a rival whilst she is alive, to uncover her nakedness’.

1211. 368 A wife’s duty towards her husband is not to serve him, but to help one another; this is far better than mutual humiliation.

1212. God has commanded friendship between man and woman; mutual service is best. Fill your free time with each other’s company so that you may love one another – this is the miracle and purpose of marriage, to be a paradise on earth whilst you live.

1213. 369 one body, so they are to help one another in matters of the male or female nature; there is no difference.

1214. There is no benefit whatsoever in exploiting and oppressing women to make them do housework.

1215. 370 Heaven has decreed, just as it did in Paradise during the lifetime of Adam and Eve, that here on earth, in earthly garb, husband and wife should be equal in terms of gender, and even in terms of the domestic duties they perform.

1216. If you are wise, leave behind your antechambers of customs, assemblies and tainted traditions, and recognise that this divine message is true, marvellous – yes, it is a return to the paradise of divine unity and the knowledge of God.

1217. Truly, Elah of the whole world has so proclaimed from the beginning, and so it shall be now in the paradise of divine unity; yes, Elah is unchanging in His eternal decrees!

1218. If a woman is the body of a man and vice versa, why should you not help her with her daily duties? Yes, God has decreed that you should be companions to one another, friends for life!

1219. 371 Some of these wise men merely call upon God, but do you not see the fruits of their deeds; are women not the slaves of their men?

1220. Why, then, even now do you enslave women, subjecting them to the bondage of their husbands, when they could be far freer if you made their will a matter of mutual trust and swore fidelity to one another?

1221. Such a principle is far more perfect than forcing a woman to obey her husband's will and submit to him as a 'slave' or 'servant'. Anyone who speaks of wives as their husbands' 'servants' does not truly trust his wife; so why did he take her as his wife if he does not trust her and keeps her 'in bondage' at home?

1222. This is a bad, unhealthy and restrictive principle!

1223. 372 A virtuous wife is far more useful if you agree between yourselves on 'bonds of fidelity' imposed upon you by word; this is far better than keeping women, daughters and wives against their will, as if they were 'slaves' and 'servants'. Such a practice will bring no benefit, but only sorrow, bitterness and discontent on the part of the woman.

1224. 373 This absurd custom known as the dowry should be abolished; a woman, a fiancée and a future wife, is worth far more than endless quantities of silver and gold.

1225. Many verses concerning the dowry are translated below to promote religion and customs, not the worship of clergy, not only Muslim but also Christian and Jewish.

1226. There is no greater corruption than religion; indeed, God did not propagate religion, but people created it for themselves.

1227. 374 If you dislike anything in what I say, then you are surely an enemy of the True Elah, and he who is obedient in life is in Paradise, and the gates of Paradise are always open to him after death!

1228. Some have married a wife solely for the wealth she brought; so it was and is with all the children of Abraham; do not increase your wealth at the expense of another's misery, be it a married woman or a bride!

1229. Fools are those who accept a dowry, and those who distribute wealth through a dowry, thinking that their daughters can be bought; women are worth far more than endless veins of gold and precious stones.

1230. 375 Nor is it laid down that marriage must be consummated in a specific, chosen month; weddings should be held when it suits you; we do not adhere to any specific tradition in this matter.

1231. God certainly knows that you will make the right choice.

1232. 376 In all the books of God it is clearly and rightly written that you should not take as wives your mothers, sisters, cousins, nor women who are already married or fortune-tellers, lest they attract 'evil spirits' to your home and make that place accursed.

1233. If you wish to free a woman from polygamy at the hands of a Muslim, do so, and Elah will reward you generously, granting you a golden card as a pass to the gates of heaven; through it, you shall conquer all the worlds of God!

1234. You shall see all the assembled saints bowing down to the One God, the Undivided!

1235. 377 I also feel aversion at the thought of these common platitudes, for in themselves they are not in accordance with common sense; that according to Islam, adulteresses are supposedly unfit for marriage; by what right do Muslims judge, when they themselves have legalised polygamy, which has been forbidden since the time of Adam in Paradise?

1236. It is not impurity for you to marry a woman who practises idolatry, whether knowingly or unknowingly – be kind to her so that the light of Allah may shine upon her; nor is a person who has strayed from the path of Islam or any other faith forbidden to you.

1237. A person who has turned away from another Abrahamic faith, an adulteress—for she has a chance to reform—and a divorcee are not forbidden to you.

1238. May you be wise and marry such wives as please you; do not despise any woman, nor your daughters who are under your care!

1239. 378 If you say not a word and do not oppose the mistreatment of women, wives and daughters, God will punish you with all manner of misfortunes, the failure of your marriages and a lack of peace amongst you.

1240. The true Elah truly abhors all violence and is deeply disgusted when you raise your hand against women to subjugate them by word or deed!

1241. God casts such people into the abyss of hell, that they may recognise their crime and defend themselves against the heat of His wrath and His punishment!

1242. It is clear that there is nothing impure in a woman menstruating and not going on a pilgrimage.

1243. We do not undertake any pilgrimage; we journey in prayer to God, He is our Leader; in our way of life, let us go on a pilgrimage, let us unite in bond with our Elah, the only One who can save!

1244. 380 God allows women to hold their heads high, to be worthy of respect, to be ‘exalted’ – they have rights equal to those of men; anyone who thinks otherwise is a fool.

1245. Men will never stop the emancipation of women; it has continued intermittently since the time of Adam, until it shone with a great light in the revelation of the Gate.

1246. This ‘pride’ and dignity of women protects them from their husbands’ violence and allows them to be free in the presence of men.

1247. 381 I repeat this once more, lest you forget that this absurd and harmful custom, which has taken hold in the homes of Muslims, especially those of Arab origin, concerning the ‘confinement of wives to the home’ against their will, is to be completely abolished.

1248. It is unacceptable to force or enslave anyone against their will.

1249. 382 Let the enslaved woman be free, and let the man be free, and let there be no question of enslaving a married woman against her will – this is a cruel and inhuman practice.

1250. Cursed, then, be he who enslaves his wife and daughter; let this guilt rest upon his brow; let his hand be full of corruption, and let there be no joy in his home, only violence – such a man is cursed, he shall find no escape from this hell on earth, neither in this life nor in the next; may the ‘evil spirits’ torment him without end in the abyss of his delusions!

1251. His illusions have become a noose that strangles him in the next world until death; if he strikes someone, he himself will be treated in the same way in the next world!

1252. He will become a dweller in darkness, deprived of joy, and will be far from the presence of the Lawgiver, the Merciful!

1253. Do those who take many wives from among Muslim women themselves become impure and themselves become adulterers?

1254. Do they break the law?

1255. Yes, they are adulterers.

1256. Why, then, do you call a woman in any relationship, or your future fiancée, an adulteress?

1257. Are you polygamists not also adulterers, taking more wives than the Book of Mothers prescribes?

1258. Yes.

1259. Why then do you require women to be virgins, when you yourselves are not virgins, having many wives?

1260. 384 Verily, we are not Muslims and do not follow their hypocritical customs.

1261. We follow the guidance of the Most High, our Lawgiver.

1262. And people will ask: On what is your religion based? Answer them: On the testimony of this Revelation, on the pure Words of the Father of the Scriptures.

1263. That old assertion that ‘a wife must obey her husband in all things’, both amongst Christians and amongst Muslims, that a wife is a ‘slave’, which places her lower in the hierarchy of her relationship with her husband, is a degrading and repugnant assertion.

1264. This verse must be rejected, for it destroys the equality of men and women, and this must be avoided like the fire of hell, its defilement and the wrath of God.

1265. Seek the best possible friendship and reconciliation between husband and wife, not allowing quarrels to spread their heat and anger to burn between them endlessly.

1266. Strive for reconciliation between yourselves, if possible, forgiving one another's faults and helping one another; then the Holy Spirit, the Light of the Morning, will descend upon your homes, filling your churches with joy and happiness.

1267. The essence of marriage and its sustenance lies in bestowing words of love upon one another, supporting one another, and brightening life with mutual gifts.

1268. In this way, God intended for you to be a support, a comfort and a friend to one another.

1269. Choose therefore righteousness, so that you may live in peace with one another, with your wives and children.

1270. God will issue a verdict on what must be done – together with an explanation – contained in this Book, and instructions for us on how we should live.

1271. On that day there will be reward or punishment, so one should not keep the commandments out of fear of punishment, but out of love for Elah.

1272. Let me remind you once again that abusing women, beating them and mistreating them is 'heresy' to us, just as is denying the oneness of Elah, His indivisibility, when one has knowledge of the Creator's existence and stubbornly opposes Him.

1273. Likewise, those who are stubborn, who oppose the defence of women's rights and do not restrain their hands from abusing innocent or guilty women, wives, daughters, will surely have their hands swell and wither in hell, both in the hereafter and in this life.

1274. They are sinners in the way of God, and their punishment is imprisonment.

1275. 390 The essence of marriage and its preservation lies in mutual declarations of love, supporting one another, and brightening life with mutual gifts.

1276. In this way, God intended for you to be a support, a comfort and a friend to one another.

1278. I do not approve of treating women in such a way that they are subject to their husbands' will.

1279. How many Jewish, Muslim and Christian women still consider themselves unworthy of standing up to their uncivilised and brutal husbands – look at them, they are criminals in the way of God; they should be punished with imprisonment so that evil does not spread!

1280. 392 Look at such injustice, such inequality – the pain, bitterness and sorrow that accompany the women who must endure this?

1281. Tell these criminals: 'that he should beat her'.

1282. – Enough!

1283. All the generations before the Flood vanished from the face of the earth because of the violence that had spread amongst people; Noah was far from violence; follow Noah's example and keep away from violence and all abuse of women and children.

1284. In the waters of the Flood, those people perished who in former times spread violence – 'the wickedness of mankind' and abominable iniquity; do not be even in the slightest degree like them, but rather be like Noah in his gentleness, kindness and love for people.

1286. God is gracious in His judgement and judges justly.

Advice on marriage

1287. I swear by the God of the whole earth and its inhabitants that what is good and right shall never be erased or forgotten!

1288. From the beginning of time, from Eden itself, planted by God, Elah of all worlds, visible and invisible!

1289. He made man one body – man and woman, He created them as equal companions!

1290. Nor were any duties assigned, either within the home or outside it, so that spouses might share them together, supporting one another!

1291. 396 Just as in the beginning, it was decreed that there should be no quarrelling, no bickering, nor cursing one another!

1292. Everyone was called good and sent forth to serve one another in love!

1293. In no book of God is marriage commanded for the sake of debauchery, but so that one part of the body may find fulfilment in the other, that they may be one, as commanded from the beginning of creation!

1294. Nor is it God's commandment to cause each other misery if one party does not want the marriage!

1295. God is generous, uniting in love that which people are bound to, and separating that which people do not want!

1296. If you seek only lust in marriage, merely to satisfy your parents' wishes, what good is marriage to you?

1297. God's heart is overflowing with love, and to love truly is to love to the point of dying or giving your whole mind and your whole self for the one you love.

1299. Elah honours both spouses who bring joy to one another and serve as examples of righteousness.

1300. And Elah sent messengers before you in the spirit of the world of formation; Elah placed the divine dove in vessels of holiness – He gave them to the saints.

1301. In 22 letters lies the complexity of all things; with these letters the Almighty began the creation of the universe; this is Jacob's ladder reaching to heaven, the path to God, lest one fall.

1302. Although love unites two people, they have each other's welfare in mind; for the children they will conceive, they should provide them with every possible good so that they may flourish, and not seek love, care and recognition on the street.

1303. Can the street feed, clothe and meet the needs of those who are innocent?

1304. Yes, parents have a duty to meet all their children's needs in life.

1305. Strive for the best spiritual and material comforts for your children, and then you yourselves will rest in the paradise of their joy and happiness.

1306. It is not the parents themselves who are to be a model for their children, but rather they should make every effort to show them what duties they must fulfil, what to avoid, and what to value.

1307. Similarly, it has been said: 'Let those who have the means marry'.

1308. And whoever lacks the means to feed, clothe and provide housing must certainly refrain from marriage and having children.

1309. There is no greater despair than bringing children into the world in poverty, sickness or loneliness.

1310. Neglecting children, their rights and their means of support is the duty not only of parents, but of the entire community of believers.

1311. Anyone who neglects children, deprives them of an education, or exploits them in any way is truly a worthless person, a sinner in the eyes of God.

1312. Similarly, it has been said: if both respect one another, and the fiancé does not beat his fiancée, she should marry him.

1313. Otherwise, discord will be sown, the marriage will be broken, and the children will be spoiled.

1314. Elah agrees that love should endure, thereby resolving the discord between them, but violence must not be permitted.

1315. In the world of light, in this world of law, the right pillar is the father, and the left pillar is the mother.

1316. The family can unite in an embrace of love, covering the whole family with a robe of light – selflessly covering one another with righteous feeling and mercy.

1317. This ‘false religion’ in this case is not a spiritual faith, but a violation of the law of love for one’s neighbour; therefore, if someone allows their son or daughter to marry a mentally unstable person, a drunkard or a criminal, they are guilty of causing harm to their son or daughter.

1318. It goes on to say that misfortune, ‘discord and great corruption’ will spread across the earth.

1319. Harm, abuse and misfortune will befall mothers if they allow their son or daughter to marry the wrong person.

1320. Do not marry someone who is a ‘follower of a false faith’, that is, someone who has not renounced alcohol, is insane, or uses violence in their life to harm the innocent!

1321. 403 Every child who has known happiness at the hands of their parents, and every mother and father who are sincerely respected for their kindness, become inhabitants of Paradise, where they clothe themselves in luminous robes, gather flowers that never wither, and share crystal-clear water of life with the inhabitants of Heaven.

1323. Thus, the inhabitants of Paradise, those who fast, will surely gather their heavenly treasures, feeling safe as they stroll through crystal chambers with floors covered in gold.

1324. Do not, however, force children, the elderly, or the sick to fast on the Day of Purification; there is nothing in them that might tempt them.

1325. But we, weak sinners, insofar as we desire it, have ‘perseverance in fasting’, yet we also fast.

1326. Fasting is necessary to nourish the guf maliki and remove temptations from the heart, except for the weakness that cannot be overcome through fasting; then our strength comes from a momentary weakness.

1327. Thus, fasting is enjoined so that our souls may ascend to the paradise of divine union with Elah of all worlds!

1328. In all the books of God, it has been recommended not to fast beyond one’s strength, but to limit the consumption of meat, alcohol and stimulants.

1329. It is commanded to eat and enjoy this after dark with one’s family during the fast; the fast is broken by the New Morning, the dawn of the New Year, the time of the birth of new life after a period of penance and union with God.

1330. Love is more than mere attachment and survival for the human race.

1331. Wife and husband are counterparts of the Shekhinah, the presence of God, and of the Father Himself, who form a unity; thus, wife and husband reflect that which is heavenly upon the earth.

1332. The model of a wife worthy of emulation possesses all the qualities of the Shekhinah, the Divine Presence, which is protective, does not direct random anger towards her offspring, and shields the child from harm.

1333. Similarly, a loving earthly father is a reflection of the Father in heaven; he alone gives the child courage, comfort and support.

1334. 407 Therefore, without a Father and a Mother, families cannot exist; they have a divine origin and reflect what God Himself is in His order, who He is and how He governs the universe.

1335. Caring for and looking after the family as a flock to be tended is the greatest honour and the best reflection of what God is like and of the relationship between the emanations of His being.

1336. A single day of good deeds is more precious to God than a whole life spent in prayer.

1337. Everyone is a shepherd, so let them not be a selfish leader, tending their own flock.

1338. It is good when the father cares not only for spiritual matters, as the mother does, but also for the child’s needs.

1339. Then love and true joy will win the children’s hearts over to their parents, and they will become one, a community of friendship and mutual respect.

1340. Look now, O God, how much harm is done when a marriage is maintained against the will of one of the parties!

1341. Similarly, if there is conflict in a marriage, one should not be quick to seek a solution in divorce.

1342. Likewise, if only one party abuses the other in marriage, whether by hand or word, without offering an apology, then such a marriage is certainly dissolved and cannot be maintained; divorce is necessary for their mutual happiness.

1343. God has permitted divorce if one spouse betrays the other, if they cannot agree with one another, and also if one party abuses the other physically or verbally – this is called ‘transgression’ and ‘wrongdoing’, as it is stated: ‘It is forbidden to wrong any person, even an enemy, except the perpetrator.’

1344. It is better to obey God’s commandments than to seek devious ways.

1345. If one party is quarrelling and has not suffered any long-term physical or verbal harm, divorce is not a good solution, so there is no justification for separation.

1347. Be faithful, pure in body and spirit, and the Spirit of God, the Divine Presence, will dwell amongst you.

1348. Be noble, so that you may shower one another with the wonderful, fragrant scent of your righteous deeds.

1349. You have been commanded to love one another, both children and parents, as your own flesh, and this commandment has not been abrogated in the slightest, not even by a jot.

1350. 412 Thus the heavens on earth shall blossom with lush trees, which shall bend under the weight of your precious deeds of mercy, care and forgiveness, shown to one another, whether to the guilty or the innocent, in quarrels or in the discipline of children.

1351. It is unacceptable for children to be capricious, for then they become wasteful; beating children is forbidden, as is punishing them with harsh words; the most appropriate solution is the use of rewards and punishments.

1352. Let the wise heed these instructions, and let the foolish parent’s hands wither away because of his mistakes and harshness!

1353. 413 Parental severity is not the same as disciplining children; abusing and tyrannising one’s offspring is strictly forbidden by Elah; He will admonish every wronged child and will repay in the afterlife everyone who has wronged them!

1354. A home full of relatives is a place of joy, where there is no harshness, but forgiveness and shared fun.

1355. Rejoice, then, in the presence of your children; they are your joy before your very eyes!

1356. Cast aside all harshness towards your children, wives and relatives; let mercy and compassion reign in your homes.

1357. Oh, how dear your children are to you; do not be disheartened by ingratitude, for every child has their own traits and is unique – they think and feel; give them the freedom to express their feelings and the love you show them, and they will repay you.

1358. Show love to your children, not just punishment!

1359. Surely your homes, yes, fathers and mothers as heads of families, are not rulers, but defenders of the innocent.

1360. Move away from punishment in favour of reason, and choose measures that will please your children rather than punish them excessively.

1361. You, children, obey your parents when they fulfil their duties towards you impeccably.

1362. God has given you parents so that you may live long and happily, far from all sorrow.

1363. However, if your father or mother are monsters, abuse their power over you, are devoid of love, and are unworthy of being called mother and father, leave them as soon as possible or seek help from those who are righteous, so that you may free yourselves from their oppression.

1364. 415 Do not divide your family, even for a moment, whether because of religious conflicts or other messages that do not come from God.

1365. God is the One who unites families; even if their members may differ, they form a unity.

1366. God has decreed that family matters should be left entirely to them, and one should not interfere in how they choose to live their lives; you should merely advise them on how to live, and let them understand your advice!

1367. 416 'Be reconciled with your neighbour', in my view, means the same as being reconciled with a father or mother, if they have acknowledged their guilt and rightly realised their folly; if they repent and turn away from their evil deeds, the children may return to them; otherwise, this is not possible.

1368. 'Bear one another's burdens' in the words of Rabbi Jesus meant not to inflict suffering on one another, to delight the eyes of the other, and to rejoice in kind words and gifts for children and spouses.

1369. However, if a dispute arises between husband and wife, it is better for them to reconcile and lay down their burdens in such a way as not to hurt one another, and to turn their burdens into edifying words, and Elah will honour you with His presence!

1370. 417 As has long been known, spouses are united as one body, as friends who do not waste time on any dilemmas, but are there to love one another, to accompany one another through all trials.

1371. In moments of anguish, their souls become one soul, caring for the flourishing of an abundance of good deeds of love towards one another, of compassion, and of striving towards a safe haven, on the path of God and without Him.

1372. 418 If the spouses provide for themselves all the means for life and growth in friendship, Elah will be their servant, their helper in life's trials.

1373. He will provide them with comfort, give them peace of mind, and build within them a mutual devotion that will not fade until their love is as hot as embers.

1374. Let each of them light an oil lamp, pour love into it and add wicks of support; let the fire of their love blaze forth and let it not go out as long as they add the oil of love.

1375. 419 Once you have shared your love and it has warmed your minds, raise your children in a similar way, so that you do not waste oil on punishments, but pour in mercy and compassion.

1376. The whole universe is united in love; all the stars shine to the sounds of love; even the sun sings a song of love at the sight of the wonders Elah has wrought for us!

1377. Thus, the vision of the universe is characterised by unity and harmony within the eternal form.

1378. God becomes for us a clear sign that Elah cares for us, so let us also distinguish ourselves by caring for His children, just as God Himself cares for all His stars, for all the heavenly choirs individually!

1379. So care for your wives and husbands, and in what your souls desire and what they do not desire, do not be indifferent towards one another.

1380. God has destined you to be merchants on the path of God and beyond it, at home, at work, and wherever you may go.

1381. A wise man said: It is good to multiply love, to strengthen it in spite of adversity and trials.

1382. Fill your hearts with bliss, peace and mutual tranquillity.

1383. Do not let your hearts cease to love one another, so love your children; do not burden them with worries, but share with them your joy and help them resolve their matters.

1385. You are not alone on this journey, nor are your children alone on the mountain of encounter with God and His love.

1386. Truly, may the rays of the light of love reach your children with such clarity as to awaken in them love for their parents, those who gave their lives for them and love them boundlessly.

1387. Remember, then, to refrain from cruel words, from the barrenness of harsh words.

1388. May my God, my Beloved, be immersed in a sea of light; in the depths of your sea I have found the treasure of the Torah.

1389. Flee from the desert, where there is a lack of life-giving water and fellowship; do not punish in vain, but love one another and care for one another.

1390. Do not merely desire to love, but do so to express love.

1391. Are there people who speak of God but do no good?

1392. Their speeches of love and teachings about God will pass away if they find no expression in deeds.

1394. I have loved you, all nations, with an everlasting love; I am generous in my graces towards you all; seek forgiveness only in Me, the Benefactor.

1395. Then God will love you passionately; you will gain His bliss, His gift of love in your homes, far from the separation of your children and relatives. Let all my wickedness vanish, for it is dust; all is iniquity.

1396. Righteousness shall spring from My dust; I use My dust for purification.

1397. Just as Jacob loved Rachel with all his heart, declaring, 'I love you fervently', so too, son of man, love God with all your soul.

1398. The flames of love shall not be extinguished, nor shall your marital friendship be spared from cares and sorrows; this is the greatest gift that Elah has bestowed upon you – that you may love one another in spite of the dilemmas and adversities to which you are exposed.

1399. May he, like a remedy to enlighten blind eyes, see a ray in God's storehouse; may he see the light.

1400. O my Elah, who art most merciful, to be like God is a sign of Mercy.

1401. Distinguish yourselves by truthfulness, sincerity, care and concern for one another, and then the luminous dove of peace will come to your gathering places, will accompany you at your meals, in your misfortune and suffering.

1402. Let God be praised for this!

1403. Ask for God's mercy; it is justified.

1404. The fruitful garden of His commandments, in the longing for His love, is boundless.

1405. Such is the power of His will, to bestow the fruits of His knowledge, with joy and beyond sorrow, upon all people.

1406. My God is the true lover; my Elah is exalted above the heavens of the heavens.

1407. God, His Holy Name, is eternal; His Words do not change into others, regardless of the seasons.

1408. Elah does not age; the Great Giver of the fruits of goodness is unchanging.

1409. Ask also that you may forgive one another's wounds and transgressions, whether kin or stranger, whether worthy or unworthy.

1410. God will find and reward each one according to their deeds!

1411. Be ready, therefore, to spread the fragrant scents and incense of your righteous deeds, not to please people, but so that the goodness and blessing of Elah may be among you!

1412. Therefore, there is and will be no excuse for you for any family strife; eradicate strife and discord amongst yourselves; become radiant angels, drawing from your vessels all love, understanding and kindness towards one another.

1413. Every child is born gentle and sinless, so do not attribute to your child either their malice or the fact that they are sinless.

1414. Look at yourselves: were you like that?

1415. Draw from the source of God's love, harmony, unity and shared gatherings, and do not make distinctions amongst yourselves; do not fuel your child's hatred so that they might ignore you, but rather guide and show them what acts of mercy and kindness they should perform.

1416. Then surely both parent and child will be content; unite in singing, playing and laughing together.

1417. Children are not servants, nor should parents be, so serve one another as equals, using tender, respectful words.

1418. May your love – of wife for husband – last forever; if marriage falls, society will fall with it; respect one another.

1419. Be servants of love and of the awareness of your feelings.

1420. Be servants of love, gifts of contentment and joy to one another.

1421. Offer your efforts upon the altar of God, praying for the development of your children in a spirit of service and love for others.

1422. Whether your wife is deserving or not, hard-working or not, obedient or not, you, husband, treat her with respect.

1423. Show care and dignity in looking after your children and practise self-control towards one another.

1424. Let all unjust deeds, whether ingratitude, rudeness, hatred or violence, be removed like weeds from your minds and actions.

1425. Discord and anxiety have never brought happiness to married couples, but only sorrow, a lack of joy and despondency – avoid this, be sensible, and seek God's face with all your might!

1426. Do not be proud, but cast aside unnecessary humility too, especially between spouses; a balance of virtues is better than swinging from one extreme to the other.

1427. Remember, then – at His command, Elah determines the creation of all things.

1428. He gives life to the world, for His name is the Mighty One, Elah of Hosts. Figuratively speaking, Elah 'restores to life' separated and divided marriages, settles disputes and quarrels, and is the Healer of all things!

1429. Do not be blind and do not lose yourselves in the abyss of hatred and violence, stumbling over your sins on the Gesher bridge.

1430. Keep away from iniquity and walk the path of molo leading to the paradise of unity with Elah, the King of the Universe.

1431. I have said, as the Gate, that whoever walks and is truly righteous, observing these Scriptures, has entered Paradise, and those who reject the admonitions of this Holy Book have entered Hell, turning away from Elah – Whoever adheres to it – the Gesher – is mindful of loyalty to Elah, and if not, they follow a false path, becoming kings of arrogance, without a crown. How many people can cross the gesher and unite with Elah?

1432. How many hesitated, wavered and fell into the fire, their souls consumed by a raging fire.

1433. How many hesitate and cannot cross.

1434. Those who have crossed find salvation; those who hesitate have left the path of Elah and entered the fire.

1435. Thus, this Book separates good from evil; that is why it is figuratively called the gesher, the bridge of 'separation' between truth and falsehood, for the souls of the saints rise high, reaching the mountain of Elah?

1436. which is divided by the falsehood of the Gospel and the Quran.

1437. Greetings to all who understand this and do not deny it; say this, if only you trust in God – the Truth, God Elah is my Protector.

Friendship between nations

1438. Make the citizens of the world your friends, your companions.

1439. Rejoice in peace with them, share their misery and misfortune, and do everything possible to provide a roof over the heads of those in need.

1440. 434 To be an exemplary citizen, acquire every possible means to devote yourself to the peace of your family, friends, relatives and strangers.

1441. Peace amongst people is more precious than the pursuit of peace through power and interference in the affairs of this world.

1442. 435 To be an exemplary father, care constantly for your offspring, cradling them in the cradle of friendship, devoting yourself to them and addressing them with words of admonition interwoven with kindness.

1443. The benefits of your care are eternal; strive to be for them those who neither shout nor exploit their weak childish naivety to intimidate them.

1444. You, fathers and mothers, do not utter words that can only humiliate children; seek out and nurture in them all the divine virtues, encouraging children to be kind and teaching them love for animals, so that in the future they may learn to show love to the weak and the needy.

1445. 437. Nurture love within your families, strengthen your relationships with warm words, serve one another with joy; in this way, it will bring you the greatest benefit, the heavens will open above you, and rays of prosperity will dwell amongst you.

1446. Grow and do not stray from the source of God, and the source of sustaining love is mutual praise, the pursuit of shared desires, and the quelling of anger through mutual forgiveness.

1447. 438 Do not be disheartened, wife, when your husband constantly fails to help you at home?

1448. Seek help amongst the faithful, and let them admonish your husband and rebuke him if he does not take pride in helping you and turns his heart away from helping his children in their difficulties and from supporting them.

1449. Do not remain silent about the crimes that take place behind closed doors in other people's homes; do not allow harm to befall the weak, the poor, the disabled, wives, husbands, or even children.

1450. 439 Constantly seek friendship with strangers, whether they are friendly or hostile towards you, but do not let them hurt you with words, weapons or angry hands.

1451. If anyone is angry with their neighbour, regardless of their origin or skin colour, the one who sows hatred will find no peace either in this world or in the next.

1452. Avoid treating people the same because of their gender, skin colour or disability.

1453. God sees every deed and will reward you according to your deeds.

1454. 440 Is it necessary for you to be guided not so much by love for all humanity, since not everyone deserves such love?

1455. How many people in the world violate the principles of morality and good manners?

1456. Avoid such people; do not associate with sinners who sin knowingly.

1457. Do not associate with people who say 'peace, peace', but in reality are far from peace and seek only worldly power and human fame.

1458. Let your thoughts be guided not by falsehood, but by truth and a desire for the good of all, even your enemies.

1459. Accept every person; what right do we have to judge the lives of others, when we ourselves are sinners and we all seek forgiveness, seeking refuge in the One God?

1460. Do not seek enemies at work or at home; do not use harsh words or curses, but rather words of kindness and mutual respect.

1461. 442 Gossip only deepens anger and mutual distrust.

1462. Keep a friend's secret and conceal it if he or she so desires.

1463. Gossip brings only anxiety, the corruption of good morals, and confusion in the actions and minds of those who engage in it.

1464. 443 Even if you cannot stand a person and their past, do not speak ill of them, lest they turn away from God and curse Him.

1465. Use words of love towards those whom you have wronged with your words and deeds; turn to words of love always and everywhere where you have lied and your tongue has cursed the innocent.

1466. Do not deceive yourself; anyone who wishes to lead a decent life should work to support themselves, so as not to be a burden to those with whom they live.

1467. 444 If a verse in the Bible, the Koran or any other book commands you to do evil, you must reject it and not defend those verses, but show that they are words written by men, not inspired by God.

1468. All pain and suffering stem from those verses in these Books which concern abuse and wrongdoing, and over-interpreting these verses brings only despair and destroys everything that lies behind them.

1469. The best possible interpretation of these Books occurs when God's Law is subjected to human reason, faith in the Oneness of God is emphasised, and love for humanity is spread through the adoption of the 'Golden Rule'. Traditionally, Christianity, Islam and Judaism are based not on reason, but on divine revelation to clerics, supposedly revealed by God.

1470. If you look closely, none of them attains the truths of God's Word as does this Faith which I proclaim.

1471. Cast aside all selfishness; be worthy of respecting others just as you respect your own bodies and souls.

1472. My ministry is love, which spreads peace in the soul and in this world makes no distinction between the souls whom God has made His subjects.

1473. 446 There is no greater goodness than that which the Father shows us; He sends a bountiful rain upon the earth; He directs the sun to warm us; He surrounds us with His love and friendship.

1474. All joy, comfort and friendship come from Him; how much more, then, can we, by following His example, become like Him?

1475. 447 May joy, love and friendship reign in our homes; may we nourish ourselves with His gift of love and mutual kindness towards one another.

1476. May friendship among family members never fade; may the love between husband and wife never fade; may love for every stranger, relative or loved one never be stifled by any obstacle or insult towards people.

1477. In this way, we are to unite people and their bonds, not to divide them because of our faith or lack thereof.

1478. 448 As always, the colour of our skin matters not to God; He is our Creator, our Refuge when harm threatens us, our help in times of trouble!

1479. How much harm have Christians caused by misinterpreting the Holy Scriptures and believing that black people are not human?

1480. By God, what a disgusting confusion of the senses; may such a thought never cross their minds.

1481. May the good Lord show mercy to women, the weak, and those who are persecuted because of their sins or their faith.

1482. Truly, God is the true Healer of the soul; He is the true Remedy for all the sufferings of this world.

1483. It was once said that slavery would never return.

1484. How many people are innocently held in bondage by their masters, how many people work and are exploited for profit?

1485. All this is a crime; beware of greed and the desire to make money at the expense of harming the innocent.

1486. 449 Draw closer to one another, be united in love and friendship, and may the glory of God surround you.

1487. Show mutual friendship and live in harmony.

1488. 450 God has not ordained that anyone should shun their family or live in asceticism and humility.

1489. No person should be subjected to materialism or excessive poverty, which are destructive and strong in their desire to be a burden on society.

1490. Teach your children perseverance and hard work, and educate them in all disciplines, so that they may adorn their crowns with every great achievement.

1491. That you may become angels for God, be generous towards one another, obey your parents in what is right, obey your superiors, and do not quarrel in vain, if possible.

1492. Do not make slaves of one another; live in accordance with what your conscience dictates, and do not force upon anyone what they ought to believe.

1493. 451 A breath of divine inspiration has passed through my mind; write, and do not hesitate any longer?

1494. People have created hell on earth for themselves, starting bloody wars, spreading the love of money, making it their idol, and thereby oppressing and tormenting the weak and defenceless.

1495. God will deal with every good and evil deed; He is the Judge of us all, Elah of all worlds, visible and invisible!

1496. 452 Husband, do not belittle your wife's position in relation to you and to herself; wife, respect your husband if he is merciful and does not abuse his authority over you.

1497. Furthermore, do not reveal yourselves to your relatives if they do not understand our faith and our understanding of the world.

1498. Be precious pearls that have passed through suffering and been polished by the sea sand of difficulties and struggles in this world.

1499. The aim of God and His servants is to consult together as a family and amongst the faithful, and we are to devote our souls as fully as possible to preparing the world for that Wonderful World of the Future, an improved world without wars, quarrels or turmoil.

1500. So do not refuse to help the poor; always open your homes to the poor who are honest and will not take advantage of you.

1501. Welcome every person in need with open arms, and then you will have won one soul for Elah; feed them and clothe them, and then bring them to the Father.

1502. 454 Who are your neighbours?

1503. All people.

1504. Make friends with all people who are worthy of it; punish transgressions and refrain from wickedness.

1505. God will repay people for their transgressions, but judge them fairly according to their merits and treat them as your neighbours; welcome them and show them hospitality when they are in need.

1506. As it is said: 'Truth and the judgement of peace shall be measured at your [city's] gates'.

Love all people and seek peace with them, and also love the animals that do not belong to you but become your little friends, provided they are gentle towards you and do you no harm.

1507. 456 O God, there is not the slightest doubt that a life lived in harmony is a treasure for humanity.

1508. No criminal should be counted among those who are recorded in the books of heaven as saints.

1509. Every good or bad word, every smile or lack of a smile, every good or bad deed of a person is recorded in the books of heaven.

1510. Be a friend to all people, befriend them, stand by them in their misfortune and happiness, provide them with the necessities of life, and support them with your arm in difficult times.

1511. Similarly, if you put yourself in your neighbour's shoes, do not judge them hastily, but love them as you ought to love yourself, without looking for any faults in yourself or hating yourself.

1512. 457 Strengthen your abilities in wisdom, for therein lies the strength of power, the strength of peace, the strength of winning hearts for God, the strength of mercy, and the strength of progress.

1513. Likewise, whoever heeds this counsel gains entry into the Garden of Eden, treading golden paths, walking in the light and clothed in a body of light.

1514. 458 Love your loved ones, relatives and strangers, not to please God, but love selflessly, casting aside all selfishness; this is true love, guided by self-denial for the good of those near and far.

1515. Treat this advice as a precious treasure, as it is said: 'I teach you a precious lesson: do not despise my instruction'.

1516. 459 Just as you love your neighbour, you need patience, but you also need respect towards your wives, and husbands towards their children, their wives and one another.

1517. A wife, just like a husband, has the right to run the household, to speak her mind and to suggest what needs changing; a wife is a manager and a guardian on an equal footing with her husband.

1518. This balance of power in the home pleases God; it is a family of God, in which equality, patience and selfless love bring happiness and joy.

1519. 460 If a wife is facing difficulties or is sad, let her not seek solitude; let her share her suffering with her husband; likewise, when a husband is struggling with difficulties, let him seek the company of his wife.

1520. Such love is a shared bearing of burdens, a shared giving of love, a shared bond of help and cooperation.

1521. 461 If a father truly loves his children, he should play with them, and a mother should dance with them.

1522. A true home is a home of love, a home of cooperation and mutual compassion.

1523. Let there be no room in the home for quarrels over any matter; let there be no room for violence and hatred; all the books of God forbid violence, command mutual respect from the wife towards the husband, and command compassion and love based on guidance amongst neighbours and amongst family members.

1524. The same applies to children; no child should be forced to obey; children are born innocent and should not be severely punished, but treated with compassion; all violence must be avoided, and verbal reprimand is preferable.

1525. At the same time, children deserve respect like any human being; they are our younger brothers and sisters.

1526. This verse speaks of respect for every man, every wife and every child: 'Those who honour me I will honour, and those who despise me I will humble'.

1527. In this life, punishment follows punishment, and reward follows reward; this is heaven or hell on earth.

1528. Whoever has entered the scales of punishment has entered the scales of guilt, and whoever has entered the scales of merit has entered the scales of paradise, for the gates of paradise stand open before him.

1529. Nor deny the Oneness of God, as it is said: 'There is no god but the One God', lest you be counted among the inhabitants of the Fire, both in this world and in the world to come.

1530. Therefore, do not despise any person; devote yourself to the service of others, neglecting them not in the slightest, nor shunning those in genuine need for even a moment.

1531. May you enter the scales of Paradise, for you have faithfully loved the Oneness and Indivisibility of God, and faithfully loved strangers and your loved ones.

1532. Walking the paths of repentance brings you nothing but benefits, and you draw holy angels to your side, and they become a shield for you against the punishment and wrath of sin.

1533. So earn a good deed for a good deed, and gain an angel of light as your defender and guardian.

1534. If you wish to be truly perfect like God, greet both your companions and strangers.

1535. Likewise, if you meet an enemy and he returns your hatred, respond with a smile and kindness, so that his mind may be transformed.

1536. Likewise, if your enemy falls, it is your duty to lift him up, not to rejoice in his fall.

1537. It has been said: 'Do not rejoice at your enemy's downfall; do not rejoice in your heart at his stumbling, 18 lest Elah, seeing this, take offence at you and turn his wrath away from him.'

1538. Avoid envy and the lust for money, lest you oppress the poor; wise is he who shares his bread with the poor, that they may be satisfied.

1539. Likewise, whether someone is important or not, you should not interrupt them whilst they are speaking; let them finish, especially the elderly, for they deserve respect.

1540. Unrest, famine and wars are the result of human activity, so do not hesitate to bring peace among people, feed the poor and oppose wars.

1541. Similarly, those who do not walk the paths of justice abuse the rights of animals just as they do the rights of people; misfortune befalls wild animals just as it does innocent people; in this way, the earth is desecrated, and people and gentle animals are deprived of respect and love because of human folly.

1542. So do not allow gentle animals and innocent people to be harmed.

1543. 467 Selfless love is better than silver or gold; it is better than adorning oneself with rings and earrings.

1544. Truly, the angels of light watch over those who spread love that is not subject to selfishness or the pursuit of profit.

1545. This is your silver and gold, which is expressed in your pure deeds and crystal-clear words.

1546. Live in harmony with those who are strangers to you, with your relatives, with those who hate you, or with those who wish you ill.

1547. The righteousness of the good servant will endure forever, whilst the wickedness of the fool will pass away and become his hell on earth.

1548. Likewise, do not seek praise for yourselves to feed your selfishness and desire for self-aggrandisement.

1549. Cultivate in your mind righteousness, love and selflessness; strive to restrain your anger, and show yourself to others through acts of kindness as your brother.

1550. 469 True love is free from hatred and anger and is not exhausted by beautiful emotional words or by showing mutual help and support.

1551. May the Divine Shekinah embrace every person and become a light for them on the path of life.

1552. Do not worry in vain; seek help from God, but also prepare yourself for the duties that life has placed upon you, so that you are not taken by surprise by their accumulation.

1553. Make honest choices and manage your time so that you may fulfil all your duties.

1554. Be grateful for everything you have, for you might have less than you already possess.

1555. Similarly, do not cut yourself off from all caring people; accept kind words and gratitude, and return them with kind words of your own and be grateful to them.

1556. Do not poison your life by worrying about yourself; rather, fulfil your duties so that they do not pile up.

1557. Be patient, too, and distinguish yourself by your gentleness amongst those who are worthy or of little worth.

1558. Free yourself from your lust for money and women, and God will bestow upon you every happiness, for you have overcome your greed, your temptation, and shared what you had with the poor, and turned your temptation into moderation, thus becoming wise in the eyes of God.

1559. God created all that is visible and invisible.

1560. May the flame of love for the Creator never be extinguished within us.

1561. God is Elah of light, that is, the arbiter who separates from darkness.

1562. May goodness itself blossom beneath the leaves of His tree of unity.

1563. Nuqta d-Reshita – He, the Uncreated One, His eternal light, whose purity and brightness know no end; the good within us shall return to the tree of harmony.

1564. Goodness also returns to the tree of the harmony of goodness and judgement, whilst the evil we have done returns to the other side, to the tree of falsehood and selfishness, the tree of the knowledge of evil.

1565. God is justice and goodness; let us hold fast to all goodness.

1566. Adorn yourselves with the strength of humility, with the garments of submission to the One King and Saviour of mankind, your God.

1567. 473 You must be as humble as possible, so that your hearts may be turned towards the Godhead of God Himself, and away from carnality and foolish deeds filled with greed.

1568. 474 Change your garments for those of sobriety; turn your faces towards the One, Indivisible God.

1569. Be rich in virtue, respect your elders, give the poor their due, and keep away from the materialism of this world.

1570. Act consciously, not unconsciously; think about what you do and how you behave.

1571. Restrain your thoughts and wicked deeds, that you may be holy, just as He Himself is holy.

1572. Cast your cares upon Elah; He stands at your gates, sending messengers of light.

1573. He bestows peace upon you and your family, provided you yourself are at peace, and the stream flows from pure waters, where your words and deeds are sincere, uplifting, and directed towards serving your family and loved ones.

1574. 476 Oh yes, God has commanded that all possible resources be given to the poor, to those who truly need help.

1575. And let no name be cursed on earth, for they themselves do justice and bring peace.

1576. Consider it therefore best to give Elah as much as you yourselves deem just and necessary.

1577. 477 Truly, God has commanded us to be merciful towards our enemies and our friends, to be humble and gentle towards those who wish us well and those who curse us, to be distributors of good and givers of aid to those who need it most, and not to those who feign misfortune.

1578. 478 God will soon gather the saints; He will cover with His mantle of protection all who love Him.

1579. Those whom His mind loves in His Spirit are truly people distinguished by goodness, those ready to help the poor, those who do not cheat in trade, those who are honest every day, those who respect their wives – together with their children – are moral.

1580. All these saints deserve peace, prolong their lives, enjoy the blessings of Elah, and are a joy to all.

1581. 479 Be people full of love for one another, so that you may be like a house with foundations, unshaken by the spiritual storms of life.

1582. 480 Who are your neighbours?

1583. All those who deserve to be called human beings, because they behave like human beings and distinguish themselves by wonderful deeds, as well as those who are far from doing good, are sinners.

1584. Yes, we are all sinners and we ourselves seek refuge in God alone; we are all people close to one another, seeking help and healing for the wounds of our sins in the One God.

1585. 481 Yes, our God is Love; He needs no intermediaries to forgive us.

1586. He is great in His Love; He does not wish to harm anyone.

1587. He is the true Father; seek His face, if you can.

1588. He searches the earth for righteous people who heed His voice; He is the Saviour and the only Rock of peace!

1589. 482 Thus God has commanded us to act rightly, to perfect ourselves in all the virtues of heaven.

1590. Piety alone will not suffice; it cannot prevent one from being virtuous, nor can prayer replace morality.

1591. Piety and constant prayer do not bring us closer to Elah; He knows what is necessary for us, so partake of the spiritual food of heaven – constantly do good, nourishing yourselves with the food sent from heaven.

1592. 483 Serve one another, and most importantly, do not separate your families because of faith or lack of faith in God; God's purpose is love and the spreading of love.

1593. 484 Take care of your minds, lest you become too attached to materialism or weave for yourselves carpets of good deeds; a virtuous life is essential and praised by Elah, but you need not fill your lives with rituals, repeated mantras and ceremonies that become your 'good deeds'. There is nothing worse than seeking 'good merits'. 485 There is nothing worse than seeking 'good merits' amidst the spiritual filth to be found among people who claim to be faithful to God – be they Jews, Christians or Muslims.

1594. 486 Love in words is fleeting, but love expressed in deeds is not fleeting; the former brings no lasting benefit, the latter brings lasting benefit.

1595. Distinguish yourselves by love expressed in acts of mercy.

1596. Through acts of selfless, devoted love, and not selfishness, you please God.

1597. Respect your neighbours, that is, your wives, yourselves, as well as your children, relatives and strangers, with words full of respect and love.

1598. 487 A truly devout man is one who loves his children selflessly, cares for them, and looks after his wife.

1599. This is the noblest love, a love that expects nothing in return.

1600. And he who seeks only gentleness sets his ego aside and strives for the happiness of those close to him.

1601. 488 The pursuit of asceticism, monastic life and poverty has never been man's destiny.

1602. Poverty, monastic life and asceticism dishonour man and the virtues with which God has endowed him.

1603. Their lusts can never be restrained by human influences or external human actions; only God grants us self-restraint and destroys the snares of lust and sin.

1604. 489 Faith in Elah is not enough on the path of Elah – whoever claims to believe only in Elah but does not act in accordance with His commandments to live virtuously, his faith is futile and empty.

1605. 490 True devotion to Elah is to be graced by Him, to curb one's lusts, to practise self-restraint, and to do no harm to others.

1606. True devotion is a life dedicated to others, to their well-being and happiness.

1607. 491 Your neighbours are, first, your family, then your relatives, and finally good strangers.

1608. In the eyes of Elah, the pursuit of wisdom and being over-educated is worthless if you believe in God but do nothing for the good of the world and the people living in it.

1609. 492 Only fools think that their faith in God is enough to make them saints.

1610. Elah values these souls and exalts them even further if they enjoy the good reputation they truly deserve; Elah delights in the presence of people like holy angels, if they are filled with all the virtues of heaven.

1611. They are more precious than pearls, for they have been tested by the sands of temptation; thus the pearl is the result of their arduous achievements and their overcoming of temptations.

1612. 493 A brazen man who destroys good morals, his fidelity and purity, is a fool in the eyes of God.

1614. Be holy, as holy as Elah.

1615. 494 Truly faithful to God is he who curbs his passions and is moderate, avoiding unnecessary debauchery, seeking purity for himself and then for others.

1616. 495 The governments of this world have passed away; why then support that which passes away, which has no value to Elah?

1617. They sow nothing but anger upon the earth; war and bloodshed are their answer to every solution.

1618. 496 Do not deprive yourselves of the feeling that flows from love; deprive yourselves of sin, which weakens family ties, which is like poison, destroying gentleness and the companionship of your wives and children.

1619. 497 Depression is harmful; there is no person in the world who has not experienced sadness.

1620. But on the path of Elah, He brings us joy and destroys the snares of despondency.

1621. Be companions of joy and enemies of despondency and sorrow.

1622. 498 Be grateful to Elah for your lives, for your families, for what He gives you.

1623. Elah, the One King of Kings

Do not boast that you are exceedingly wise; cast aside your notions that you are the most eloquent; our Elah grants the wisdom of faith and the wisdom of justice, which are indispensable in our earthly life.

1624. Do not boast of your wisdom, for all this may vanish in an instant; all our knowledge and all our seeking cannot compare to the splendour and dominion of our God, for eternity in our bright robes.

1625. He is our God, the only one who can save; He is the Saviour of Saviours and the King of Kings.

1626. 500 Be steadfast in righteousness, for the most important thing for God is the perfection of all virtues that are useful in heaven; may we be partakers of the heavenly table and share our spiritual bread with those who are hungry and thirsty; when they are thirsty and hungry, we may feed them.

1627. 501 Kindle within yourselves a love for all people.

1628. Be fervent in your love for your wives, children and relatives.

1629. Pour out love with all your heart, draw water into your jugs and share it with your neighbours, listening to one another and quenching the thirst of those you love.

1630. And do not hesitate to love; let it be true before your eyes, so that you may love nobly, without taking advantage of those you love or those who are strangers to you.

1631. This golden rule of love has never been erased from the treasuries of heaven, nor will any acts of kindness ever be struck from the records by the divine angels.

1632. 502 These are sincere words I address to you: do not turn away from all virtues, do not neglect your families because of faith or lack of faith, nor squander money in vain; be moderate in all things, seeking a purpose in life, following the path of moderation, not fanaticism.

1633. 503 Raise the cups of harmony, sharing your peace with citizens of all kinds, so that they may not curse your names; respect one another even in the event of a quarrel, earnestly seeking solutions and Nur d-Elah amongst you.

1634. 504 Suffer no more and endure no more the torments of fools, the careless, whom harmony troubles, for whom the burdens of life are a pleasure, but in reality are a curse.

1635. Rejoice in the counsel sent by Elah, rejoice in the great news.

1636. Do not, therefore, take away the life that Elah has given to another; He gives life, so how can anyone take it away, unless he is the worst of evildoers?

1637. When you are weary, rest beneath the tree of knowledge; quench the thirst of those who are insatiable; rise also towards the light, you who are surrounded by darkness.

1638. Be full of joy, even if you are alone.

1639. Abandoned by their families, old and young alike, let them seek and drink freely from the fountain of the water of life; let them not wander in vain, seeking the dark recesses of temples which cannot offer shelter, but are merely their snares and traps.

1640. 506 Do not abandon anyone, neither the elderly, nor the widow, nor the woman with children; they need your help; care for one another, and Elah will look after you, and the holy angels will rejoice at every holy deed of yours!

1641. 507 Let not a single word of yours be spoken in vain; he who sows vain words shall reap quarrels and discord; refrain from quarrels and disturbances as much as possible.

1642. 508 A liar is an enemy of God, but it is not commanded to persecute him, but to bear with him with a kind heart.

1643. 509 Whatever language you speak, whatever clothes you wear, speak together in the language of mutual respect and love.

1644. No one has commanded anyone to mistreat their neighbour, nor has anyone commanded anyone to treat them with contempt.

1645. Anyone who thinks otherwise should be ashamed of their foolishness.

1646. All our good and evil deeds are recorded in the books of heaven by the holy angels.

1647. May you practise justice and overcome wickedness within yourselves; may the scales of your goodness tip in your favour, so that you may rejoice in the presence of Elah for all eternity.

1648. 510 Therefore, do not be foolish servants; do not be vain, and do not indulge in materialism, nurturing your selfish desires and destroying love for your neighbour. Yes, the world may become a marketplace of vanity, so shall we change the world and its destiny?

1649. But do not be what the world wants you to be; separate yourselves from the world, keep away from the pursuit of wealth, seek wealth consciously without causing suffering, and spread love for one another.

1650. 511 Surely our homes will be sanctified if we ponder our duties day and night, and our virtues should be inscribed in our minds.

1651. It was once said – purify your souls of evil and rise above sin; what wonderful counsel, which blossomed in the revelation of God's majesty, he himself sought answers from God; people think he believed in no one, but he exalted the good power that dwelt within him, he exalted the Mother and the Father, he exalted the divine Shekinah.

1652. 512 It is not our duty to judge people by their appearance, by what they wear, by what they eat, or by which God they worship – they have knowledge of Elah or lack thereof, depending on the circumstances they have encountered; depending on where they were born, their knowledge of Elah is greater or lesser, or negligible.

1653. 513 Every person on earth has divine power within them, that is, the Shekhinah, the messenger of Heaven, and everyone has an 'adversary' within them, Satan.

1654. Listen to the Shechinah, who has adopted a beautiful yet encouraging approach to sobriety and to a holy life, and do not let yourselves be overcome by the temptations of Satan that are in your minds.

1655. 514 May you not tread the path of lawlessness, for otherwise you will descend into the abyss, the symbolic hell, far from God and the riches of His Love.

1656. We have been commanded to be rewarded for righteous deeds and not to engage in crime, hatred and violence – this is forbidden, and it is even forbidden to speak of it in the presence of those who are weak, lest they themselves succumb to temptation.

1657. 515 Purification here can mean only one thing: bidding farewell to deeds that harm others.

1658. If we cut ourselves off from unrighteousness, we shall surely be like the Holy Prophets, who are depicted as 'crystal diamonds' reflecting the light of 'truth' or of God Himself, whom Buddhists identify with the power of goodness.

1659. 516 If one zealously adheres to 'Truth' and its divine counsel, practising all the virtues of righteousness, one will surely surpass every saint and prophet.

1660. One must not be negligent in doing what is right, just and purifying for the soul and mind.

1661. People who believe that faith alone will save them, through 'believing in God' without bearing mature fruit, harbour a false hope that Elah will take them into His arms and bring them into the heavenly family of angels and saints.

1662. 517 By reflecting this divine power, this divine Spirit, this true God who manifests Himself in the Shekinah, and He in it, we may clothe ourselves in His rays, radiate joyfully all His attributes, causing no confusion amongst people, loving others as ourselves.

1663. We then reflect the 'Truth' of God, which, thanks to the good angel who inspires us with wonderful and lofty thoughts, causes us to practise and spread justice as it pleases Heaven, and we condemn and suppress unrighteousness, which harms people, is poison to their delicate lungs, and instead of being a wonderful fragrance, becomes a cruel impurity repelling God's angels.

1664. 518 'A mixture of burning desires' is nothing other than our departure from the source of life and a manifestation of wickedness in our lives.

1665. The desires that tempt and exploit us cause spiritual corruption and distance us from the presence of the blessings of the Almighty Elah and the One Saviour.

1666. The 'illusion' that we create ourselves is sin, our departure from God's counsel, which sustains our relationship with the Elah of the whole world.

1667. If we love Elah with all our strength, we will strive earnestly for justice, so that neither people nor animals may suffer harm.

1668. If we cling to the 'impulse' of selfishness within ourselves, we surely become 'unclean gods' instead of welcoming Elah into our hearts; let us be pure angels, holy messengers of Elah and His Majesty.

1669. 519 Sin can burn and tear us to shreds; it is an unjust 'desire' that arises in our minds and can cause us great suffering.

1670. It brings misfortune to our homes, to the places where we work, to the places where we wish to be brothers of the angels and righteous people.

1671. 520 Let us be like the angels who, day and night, see their calling in us, giving us the opportunity to turn away from the mire of sin through their gentle reminders within us.

1672. 521 Remember also that a person is far happier if they truly reject all selfishness, desiring every blessing first for their family, then for their neighbours and relatives, and only then for themselves.

1673. Healthy self-interest is when you remember yourself without neglecting the good of others, when you love yourself and remember your own needs, and then remember your neighbours, relatives and families whom you care about in equal measure.

1674. This is best achieved when we are guided by the principle of a clear mind, the principle of moderation, the principle of loving first all those we love, and only then ourselves.

1675. 522 Materialism is the 'Antichrist' of this world; attachment to transitory things rather than spiritual ones, such as money, is something this world can do without.

1676. God's world is love; if we do not help the poor and avoid them because of the cost of living, because of our own negligence, we are not worthy to call ourselves saints.

1677. A truly needy and poor person is one who finds themselves in a difficult situation, without work or means of support; we can help such people, rather than merely saying that we help.

1678. God's aim is not to compel anyone to help the poor; Elah's aim is to draw people's attention to the fact that there are other souls beside them who are suffering and in need of care.

1679. 523 People stray from the path of mercy in favour of amassing money; wealth is good, and thrift is praised by Elaha.

1680. However, wealth and the sources of wealth intended to oppress the weak and exploit them are cursed by Heaven; anyone who indulges in usury, who seeks to harm others, thereby amassing wealth, is marked in the heavenly books as a sinner, as one who transgresses the eternal law of love, empathy and compassion.

1681. It is rightly said: happier is he who has renounced earthly pleasures.

1682. This means that any pleasure which harms others must be unacceptable to the saints, to those whom God has loved.

1683. Unite yourselves, therefore, for the common good, so that you may share all your goods with those who are truly in need, and with those who are hungry and thirsty in body and spirit.

1684. 524 Who is your neighbour, for not all people are your neighbours!

1685. Take an interest in all the problems, needs and lives of both your family and strangers.

1686. Love and be kind to those you love and to those you do not have to love; gentleness, humility and cordiality are the diadems that distinguish the saints, and the diadems and precious stones of their deeds adorn the crowns of every saint in life and after the death of the body.

1687. 525 Gather together in common ranks, spreading mutual love, without diminishing sincere cordiality, zeal for justice, honesty, and mercy towards the suffering.

1688. Your crystal crowns are already prepared for you in heaven; they shall also adorn you during your lifetime.

1689. 526 Enter the sanctuary of Elah whilst you are still alive; do not wait for justice to reign on earth, but transform the ruins and sufferings of war into peaceful coexistence and harmony right now.

1690. Turn discord into harmony; Elah has commanded you to strive for harmony.

1691. Rejoice in the way of Elah, offer sacrifices in His honour, and obey Him.

1692. He bestows harmony, love and joy; He is the peacemaker of nations and of your souls.

1693. May you understand that war, discord and unrest are not the way to exalt Elah; Heaven's aim is to transform our former earthly minds and impure thoughts into magnificent palaces, full of purity, order and peace.

1694. How much more important it is to love one's family than to love the whole world and to follow God's path, so as to welcome everyone into the assembly of Elah.

1695. Love yourselves; if you love your wives and children without hurting them, then you truly love yourselves.

Healing the wounds of those in mourning

1696. Mercy, mutual aid, brotherhood and fellowship have always been God's message.

1697. There is not the slightest doubt that God has given every being freedom and endowed them with qualities of respect; therefore, do not despise anyone, respect and treat everyone as you yourselves would wish to be treated.

1698. Do not worry if trials befall you; healing of wounds occurs only when you are equal companions.

1699. Build yourselves a nest, weave a nest of cooperation, help one another, help the needy and the weak.

1700. Elah's commandment is to wish well to those who discourage and humiliate us; let us befriend all the nations and faiths of the world, and above all, let us call all the citizens of the world our friends.

1701. Let our concern for our neighbours be expressed not only in words but also in deeds; not everyone who speaks is truly devoted to God or to their neighbours.

1702. True love for people is expressed in deeds, not in fine phrases and lofty words intended to impress the crowds.

1703. On God's path, do not be cruel, but sow love, reconciliation and harmony.

1704. Heaven and earth are commanded to bring peace among nations, to wage peaceful wars, to defend one another, and not to kill the innocent.

1705. We are commanded to defend our homes, our families and the weak against invaders, every tyrant and every criminal.

1706. Unite with the Shekhinah of reconciliation and do not be among the nations where blood is shed and wars are waged for glory, for money and for plunder, for they bring only sacrifice and misfortune if they are abused.

1707. They believed in the oneness of God, so that they might love one another as their own flesh, so that through unity and harmony great joy might reign.

1708. On his spiritual path, he befriended everyone he met, and Shem, ruler of Salem, the city of peace, welcomed him joyfully, and he received him with gratitude.

1709. Thus the heavens commanded them to care for one another, not to despise the weak, and to offer joy and hospitality to every righteous stranger.

1710. It was commanded to love one's neighbour faithfully and not to abandon him in times of trial.

1711. Do not sever family ties, as some foolishly proclaim, but bind the family together with bonds of cooperation, reconciliation and love; and do not divide it because of a lack of faith or any conviction regarding God.

1712. 535 Do not despise family love, nor love for widows and orphans, nor the love that unites the weak with the strong, nor the love that gives warmth to the elderly and children.

1713. Likewise, do not wish ill upon your relatives, neighbours, or even your enemies.

1714. Heaven commands us to do justice, to avoid evil, and to perform good deeds.

1715. Your faith in God is essential, but the most important thing is to love those you know and those to whom you are a stranger.

1716. 536 All company is beneficial, and above all, strength and wisdom are needed so as not to lead children into the snare of unsavoury company, but to guide them towards what is noble and beneficial for their young souls, towards what is righteous and virtuous.

1717. 537 People will lay aside all weapons and misunderstandings, moving towards a bright future on 'Mount Elah', the temple built solely for Him.

1718. Then the world will understand its errors, its iniquities, and God's dwelling among men will be the source through which peace, joy and gladness on earth will blossom like a rose from parched earth, raised up by the light of the Holy Spirit and showered with abundant rain, like the grace and love of the Father.

1719. This great prophecy, this great hope, is intended for us.

1720. 538 Let your faith fill you with joy, but do not allow it to become the rule of your life; strive for moderation and a clear mind, for the middle way, and not for fanaticism or the abuse of piety and religiosity in the name of God.

1721. God did not create any religion; people created it for themselves to enslave innocent souls, exploiting their credulity; they catch the butterfly and its treasures in a net, just as the spider does, so the entire clergy seeks only easy gain, and only a small part of it attempts to free the faithful from the net of the bird-man!

1722. 539 Uttering words that people like – words of religiosity, not spirituality – is a requirement of the clergy; they have learnt worthless doctrines, and yet all the clergy of the Jews, Muslims and

Christians believe that the knowledge and wealth they harbour in their minds are treasures for the faithful, but to God they are rust that rots and fades away.

1723. How foolish they are, how they lure innocent butterflies into their nets, how they kill innocent souls for their own gain and money.

1724. But Elah says to you: enough of your efforts and hoarding of money; let all this perish with you!

1725. 540 Let the flowers of gratitude, feelings of love, and loving admonitions bloom for those who scorn My words and these holy verses.

1726. Verily, God is above all the faithful and reveals what is hidden, so that the world may behold the splendour of Elah, His gentleness, His love, His goodness. He is Elah, who leads from fear to joy and courage.

1727. He is Elah who gives us the courage to fight with His word on the path of God, on the path of His Oneness!

1728. 541 Thus, the covenant of love and friendship is the greatest order in the world that Elah has given us.

1729. To feed the poor and clothe the needy is the greatest glory and the greatest privilege.

1730. Gratitude comes from the hand of God, so let gratitude, mercy and help for the poor flow from your hands.

1731. The 542nd Commandment was that we should never subjugate the earth through violence, but through acts of mercy, that blood should never be shed in vain, and that battles or wars should never be waged.

1732. Thus Elah inspired me to write this, to admonish you and to endow you with all the qualities of the citizens of heaven, which prove that you are already true saints upon the earth.

1733. Smiles will be on the children's lips if harmony, love and joy enter the homes of those to whom Nur d-Elah has been revealed, where selfless deeds have become the norm within families and this has not been concealed.

1734. 544 Let us therefore build temples amongst people, temples of the spirit amongst the citizens of heaven, so that we may continue to host holy angels and not cause irritation or arouse contempt in those who are strangers or close to us.

1735. We are also destined to seek the love of our wives and children, to welcome friends with the greatest joy, and strangers who sincerely need help.

1736. 545 Before God, all people are equal; all of us, regardless of race and origin, were created equal.

1737. It is not poverty or wealth that makes us citizens of Heaven, but our light and virtue amongst the many who do not know Elah of Unity.

1738. 546 And no modest garment of women can cover their faces; clothe yourselves in the robes and veils of light and the Holy Spirit, O women, then you shall rule your souls justly!

1739. True fidelity, friendship and love never ask selfishly nor seek benefit in anything other than the exaltation of the beloved, the companion and Elah.

1740. To love in such a way as not to hurt is the answer to all quarrels; it is the solution to all suffering and discord.

1741. May the good God not forgive the sins of the destroyers of peace, the criminals and the instigators of violence, but may He multiply their hell, their sorrows and their trials, for Elah is truly just, taking vengeance on the wicked and the unjust!

1742. 547 Therefore, do not sleep in your beds and do not be guided by violence or hatred, but keep in your minds the bright clouds of love, all thoughts of peace and mutual aid!

1743. 548 Be patient with one another, seek forgiveness both within your families and amongst strangers, and then a belt of mercy shall surround you, and all blessings shall flow upon your misfortunes; truly, our Elah is a far-sighted Lawgiver, He who shows His grace through gifts and distributes the gifts of His prosperity amongst the faithful.

1744. Do good, then, that you may be happy!

1745. 549 Envy is not, either, a means of fostering peace or of soothing those who have been wronged.

1746. People allow themselves to be jealous so as not to be hurt by the feelings of others; they seek a way to justify their laziness and carelessness through jealousy of others.

1747. Avoid envy, for it is unnecessary and harmful in itself.

1748. Seek within yourself gratitude and mutual understanding, which are far more necessary than seeking quarrels and envy.

1749. 550 Inner peace can be attained by drawing strength from Elah, our Merciful One.

1750. Jealousy can be resolved by encouraging such people to try cooperating with those they envy.

1751. Every kind and courteous word is a remedy for a wounded soul; it is far better than coveting others' possessions and envy, which cannot be satisfied.

1752. 551 At the bottom of earthly hell lie murder, lies, hatred and violence.

1753. These are followed by all manner of abuses, including conceit, misery and envy.

1754. Do not seek fault in others until you have first found it in yourself – this is excellent advice – we mortals are not 'gods' above the One God, to judge the reasons why others choose this or that way of life.

1755. Praise be to you for that!

1756. 552 Those who do not devote time to changing for the better stagger, drunk with godlessness.

1757. Every virtue is a joy to Elah and the holy angels.

1758. Truly, Elah has commanded that we should not create idols for ourselves – no neighbours; He has commanded that we should kill our own selfishness, so that the healthy 'self' may be seen, and not the sick 'self' attached to the exaltation of one's own being.

1759. Be faithful to God, not to me nor to any man, but to Elah; seek the wisdom of Elah and do not wander in the clouds of hopelessness, following every mortal who claims to be infallible!

1760. 553 Do not demand of yourselves what you yourselves cannot bear; do not seek fault in others if you yourselves are without fault; do not humiliate others, even if they are accursed; yes, point out their faults, but never deny them a second chance to change!

1761. Elah wanted you to forgive and seek favour in the eyes of your wives, husbands and children.

1762. Be merciful and understanding; seek unity with your families, with your wives and children, and do not turn away from their difficulties for a single moment.

1763. 554 Heaven has instructed you to preserve righteousness, to uproot the seeds of misunderstanding and malice, to sow the seeds of harmony in your minds, and to make harmony a joyful message.

1764. Do not make mistakes and do not seek discord; seek friendship within your families, amongst the mothers who nurse your children, amongst the wives who serve their husbands out of concern for them, amongst the children who are a joy to you.

1765. 555 Do not hesitate to make your neighbour your friend.

1766. Do not look down on others, do not despise them, do not seek to cause offence or to exalt yourselves, whether you are parents or spouses.

1767. It is impossible to conceal or trample underfoot all evil, so all evil deeds, just like good ones, are recorded by the scribes, the heavenly messengers up there in the heavens.

1768. Fear Elah if you wound even a single soul with your word or deed; be merciful and even-handed in suffering, showing mercy and compassion to those near and far.

1769. 556 Unwise and dishonest actions and deeds increase and deepen further worries; cast aside this poison, rid yourself of all leaven, and nourish yourself with wholesome food, the bread of life full of wondrous gratitude, mutual understanding and kindness towards one another.

1770. Parents have duties towards their children, so teach your children responsibility; do not impose too many duties upon them; use punishments and admonitions in such a way as not to wound their delicate souls.

1771. Show your children love and help them; reject abuse, threats and harsh judgements; wisdom is needed so as not to lead them down the path of rebellion.

1772. Show mercy, but also discipline; combine the two.

1773. 558 Domestic violence must be overcome and must never be hidden from the world.

1774. It is a disgrace for a husband to use violence, but a wife should respect her husband, and improper behaviour and lack of respect should not extend to families where God is exalted, where His Majesty is glorified.

1775. Follow the path of love and mutual understanding; this is the best advice for those who wish to be sensible, for those who follow Elah and love Him in return!

1776. When someone kills unintentionally, they do not face the death penalty; they are not responsible for the shedding of innocent blood.

1777. However, they must pay compensation to the family of the deceased, ask them for forgiveness, ask Elah, the Merciful, for forgiveness, and show repentance for the unintentional killing.

1778. Thus, this verse is justice beyond justice; let everyone judge fairly and not pursue a murderer who has killed unintentionally; only intentional murder is a crime!

1779. 560 But do not treat the murderer lightly; that is to say, he is a criminal in the sight of God; there is no ambiguity in this.

1780. Every killing is one committed in war to kill intentionally; all kinds of killing are forbidden by Heaven, that is, those arising from violence, from hatred, from the desire for gain, from the desire to torment and cause harm.

1781. Elah is exalted above all nations; He does not alter His principles by so much as a jot!

1782. Elah, the sole Giver of life

The sole Giver of life, loving all people equally!

1783. Thus Elah has promised us that we shall be humble, we shall not covet goods in excess if we do not need them.

1784. Beware of all evil, the whispers of evil and evil thoughts.

1785. We have been gifted to cultivate living words, words of love, to be mature in our actions, focused on fulfilling God's most faithful promises, on fulfilling His laws.

1786. 562 We have been promised that we shall nurture mutual love, meet all our family's needs, and neglect no one.

1787. Caring for one's own children, meeting their needs and maintaining a relationship with them requires effort, self-restraint and sobriety, forging a bond of love with them through self-denial and devotion.

1788. The unity of the chosen peoples is essential in order to share the fate of the holy, despised nation.

1789. In this way, we shall soon be united with them as one family.

1790. 563 The great ones of this world possess all riches, they are powerful, but I am poor; are they nobler than I, or are they rather poor before the Elah of the whole world?

1791. Their riches will perish with them; they will gather no treasure or wealth for their Elah; they will not redeem their souls with their treasures!

1792. We are free to be rich, but we must not forget the commandments and marvellous promises of Elah and our One Saviour Yahweh.

1793. 564 Give glory to God, and give Him His dowry as well; it is through Him that you live and through Him that you breathe, so why do you turn away from Him, why do you despise the poor and the weak among your people?

1794. Is not Elah's dowry our virtuous conduct, our modest life and our boundless worship of Elah? Let us serve our neighbours, and Elah will dwell amongst us.

1795. 565 Are we not His bride, and He our bridegroom?

1796. Thus, Elah intended for us to lead a life of purity, to the extent that we are able to bear it; He did not command us to live in celibacy.

1797. My Elah is my gift; I bring Him a wedding dowry in the form of my noble deeds; I share with Him the joy of marrying Him, here and now, at this very moment.

1798. Similarly, nowhere is it stipulated that a wife should give a dowry to her husband, but I see no equality in this; it is an old custom; whoever wishes to find happiness in this, let them give a dowry as they see fit.

1799. 566 In the New Scriptures and other writings of the New Scriptures, it is promised to realise women's rights, to strengthen them and not to leave them behind.

1800. Laws directed against women are still being drawn up in the West, but, shamefully, in the East, amongst Hindus and some Muslims, the rights of the weaker, those subordinate to the social and caste hierarchy, as well as women, are still being overlooked.

1801. God's aim has always been to ensure that people have the opportunity to develop on an equal footing, rather than being enemies and competitors.

1802. Elah's aim is to abolish all castes, to abolish hierarchy in faith and society, and His aim is to ensure equal opportunities for all.

1803. 567 The Heavenly Shekhinah dwells in the hearts of every woman and every man, so why do you call a woman inferior and yourself superior?

1804. You are loved by Elah if you uphold gender equality; if you oppose any hierarchy or caste system, Elah will serve you and send you the gifts of heaven.

1805. 568 There are no restrictions regarding dress, and Elah has always advised in all the aforementioned books of God not to become addicted to alcohol and pork.

1806. 569 Furthermore, there are many reasons in the world why men might seek to limit the role of women, but it is the will of our Elah to honour women, wives and daughters on the same basis of equality and love as men, husbands and sons.

1807. Thanks to women, both at home and outside it, there is order; it goes without saying that without women the world would be a far worse place; without them there would be neither joy, nor compassion, nor empathy; it is mothers who teach their children these behaviours, and it is they who should be most respected and valued.

1808. 570 Yes, men and women are recognised as equals before God and the whole world, but men try to change these laws to their own misfortune, detriment and disgrace.

1809. Elah recommended that husband and wife should live in harmony; it is forbidden to seek enemies within the family, and even in quarrels one should strive for reconciliation.

1810. A father and mother must not distance themselves from their children; they must not neglect them or treat them as strangers.

1811. 571 Husband and wife should learn self-control from one another; they should cooperate, and then bliss, not violence, will reign in their homes.

1812. Likewise, husband and wife should together abandon selfishness; then all selfish motives will vanish, their minds will be freed from the thorns of self-satisfaction, and selfless love will blossom within them.

1813. 572 Husband and wife, woman and man, keep away from anger and violence, from engaging in disputes amongst yourselves, from blaming one another.

1814. Likewise, husbands towards their wives and men towards women should show mutual respect; slander, pride and selfishness should be rooted out of marriage; all the weeds of discord and quarrelling should be burnt away by the fire of harmony, warmth and mutual aid.

1815. 573 Thus, through Elah and only through Elah, by turning our faces towards one another, by uniting in a single family circle, we can achieve much for the world.

1816. May your families shine with the sun of joy; may the rays of the sun of love bestow upon you kindness, courtesy and a spirit of forgiveness.

1817. Reconciliation within the family is necessary when both parties show a willingness to improve; there is no need to seek a solution when one of the spouses is aggressive, especially towards their wife or husband.

1818. 574 Order is needed in the family; this is not always achieved, and it should not be imposed by force.

1819. However, children need discipline, but not such severe punishments, which should not be confused with cruelty; supported by the children's willingness to improve, punishments should be age-appropriate, not physical, but related to daily duties.

1820. Elah has commanded that children should respect their parents, and parents should respect their children, for Elah loves both equally!

1821. 575 Let selfless love reign between spouses, between their children, just as the Shechinah of heavenly love dwells in the Temple of Elah upon His heights.

1822. Advice and ordinary conversation are essential to cope with the burden of responsibilities, and every member of the family should treat others on the common ground of love, showing patience, kindness and goodness.

1823. 576 Parents should not expect payment for their love of their children, but children should expect love from their children and should not be deprived of it.

1824. Parents' reward is precious in God's sight if they have shown wisdom, care, concern and discipline free from cruelty.

1825. God will reward parents' efforts in raising their children, so that families may be a paradise on earth, and after leaving their earthly bodies, they may become an enrichment of what can be seen in heaven.

1826. Parents' efforts will never be in vain if they truly love their children, not merely saying they love them, but acting in accordance with love, sharing selfless love with their household.

1827. May all joy descend upon those homes where the teachings of the New Scriptures are spread; may nobility, and an abundance of love and goodness, gather among them as a blessing.

1828. The invisible reflection of what takes place in Heaven is mirrored on earth; may love, joy and compassion therefore flourish in families!

1829. We are encouraged to abstain from alcohol, but not from wine; all drunkenness and the consumption of anything impure are forbidden.

1830. Elah did not declare that wine is unclean, nor that it is not – one must conclude that on New Year's Day one should drink wine with joy.

1831. Another verse says not to consume wine or take pleasure in it, so let everything be done in moderation.

1832. Wickedness proliferates because of severity, cruelty and punishment.

1833. The foundations of the law are contradictory. The Shiites have their Sharia, the Sunnis have theirs, as do Christians and their sects, and the Jews themselves.

1834. None of them can be true, and both have been eclipsed and abolished by the law of love and forgiveness; in divine unity, the differences between believers have vanished.

1836. – in every human law, endless differences arise between believers.

1837. It is quite certain that everything that comes from God contains no contradictions.

1838. And in the faith in the One God there are no contradictions, there is only joy, love and the building of peace.

The removal of envy

1839. Oh yes, let all evil inclinations of the heart depart.

1840. 581 For Elah, who is one, it has always been clear to me, and should be clear to others, that they should not envy what others have, but earn their bread with their own hands and perseverance; far from envy, do not be content with poverty or modesty, but rather strive for order, peace, the company of friends, righteous deeds and education.

1841. 582 In God's way, look, even today children bear heavy burdens; they have not even a moment's childhood or joy.

1842. May their burdens cease through the spread of education, which is a comfort to parents, and the children's lot will become much lighter.

1843. Then everyone will be enriched by their righteous deeds, bearing the abundant fruit of their actions, bringing honour to their parents and support to society.

1844. 583 A modest person fills their time with the well-being of their family; a modest person does not choose an easy life, but through work and effort gathers the precious pearls of their perseverance.

1845. He desires to purify his heart of worldly attachments, to keep his distance from a world steeped in materialism, which values money more than human life.

1846. What he truly needs is love for everyone he meets, love for his fellow human beings, and above all, love for the family he cares for.

1847. 584 Accept one another with love; let every soul be accompanied by kind words and sincere resolutions not to harm the guilty or the innocent.

1848. 585 Say amongst yourselves – I have resolved to be neither guilty nor sinful; I have resolved before the One Elah, the Creator, to respect my neighbours as if they were my own flesh, to show respect to the elderly and the weak; I have resolved to rely more on the wealth of my soul than on fleeting money; this is the highest piety, that in which all greed is abandoned and, instead, one possesses a clear mind.

1849. 586 For the love of the One God!

1850. The riches amassed by the merchants and the wealthy of this world are nothing compared to the abundance of words which You send with the speed of lightning to those who sincerely devote themselves to You and listen to You.

1851. Wealth has the power to transform; seek rest in Elah, and He will receive you; this is far more precious than the gold or silver amassed by the rich of this world.

1852. So quickly focus on what Elah has commanded, on what He conveys in His wisdom through these writings.

1853. 587 Every scripture of this world appears in the best light, for I, because I direct my attention to Elah and worship only Elah, encourage you to do likewise; I do not demand your complete obedience.

1854. My spirit is not the spirit of Islam or Christianity; my spirit is the spirit of loyalty to Elah and self-improvement, not blind devotion.

1855. 588 No worship, no rituals, no baptisms can overshadow the greatness of Elah, the One Who Forgives, the One Who alone can free the soul from all cares and darkness.

1856. 589 Seek Elah with all your soul, and He, the one and only Elah, will show you the truth, not amongst the clergy or those who claim to be wise, but amongst simplicity, as I tell you today.

1857. 590 Do not despair over your fate, if it seems dreadful to you; rather, seek a solution and do not be content with mundane pleasures; seek Elah and deliverance from those who despise you.

1858. Seek the face of Elah in those who care for you, who do not seek to glorify themselves, who love you as you love yourself.

1859. 591 Let your gaze be fixed upon Elah, who is the marvellous guide leading you out of the bondage of spiritual Egypt – out of all godlessness and immorality, such as the religiosity of Christianity, Judaism and Islam.

1860. God is exalted above these faiths; He does not create to divide and scatter, but to reconcile and unite in love all languages, nations and peoples.

1861. 592 Do not judge from afar nor be malicious towards those who are weak, and those who take pleasure in the suffering of the innocent should be compelled to obey.

1862. Elah's love transcends human understanding, but it is withheld from criminals and those who destroy the eternal law of love for one's neighbour.

1863. 593 Gratitude and joy are the expression of heaven's song; there, from on high, all the heavenly messengers sing sweet melodies of gratitude to the One Elah.

1864. How much more should we be grateful for what we have and what we have lent to others; how much more should we be content with what we have, that we have food to eat, that we have a place to sleep, to rest after the toils of the day.

1865. How much more should we care for the weak and the hungry, who have nothing and possess nothing?

1866. How much more content and grateful will they be if we provide them with the basic necessities for survival.

1867. Such is the will of Elah: to do this and spare no effort to spread the word, to act, and not merely to speak of mercy.

1868. 594 Seek therefore rest in all that is dear to Elah; seek rest in gardens, in quiet places, to seek the face of Elah and to seek a place of rest.

1869. Our fate does not lie in God's hands; we are not an idle garden adorned merely with ornaments; we direct our own lives, and Elah merely offers guidance on how to live in the best way, sending His Revelators from time to time.

1870. 595 Find rest in the garden of God's words, and let not your zeal in seeking Elah be in vain; seek His countenance wisely, so as not to exalt anyone but Him.

1871. Gather into your baskets fruits abounding in miracles; may your blessings, both spiritual and temporal, multiply to the glory of the One God and the One Saviour.

1872. 596 After exhausting labour, drink from the crystal spring of divine rest; rest a little on the appointed days, so that Elah may enjoy His spring water, the living water that brings coolness and quenches thirst.

1873. 597 Your peace, joy and happiness are given to you; simply believe that you wish to act in the same way, and you will remember your efforts and, through them, come to know the Oneness of Elah.

1874. Invite the Heavenly Mother Shekinah into your minds; let her be your guide; may her gentleness, mercy and compassion never leave you, not even for a moment.

1875. 598 Plant magnificent trees in your garden, laden with fruit, bending under their weight.

1876. These fruits of all good deeds, their leaves are leaves that heal the soul through your wonderful words; you may colour the leaves, and they themselves heal the wounds of the weakened, the suffering and the weary on the path to the Heavenly Tabernacle.

1877. Colour the leaves green, a colour that brings comfort to those who suffer, to those who seek salvation on the path of their origins, in times of spiritual darkness.

1878. They seek salvation and healing from God and find them in the One Elah, the Creator and Saviour of mankind.

1879. 599 God has adorned the garden with all manner of good fruits, full of marvellous qualities worthy of praise and worthy of cultivation; go and taste the fruits of God's garden.

1880. 600 God has also bestowed upon the nations the green and unfading leaves of His comfort, through us, through our compassion and empathy.

1881. Seek, then, the entrance to this holy sanctuary, this holy garden, through none other than God Himself; He is the only Gate, the only entrance and exit through which you may find delight.

1882. The teachers of the nations – Muhammad, Jesus and Moses, David – prophets and other prophets appeared; prophets are people just like us, they make mistakes just like us and they fall just like us.

1883. This does not mean that we should excuse their mistakes; their mistakes in life show that we must not repeat similar mistakes – sins.

1884. God, show me my mistakes, correct my bad attitudes and bad tendencies; I want to bear the pure fruits of my labour.

1885. For God's sake, I myself am a fallen sinner; I humbly beg Elah to forgive me my sins, my failures and my stumbles.

1886. Your faith, God, knows no name, religion or skin colour; so why should I not call myself everything in everything?

1887. You do not establish any religion, but fallen people become entangled with the clergy; they fall into the snare of ignorance regarding Your eternal will; they find themselves trapped by the clergy – trapped by the mullahs of Islam, trapped by Christian priests, trapped by Jewish rabbis.

1888. You are far removed from religion; You love freedom, and through My message You punish the world with Your freedom, with Your true Countenance, for You are Elah, who neither restricts nor seeks a slave.

1889. At this moment, God calls upon all shepherds, regardless of the source of their Revelation, to come to the One Elah in repentance, for He loves them, not spreading hatred amongst them, but merely restoring justice.

1890. Elah has shown me that martyrdom is not a necessity for Him; He takes no pleasure in martyrdom, nor in the shedding of innocent blood in His name!

1891. I will not forsake God nor the people whom I wish to serve faithfully; I desire only good for the people whom I wish to serve and for whose happiness I strive.

1892. My words are not empty words; they are also empty words. For Elah, who is One, keep His word as much as possible, and be honest in all your ways, so that you may understand His will!

1893. Do not separate yourselves from your families; do not seek refuge in prolonged fasting or asceticism, nor in mantras or exhaustion; treat yourselves with love, keeping your bodies pure, for they are the dwelling-place of the Holy Spirit.

1894. Keep away from what is unclean; do not eat pork and avoid fish without scales.

1895. It is best that you follow this advice; yet God, in His wisdom, has not forbidden the drinking of wine, provided you are wise; remain sober and do not seek intoxication or pleasure in strong drink.

1896. Elah has commanded us to be temperate, so that we may respect our own bodies and the bodies and souls of others!

1897. 607 My holy calling is not to leave anyone hungry, those whom I love, but I also cause hunger in those who hate me and seek to hate me.

1898. 608 Do not praise me in the slightest; I do not seek the applause of the crowd, I do not seek praise, nor do I feel exalted above others.

1899. My service is a service of humility, a service of love, and a reminder of the laws of Elah.

1900. My path is a path of self-denial and self-sacrifice; whoever follows this path will, at its end, meet holy angels lifting every tormented soul from weeping, sorrow and despondency.

1901. Although the acceptance of my revelation by the peoples of the earth may be difficult to bear, the path of Elah, which the peoples of the earth should follow, leads them towards the beginning of love and goodness, the showing of all virtues to one another, and the rejection of violence, wrongdoing and force.

1902. The Way of the Benevolent is a way of goodness and love, far removed from violence and the exercise of force.

1903. This is the path of God, which the sheep, led with great mercy into the fold of Elah, will follow.

1904. He is truly the benevolent, beloved, merciful Shepherd.

1905. Take refuge under the wings of Elah; He will give you solace; His care is boundless, so be merciful, be defenders of the weak and the troubled.

1906. Your words will not be meaningless; turn every good thought into a righteous deed; then you will become servants of God, and He will become the Elah within you; He guides you towards all righteousness, subdues every evil inclination within you, and restores you to that which is holy and glorified by His angelic hosts.

1907. Do not curse, if at all possible, but use gentle words, such as those that lift the spirits of the oppressed.

1908. Clear words are a gift from Heaven, bringing solace to those who struggle against all adversity.

1909. May our love and mercy never fade; our Elah is One, His name is Love, Selflessness, Joy, and the sharing of our happiness and mercy with all those near and far, strangers and those with whom destiny has bound us.

1910. Thunder and ill-will are the cause of this; when harsh words are spoken, let the thunder of ill-will be silenced, walk in harmony, take Elah's love into your hearts and delight in Him, and He will sanctify you, making you candles that shine amidst spiritual darkness.

1911. To God I am but one of many candles; let us make Elah the foundation of our lives; may He pour into us the oil of His wisdom, His goodness, and all the virtues of righteousness.

1912. I command you to be guided by love and compassion, not by anger and threats of vengeance.

1913. Elah's path is not one of vengeance, but one of listening to the voices of the weak and the lost among Christians, Jews and Muslims.

1914. 614 God is incomprehensible in all things; He is not guided by piety imposed by the clergy; He is the Elah of righteousness; whoever is far from these commandments, bearing in mind the eternal law of doing no harm, is also far from God, His presence and His guidance.

1915. 615 He, God, is Elah, who does no harm; He truly seeks His servants, whom He does not make His slaves.

1916. He also serves out of love; He seeks no gain and does not wish to be entangled in the human web of religion.

1917. Most people, however, cling desperately to religion instead of getting to know Elah of all worlds, and cling desperately to harming minorities instead of seeking understanding and mutual friendship.

1918. As Elah has commanded, let us become friends to one another, friends to believers and non-believers, friends to men and women, and friends to animals.

1919. 616 Let us have compassion for one another; let us not be defenders and accusers of one another, but rather those who chastise, so as not to offend anyone.

1920. And if we do so, let us rebuke them in such a way as not to cause unnecessary shame, but it is necessary to show the love of Elah; then their hatred will vanish, and their sins will be covered by the grace of the Merciful.

1921. 617 Do not abandon your wealth, but increase it, lest you forget the weak and the poor.

1922. Wealth is a gift from God, and it is no sin to seek to enrich oneself justly and lawfully.

1923. 618 Let our possessions, our resources and our money remain where they are – Elah does not seek riches, does not hoard them, nor does He rob the poor and needy of their tithe!

1924. Why, assembly of Christians, do you rob God's children of their possessions, when it is clearly stated that the faith of God is to be preached selflessly?

1925. Surely Elah seeks neither goods nor treasures for himself; he is exalted above all that is mortal and transitory.

1926. Cursed be every clergyman who collects tithes whilst leaving his family in distress – living in poverty and destitution, whilst the clergyman himself enjoys wealth!

1927. Cursed also be the imams of Islam who seek to stir up disputes over existence in order to provoke rebellions between whites and blacks; has God not made all people equal? Why, then, do you incite one group against another to provoke unrest and discontent?

1928. Why are you yourselves quarrelsome and seek disputes, when you ought to strive for love and harmony!

1929. 619 Our love for God must be shared freely, so that the virtues of righteousness may truly spread; we make disciples of those who desire it, not to force or dictate to others what they should do – they are all people whom God has made free, they have their own understanding of the world, so why should we impose our will upon them?

1930. Our faith is to be proclaimed out of love, to give Christians the Oneness of God and to dissuade Muslims from hatred and crime, and Jews from seeking cooperation with those they despise.

1931. These are divine teachings sent to me; through me, Elah speaks in human form; I am not God, I am merely a vessel and His instrument!

1932. 620 All who follow the Cause are angels, messengers whom Elah has called to be a light in the darkness; let us dispel some of the spiritual darkness; let us not spare words of love, words of comfort, or words of support for those who need and desire them.

1933. 621 He, God, is our teacher, bestowing upon all such talents that they may reflect the blissful, paradisiacal state of His Oneness.

1934. Focus on His Love and unite in Love for Elah; share His love and compassion with everyone!

1935. Therefore, let us raise our children more in love than in discipline; they need compassion, not a punishing hand or the imposition of cruelty.

1936. Oh, how I rejoice when a mother loves her children above all else, and a father does not neglect his children; they are truly faithful citizens of Heaven, already here on earth, saints!

1937. 622 So surround yourselves with His love, the love of the heavenly realms of unity.

1938. Truly, Elah has sworn in the heavens, which are His throne, that His love should grow within families, that there should be no quarrelling despite differences in beliefs within families, that you should strive for reconciliation, not for separation from one another.

1939. Elah is the God of order, not of chaos!

1940. Elah fights for love between relatives, kin and siblings; how much more should we too care for love towards everyone, especially towards family, but also towards strangers!

1941. 623 Unimaginable love, empathy and kindness should embrace every soul, casting aside all life's burdens and every worry.

1942. Be careful not to worry too much; be grateful to God, and let that gratitude return to Him.

1943. 624 Do not be blind to the suffering of the innocent, nor to those who are weak, nor to those who suffer persecution for their faith.

1944. Receive everyone with dignity; respect everyone as you yourself would wish to be received.

1945. Our Elah is exceedingly Faithful and loves justice!

1946. 625 Cast all your sufferings, sorrows and regrets upon Elah; let Him be your comfort!

1947. He is the Medicine for the soul, the Merciful Counsellor, the King of kings and the Elah of lords, the Ruler over all rulers!

1948. 626 Every craft and honest labour will bring you prosperity, and every caution in speech and avoidance of gossip will protect you from the snares of treachery, quarrels and hatred.

1949. Though it is good to be righteous, in the eyes of Elah you are true angels if you do everything to be like Him and fulfil His Will.

1950. Be careful in your speech and do not take part in false gossip, which brings only vain joy, and to others bitterness and doubts about your good name!

1951. 627 I reject the crown of fame in favour of the crown of perseverance, and I trust in my Elah, and He will make me perfect in my trials.

1952. He is the Lawgiver; through Him I renounce greed, I proclaim the equality of all genders and people, I make no one my slave, nor does the One and Only Elah make anyone His subject!

1953. 628 May all herbs and all water be blessed for Your name's sake.

1954. When I invoke Your holy name, O One, in the garden of Your love, all the splendid flowers of splendid and virtuous deeds bloom unhindered, form beautiful clumps, and bear all manner of fruit, which delight with their healing properties.

1955. By Elaha, who is the One, He brings deliverance and frees sinners from their prison; He is the Merciful One who brings deliverance from all sin; He is the only deliverance from sins, and no one else can do this!

1956. 629 There is no reward in this world, but seek not sorrow, but joy; seek all that uplifts you, and you shall be enriched by Elah and His majesty, His treasure from on high!

1957. Elah is our Ark, He is the Ark of Truth; remember this!

1958. Share your bread with those in need – how many smiles will appear on their faces, how much kindness you will receive in return, it will return to you fourfold in heaven!

1959. Elah is the One who rewards; He will not leave a faithful soul alone on the path of life!

1960. 631 Let love endure amongst you and let it flourish; do not dwell constantly on your grievances.

1961. Elah forgives all; forgive one another before Elah, your source of happiness.

1962. 632 He is Exalted in Justice, knowing no recklessness and making no attempt to lay snares for those who are unfaithful to Him; He turns away from those who reject Him and do not return to Him; our Elah seeks not their company; He turns away from those who despise Him, but does not reject them: He is Exalted in Mercy, Exalted in Sovereignty, Exalted in Power, Exalted in Love for all people.

1963. 633 Some are so brazen in their cruelty that they tarnish the good name of their wives, treating them as commodities or servants.

1964. By God, there is nothing worse than opposing the equality of the sexes established from the beginning between Adam and Eve; they were bound by ties of love, friendship and companionship.

1965. Their cooperation was based on love and the pursuit of the common good, and the worst injustice is inequality between man and woman, whether racial or based on professional duties.

1966. Elah is the God who makes all people equal!

1967. 634 Let the angelic voices of unity in marriage sing with one voice of shared companionship, shared counsel, shared friendship.

1968. Destroy all hatred, all misunderstandings and all fault-finding ; focus on seeking virtues, on what unites you, not on what divides you.

1969. I trust only in God, who created humankind – yes, woman and man as equals, regardless of the roles they fulfil or how they differ; He, Elah from on high, made them equal, not better than one another.

1970. May the Most High God make the sexes equal; they are equal in every way; they are like doves perched on the same tree, building a nest for the common good, nesting and constantly helping one another; such true help, friendship and care, as between a pair of doves caring for their chicks, should be evident amongst you.

1971. For God did not make woman subordinate to man, but made her a companion to support his actions, to be his counsellor; though she considers herself superior, let her oppose this; together they constitute a greater force, they are equal heads of the family.

1972. 635 Let us be the liberators of women from the tyranny and yoke of cruel men; let not the efforts of the Holy Shekinah be in vain; let her name be hallowed above all the temples of God!

1973. Look upon those who lie and are far from sincerity in their words.

1974. Consider the following statement; it will help you gain true knowledge and bring peace of mind.

1975. 637 It has been said – lying never pays off, for any false presentation of oneself or of one's knowledge in a better light than it actually is will never benefit us.

1976. It is worth trying to be honest and to put effort into one's work and daily life; honesty always pays off and is beneficial to everyone, both socially and personally.

1977. 638 From the Crown of this Revelation, all the nations of the world shall see the truth about the Infinite!

1978. His love, which touches everyone, will spread to distant nations; share His love, just as God loves you.

1979. 639 Through God, who is One!

1980. Forgive one another's faults, do not seek out one another's shortcomings; let harmony, peace and the joy of the soul flourish like a garden of beautiful flowers and succulent fruit.

1981. 640 Strive to love one another; do not seek out misunderstandings; do not seek reconciliation with those of your companions who refuse to apologise.

1982. Ordinary people seek friendship not for its usefulness, but for the gift of warmth and companionship; simplicity and brotherly love are the best incentive to heal the wounds of humanity, the wounds of war and the wounds of discord.

1983. 641 Be gardeners of the Will of Elah; plant saplings of love, shrubs of harmony, and flowers of consolation.

1984. Share the leaves of the tree of love and adorn the lost, the restless and the sorrowful with flowers of consolation.

1985. May our love and our work for peace never cease; this is true peace of the soul, showing above all companionship and closeness to the sorrowful.

1986. Do not flatter one another, lest wisdom vanish from among you, lest friendship between nations flourish and then fade away, and that true love be sustained rather than driven away.

1987. 643 Do not be slaves to one another; seek glory not from people, but from God, our one and only Creator.

1988. Do not yield to pressure from people if they force you into wicked deeds, into breaking the laws of the state, into violating love for your neighbour and for God.

1989. May our ears hear the voice of God's call through these writings.

1990. Accept one another and be hospitable towards God; you have been commanded to do justice and not to seek separation from people; unite with one another, love your children, be united in love, compassion and harmony.

1991. 645 Do not complain excessively; it is good to take refuge under the mantle of the Merciful and seek shelter in Him, so that you do not lament before you begin to seek strife.

1992. Some who do not cling to the robe of Elah, not wishing to be stoned or flogged, desire to keep away from seduction and debauchery.

1993. No one is commanded to flog or stone the unbelievers in the name of God; if you wish to stone me, cast your stone at me?

1994. O you ungrateful ones.

1995. Why do you seek fault and consider yourselves blameless?

1996. God has made debauchery a place of flogging and a quarry; therein the sinners seek refuge from His grace; in the distant quarries of their sins they bury themselves and die beneath the weight of their stones, their sins.

1997. 646 Clothe yourselves in the garments of simplicity, the garments of clarity of mind, and keep far away from debauchery.

1998. Do not call your former companion—debauchery—your lover; rather, reject her charms, her allure and her seductive glances.

1999. We have been commanded to be as pure as possible and to have one wife.

2000. 647 Dwell in the fortress of your reason; from there, watch out for every temptation that lies in wait before you. God is your deliverer from oppression; if you ask Him for forgiveness, He will deliver you from the prison of your addiction.

2001. 648 For God's sake, do not sentence anyone to death unless they have committed murder, and the judge knows that their wickedness causes harm.

2002. Cast out wickedness from yourselves; cast out all impurity from your minds, but do not punish with God's judgement, but with the judgement of the authorities.

2003. 649 Love your children, your wives, your brothers and sisters as you yourselves would wish to be treated.

2004. They are my friends, they are precious stones, they are salvation in times of sorrow, they are friends; amongst them I rest, with them I share peace of mind, and with them I am bound by the bonds of love.

2005. Let them not deceive you, as true friends ought to.

2006. They are a loving sanctuary, the holy entrance and exit of the Glory of the Shechinah.

2007. They should not seek to harm you or try to forget you.

2008. May the heavenly love of father and mother surround their children, and may the children also honour their parents.

2009. Cast aside all malice, all quarrels and all disputes, which are more precious than harmony among nations.

2010. 650 Nor should you ever love your father or mother if they are not your friends.

2011. What use are your mother and father if they are servants only to themselves, if they do not care for you, if they have left you on the street and used violence against you?

2012. Such a mother and such a father have no right to call themselves parents.

2013. Respect your parents, but also seek friendship with them.

2014. 651 God will not be enough for you if someone is being wronged, is enslaved by others, for God, Elah, abhors violence, abhors wounding and harming others.

2015. 652 My grace is with you; My love extends to all creatures, both humans and animals.

2016. Be the first to greet everyone, especially greet your fellow believers with the words 'Elah in Splendour'; show mutual respect out of love; let your fellowship be an example to those around you; let them know that Elah is with us and has not forsaken us.

2017. Speak tender words to one another, not to flatter, but to emphasise their importance; your love will not fade if you share love and affection.

2018. Keep away from lewd talk; rather, seek out pure and edifying words and conversations that nourish the mind.

2019. For heaven's sake, He has commanded us to live nobly, not modestly; let our faults be turned into virtues, and our evil inclinations into holy conduct.

2020. 654 The best remedy for families is mutual respect, friendship between spouses, and mutual forgiveness despite differences.

2021. Avoid quarrels, arrogance and all forms of violence.

2022. God is almighty over all things and loves us a thousand times more if we listen to Him and keep His commandments.

2023. 655 It is the same with God, who values souls in His sight; serve God and devote yourselves to Him, and He will exalt you.

2024. He values us, so let us value one another; may our noble lives be guided by respect for His wonderful laws and the knowledge of His love.

2025. Help the weak, the sick and the poor in their need; lift up the oppressed; comfort the sorrowful in their suffering; and raise up the fallen from their downfalls.

2026. 656 Support the poor with what you have; this does not require great grace, but grace, that is, mercy, is added to mercy, and so Elah sees this from on high and will reward it.

2027. Words of friendship are not enough; turn your words into deeds of kindness; be messengers and angels of light amidst spiritual darkness.

2028. By faithfully adhering to this, Elah gives Word upon Word, Scripture upon Scripture, but the entire interpretation of the previous Scriptures is to be proclaimed by the Taoist Book of Inspiration.

2029. Likewise, the Primordial Point – Elah Nies the Uncreated – declared of himself: the essence of all that God does not love returns to discord, and all that God loves returns to harmony, united in His unceasing Mercy.

2030. Do not stray onto the paths of unrighteousness and keep away from the love of this world, lest you descend into the land of your alienation, lest you bear any rotten fruit of your deeds.

2031. He calls upon all people to submit to Elah; all are His creatures. He, from on high, the Heavenly Father, is caring and has sent messengers to proclaim His greatness.

2032. Elah is a stronghold; He calls upon people in every language in which they were raised, saying: Elah is the One and Only Saviour, and there is no other; truly, there is no God but Elah, the One.

The Curse of Greed

2034. From the Revelation [do not profit from making money.

2035. My aim is not to become rich, but to make people happy; instead of bringing misfortune, my Elah will bring peace and harmony; instead of sorrow, He will bring joy to the heart.

2036. I seek no enemies amongst anyone; make all people my friends; even their lies and sins are no obstacle to me.

2037. Proclaim words of kindness, words of love and words of comfort to all the nations of the earth; be ready, in God's way, to turn your attention not to yourselves, but to helping others; to those who lack something, to those who are far from the holiness of life, to those who turn their eyes to worldly matters, to God, to spiritual matters, to fasting and prayer.

2038. Take refuge under the wings of Elah, all nations of the earth, and He will receive you and will not forsake you.

2039. Do not rejoice when another is unhappy; do not be envious or vengeful.

2040. On the contrary, seek love and the company of those who love and take pride in their friendship.

2041. Do not let God's love seem unattainable to you; do not look upon anyone with envy, but rather strive to live honestly and work so that you may have enough for everything.

2042. Good is the counsel that comes from the sincerity of the heart; good and right is the counsel that does not condemn and does not seek out the faults of others in order to humiliate them.

2043. The angels of light do not seek enemies; they surround all God's creatures with tender love, care for people, and feed the heavenly birds with the manna of their words.

2044. They praise God unreservedly; they know His comings and goings and are truly proud of their glory.

2045. Do not be afraid, but pass through the valley of darkness; though you are on the brink of the abyss, Elah will not leave you alone; He will lift you up and lead you out of every abyss of anxiety, worry and sorrow.

2046. Do not mix impurity with purity; rather, be resolute in what you do and how you serve God.

2047. Do not look for faults in others to humiliate them, but look for faults in one another to admonish one another.

2048. Yet you seek only treasures; but what victory is there in your treasures if you have not fed the hungry and given drink to the thirsty?

2049. Where is your complaint before God?

2050. Wherever you seek justice, seek it among the righteous, not among those who exploit and feed only themselves; seek it among those who stand at the gates of God!

2052. I humbly ask you only for forgiveness; I stand at your door, walking the path of self-denial.

2053. Do not regret that you have abandoned Christianity, for which your parents have deemed you our enemy.

2054. By Elah, He is One, befriend all people, even if your family rejects you; harbour no resentment towards them, do not judge them; parents are a golden vessel, and their treasures are their children.

2055. Their love should not be worthless to us; on the contrary, they are the most precious, they are children of God, they are priceless crystals; let us not hide in sorrow, but rather extinguish sorrow and discord.

2056. Lust, debauchery and passion are our enemies; they seek us out, lying in wait for us like prey.

2057. These, our temptations, can be avoided; they can be destroyed by our sobriety, our faithfulness to Elah on high.

2058. Let us be sober and keep away from all temptations.

2059. Strengthen the bonds of love with your children, wife and husband.

2060. It is a gift of joy when we wish our loved ones well, when no dark cloud or storm is gathering over them.

2061. Be kind to one another, bear the fruits of compassion, and love one another.

2064. Why then do you men behave like wild beasts, without understanding?

2066. Plant trees in God's garden, shrubs bearing multicoloured fruits of love, tenderness and compassion.

2067. Nurture every noble tree and withered shrub, brought back to life from spiritual death, washing them with streams of sweet water full of words of wisdom and comfort.

2069. There is no greater disgrace on earth than to renounce selfless love in favour of selfishness.

2070. Show love for one another through sincere deeds, respect one another, exchange kind words, and greet one another.

2071. Take into account the weakness of sinners and their inability to perform all great deeds, and when they fall, let them turn their faces towards God, the Only Saviour of mankind.

2072. My love is not limited to those who are kind to me; God embraces families with His love and unites them through the commandment of mutual respect, showing one another kindness, respect and tenderness.

2073. We are called to spread God's Love amongst the nations; He is the Light for the Gentiles, He is also the Only Mercy for the straying.

2074. Do not close your doors to the needy, the unjust and strangers.

2075. Do not make enemies of your faith, and do not exalt yourselves and your beliefs above the beliefs of passers-by and all citizens.

2076. Do not bring discord into your families; do not bring the discord of anger, rage and mistrust.

2077. Be wise and respect the elders in your family, those who raised you with dignity and made you sons and daughters.

2078. Be also grateful for all that you have, and do not complain excessively that you do not possess riches, goods and property like others.

2079. Resist poverty by every means and do not call work and perseverance in the face of adversity, despondency and poverty a weakness.

2080. Do not allow yourselves to love that which is fleeting and material, that which is deceptive and carnal.

2081. Nobility is not without blemish; honesty should not be discouraged, and healthy self-interest should not be disregarded.

2082. Let us not be saints, but rather steadfast in our righteous deeds.

2083. Angels of light do not dwell in houses of shadows, where words are empty, where all manner of quarrels and disputes flourish.

2085. Share all your feelings with one another, share all your worries and sorrows with one another, bear one another's misfortunes, lift one another up after a fall, carry love and compassion to dark places, far from the blissful memories of God.

2086. Cast all troubles and sorrows out the door; cast all troubles and burdens upon Elah; He is your counsellor; He sends angels of light, people who proclaim the glad tidings of peace; do not provoke quarrels amongst yourselves, but teach words of love and reason.

2088. 723 Direct sincere words of love, affection and a willingness to help towards your children and your wife.

2089. Family well-being arises when each spouse becomes a companion, a listener and a doer of the will of the other companion – wife or husband.

2090. Elah, the Only Redeemer
Win the hearts of people, then, and do not be afraid to extol the glory of the Almighty!

2091. He is the only Redeemer in times of trial, sacrifice and hardship.

2092. Like Job, do the modern-day Sadducees believe that the soul of a human is the same as the soul of an animal?

2093. Yet animals have neither soul nor spirit – they have no concept of Elah's existence?

2094. Why do people deny this miracle, why do they reject the sanctity of the resurrection of the spirit?

2096. Proclaim – God creates all things and causes all things to return to Him; we are His property.

2097. Nothing is hidden from God.

2098. Why, then, do you not believe in the resurrection of the body?

2099. He does as He pleases, and I know that it will come to pass.

2100. Elah, in His essence, is an unchanging God; what He does in His Mercy is enduring.

2101. We are all His servants, we all seek His forgiveness, we will all return to Him.

2102. God did not give us bodies to waste, but to sanctify.

2103. No woman will need a veil, for they will be a blazing light, a pulsating light, and the same will be true of the holy men, both of whom will be clothed in the sun of divine love.

2104. All shall worship Elah on this earth in these spiritual garments, visible for ever and ever.

2105. From the grave in which they rest, right through to their exaltation and transformation into 'glorified bodies', they will be truly glorified in their spiritual bodies; for the spirit will overcome weakness and all sinfulness; and in this way the spirit will conquer the world; and in the presence of Elah, all the saints of old will be like spiritual lights, shining for the glory of God and His love.

2106. Consider, moreover, the prophets as 'mirrors' of unity with God.

2107. The prophets are like pure mirrors which, as suns of truth, reflect the highest virtues and purest attributes of God.

2108. The prophets from Adam to Malachi are like mirrors in which one may behold the Sun of Righteousness; they are faces reflecting the precious Light of God.

2109. And they replied with one word: 'O my creatures, beloved ones, be virtuous.

2110. I am your Father; you are my vessels of holiness.

2111. All the prophets are messengers on God's path; they are the moving angels of light, bearing His desires and His commandments of love.

2112. My beloved, my Elah on high, He has bestowed upon us mirrors of love – all the prophets bestow the virtues of mercy.

2113. They, as the One Word of Elah, reveal from eternity to eternity, reveal Elah, the Majestic One, Elah of the Universe.

2114. God has made all members of the family equal, but let the children respect their parents, and let them establish rules and boundaries.

2115. Yet God forbid that you should have expectations too high; your children are innocent; do not stifle what grows innocently in their souls.

2116. Beware of cursing your children or treating them with contempt, for God loves equality and will not tolerate the humiliation of the innocent.

2117. 729 O God, help us not to divide families, whether in the name of faith or in the name of other prejudices.

2118. Truly, God loves unity, but not unity at any price.

2119. Observe boundaries, but do not restrict your children; do not be even slightly cruel towards them.

2120. Do not be haughty or overly self-centred towards them; teach your children to steer clear of selfishness, pride and recklessness.

2121. 730 Let a loving father tenderly tuck his child in to sleep; let a loving mother tenderly welcome her child.

2122. Embrace all praiseworthy qualities and virtues within the family; it is worth being good-natured and sharing one's gifts, it is worth being compassionate and supporting the kind-hearted – those who lift the spirits of their loved ones.

2124. 731 No form of discipline is worse than excessive discipline and cruelty: avoid and reject them, and punish anyone who abuses their parental authority.

2125. 732 Be wise parents, that is, those who do not allow their children access to evil and harmful things, yet do not hinder them in their quests.

2126. Be a refuge for your children amidst the stormy waves of life, and do not impose your will upon them, but be a gift of compassion and understanding.

2127. 733 Let love smoulder like a fire; let the fire of love spread amongst you, amongst your children and their parents, amongst your relatives and strangers whom you do not know.

2128. Spend your days and nights with your children; love them as if you were to spend your final moments with them; shower them with the deepest affection, but do not spoil them too much, lest they become a burden to you and to society.

2129. Devote time to your loved ones, near and far; speak kind words to one another; bring forth the fruits of joy, playfulness and reconciliation after times of darkness and hatred.

2130. 734 All people are your neighbours; do not harm the guilty or the innocent; admonish sinners and lift the spirits of those who are sad.

2131. Achieve equality between men and women; let the deaf hear and the blind see.

2133. Do not harm anyone, not even your wife, and do not let your wife curse you.

2135. 735 I seek neither merit, nor exaltation, nor the praise of men in this world; I seek You and Your holy countenance.

2136. Once I sought You in the darkness; now I stand to exalt You and make You my only God.

2137. I do not rejoice at my enemy's downfall; rather, I would lift him up. Nor do I take comfort when someone strays – I do not rebuke him – for I myself am not without fault.

2138. My soul desires only Elah, and I desire to worship God alone with all my strength.

2139. 736 Seek refuge in Elah, the source of all comfort; He is a refuge for those who fall.

2140. He leads to the waters of life, He exalts the human mind, He subjugates human reason; He says: 'Let it be,' and so it is!

2141. He protects from bad company those who do not seek evil, but He grieves and burdens those who do not heed His guidance or His holy counsel!

2142. 737 Do not quarrel with the elderly or with children; they have their own wisdom, but rebuke their folly, for their wisdom is then blindness, and their blindness is error.

2143. 738 Love that is expressed only in sweet words will fade away, and pride and selfishness will follow.

2144. True love is expressed in deeds, and these are a treasure for the one who brings comfort to their beloved, and are pearls and gold for the one who has loved and bound himself with sincerity and devotion.

2145. O God, do not reveal your faults to one another; do not be frank with one another when it comes to revealing your sins.

2146. Be more sincere before God; no man on earth has the right to absolve you of your sins, except God Himself; He alone is holy, the only One worthy of worship.

2147. Peace will come only through these holy words; peace will knock at your door if only you accept these words, and all war and fear will pass you by.

2148. Do not boast that you possess all the knowledge of the world and know all the wisdom of the world; place your trust in God, the sole Creator of mankind.

2150. Conversations with those who adhere to the teachings of rabbis, imams and Christian pastors are futile.

2151. They will point their fingers at us and say terrible things; they will curse what is good and right in us; they will tell us that we are unbelievers and unfaithful to their truths, but their truths are merely their imaginings and illusory dreams!

2152. People are led astray by shepherds who believe they possess all wisdom and all knowledge; do not be slaves to the clergy, become free and do not be slaves to men!

2153. Remember the words that come from God; speak of them loudly and joyfully.

2155. Why should you listen to deceitful shepherds who speak untruths?

2156. Listen to Elah from on high; He is now bringing the heavens down to earth.

2158. Your friends and relatives are both light and darkness; seek unity, light and purity with them, and keep away from the darkness of quarrels and misunderstandings.

2159. A true friend and a truly loving friend is one who helps you when you fall and expects nothing in return but kind words.

2160. If you do not wish to trust me, do not trust me; trust in God and Elah, who has made all people equal.

2161. 746 Do not yield to persuasion or sweet words; do not follow the path of emotion, but rather the path of reason, which is the path of submission to God.

2162. Empty phrases and sweet words alone will not prove the truth of the words, nor the faithfulness of God, nor the faithfulness of the Holy Spirit who guides them.

2163. Prophets must be faithful to You, O Elah; though they have fallen, they must exalt You alone!

2164. My words bear witness to the Oneness of God, His attributes, the virtues that must be distinguished, and how to lead a dignified and happy life.

2165. Nothing on earth is more important than these words and teachings, than this counsel and comfort.

2166. Do not demand of yourself what you are unable to bear.

2167. Do not see faults in others until you see them in yourself.

2169. See the good qualities in him and in her; do not seek out particular virtues in yourselves, nor look for excessive faults; be sober and moderate in your actions.

2170. Let your purity shine before you; be guests to one another in your own home; bestow gifts upon one another; be a safe haven and refuge for one another.

2171. Let your diligence and honesty stand out among God's people; keep your minds pure, so that your souls and spirits may be prepared to meet God in His unity.

2172. Do not seek friendship amongst those who do not respect you and do not make you sober and pure; seek refuge amongst those who rebuke sin and curb every lust.

2173. Speak words of love, and let your minds be full of care and compassion towards one another, whether towards relatives or animals, and also towards those who are near or far, neighbours and strangers.

2174. The source of all goodness is speech, free from all selfishness, and its essence is clarity of mind.

2175. May my love and the love of God blossom over you, and bestow your love upon all creatures.

2177. Unite yourselves with the bonds of love; hold fast to the love that shines forth, and cause no suffering to any creature, neither to kin nor to others, neither by deed nor by word.

2178. Let there be no insults or quarrels amongst you; on the contrary, seek unity; seek separation in marriage when you are wronged; seek mutual reconciliation when no harm has been done to anyone and the quarrel is temporary.

2180. 756 Before accepting the hospitality of any person, if you wish to regard them as a friend, seek hospitality within yourself; find a friend within yourself by examining what you think, how you feel, and how you behave.

2181. Take care not to hurt anyone; do not hurt anyone with words or deeds that stem from your selfishness.

2182. Guard against all selfishness; turn towards serving others, and then all your helplessness and weakness will vanish; the burdens of life will become light for you, for you will perceive the joy of life in those who suffer, and you will become a ray of sunshine and a source of comfort for the downcast.

2183. 758 If you wish to start a family, do not think too much of yourself; the demands of family life require you to attend to its needs, provide a roof over its head, and be guided by love that is not based on selfishness.

2184. 759 See the light in these admonitions; do not say, 'This is not important', but: 'This is obvious and very important'. How much suffering arises from the neglect of children, from a wife's weeping when she is oppressed, from a husband's complaints when he is neglected!

2186. Take care of your children too, and do not cause them pain through your cruelty; let them be a joy to you; do not make them subservient to you; allow them to think and develop as they wish; you are merely their guardian.

2187. 761 Do not seek sorrow, but seek divorce when there is cause for it – when one spouse beats the other, when the property of one spouse does not meet the children's needs, and when the children are neglected; then certainly seek divorce, but do not seek it excessively or by force!

2188. First seek reconciliation, and if that does not work, then seek divorce; this is better for both parties than darkness, sorrow and despair for you and your children!

2189. 762 Do not seek flattery, but rather be humble when necessary.

2190. Do not seek fame, for it is fleeting; rather, seek wealth when it is needed.

2191. Do not seek praise from people, for it may be deceptive and misleading, and may also stem from pride.

2192. Seek praise from sincere people, and if you know of none, accept praise that does not satisfy your empty ego, but your blissful ego, your healthy self-interest.

2193. 764 Love has been given to you by God, so share His love amongst yourselves, amongst your neighbours, and above all amongst your relatives.

2195. 766 The time is coming; it is not a time of separation, but a time of gathering all the children, from near and far; gather together if you love the One God and worship and glorify Him alone!

The Unification of the Israelites and Judah

2196. O my friends, God has commanded in this writing to unite the whole people of Israel and to call them a people devoted to Him and holy!

2197. No suffering of the prophets can replace my suffering and my sorrow; none of their failures and sins can replace my sin; we seek refuge and forgiveness from Elah, our one and only Creator!

2199. I give you the seal of my love and peace; accept it and accept my love; do not reject that which is precious and lifts the soul above the world of dust.

2200. I am upright in my deeds; my peace will compel the rulers of nations to make peace. Be faithful and sincere towards my peace; do not doubt the signs of God and His infinite love for humanity.

2201. My peace is a wondrous fragrance, myrrh and incense of consolation for God and the world.

2202. Be kind and tolerant towards those far away and those near at hand; do not reject the stranger as though he were not your neighbour; address everyone by name and pronounce their name with love and respect.

2203. Do not seek misfortune; seek understanding and unity; here I am.

2204. Divisions have brought misfortune, and the unification of nations has never yielded good results.

2205. Be like the faithful wives of a noble husband; let the nations listen to the voice of God. Do not seek discontent or quarrels, nor let yourselves be tempted by the torrent of hatred.

2206. Do not seek discomfort; do not try to make yourselves unhappy, but strive to understand your own affairs.

2207. 773 Clothe yourselves in love, and if this is unfamiliar to you, force yourselves to do so.

2208. Elah commands that the greatest streams of love, of showing one another compassion and forgiveness, should flow from nations that were once bitter enemies; let all chaos vanish; pray to Yahweh, our Saviour, for a deeper and stronger understanding of this thought.

2209. Teach within governments; compel governments and their princes to teach peaceful solutions; burn all weapons and disarm all armies; let Elah be our peace; let Him become the Saviour of many!

2210. He, Yahweh, is our crystal well; let us draw water of life from His spring and quench our thirst with His power.

2211. My Elah will spit out and crush anyone who forces war, who incites war and starts wars, to their own misfortune and the misfortune of their enemies.

2212. Seek refuge in God, our only Saviour!

2213. He is mighty in His works, He spreads goodness, He delights in the humble and in those who hate misfortune, strife and wars.

2214. As for marriage and being a husband to a wife, a wife to a husband, do not lord it over one another or try to control one another.

2215. You are both equal before God; nurture a spirit of love, understanding and harmony between yourselves, and do not harm one another.

2216. It is commanded that you should not inflict any verbal abuse, strike anyone, or use violence.

2217. You are commanded to love, not to seek misfortune, and not to wish harm upon others.

2218. It has been commanded to strive for harmony and peace within the family and amongst nations; it has been commanded to refrain from harsh words and curses; and, in wisdom, the use of severe punishments against children has been forbidden.

2219. Some married couples seek quarrels, cause each other grief, and force one another to do things that ought not to be done – enough of this!

2220. Elah commanded husbands to be gentle, tender and non-commanding towards their wives, and wives towards their husbands.

2221. Dear spouses, love one another, be an example of love to one another, be kind, understanding and courteous to one another.

2222. Spread the fragrance of compassion amongst yourselves, encouraging one another and judging no one for any reason.

2223. God has placed comfort for the nations in my mouth; He has clothed them with peace and harmony!

2224. The destruction of wars
Let hostility, hatred and wars vanish!

2225. Elah, from on high, has commanded that the whole earth be cleansed of all wars
They, the Muslims, command that women dress in veils and cover their faces, shaming their wives and daughters!

2226. Turn to Elah, who created you; do not wear veils and do not cover women's faces to worship foreign gods, in accordance with your commands
They have become unjust because of war and must be admonished, and we should ask God for forgiveness, so that never again shall any man take up arms to kill another.

2227. Bear no grudge against anyone; forgive those who have wronged you; be friendly towards all people on earth
Do not drink to excess!

2228. Do not struggle alone against adversity, but turn in prayer to God, the sole provider!

2229. Addiction has never been a solution to difficulties; do not fight addiction, but be sober and follow the path of sobriety.

2230. All drugs are poison for the body and mind, and you are 'God's temple', so why would you destroy it?

2231. I come so that there may never again be talk of war, nor weapons drawn to kill one another.

2232. Do not listen to your clergy, but listen to God, He who has made you heirs to this beautiful land.

2233. I am but a sinner, and I myself seek refuge in God, who created me.

2234. Why then do you say that a man of flesh can save and sanctify you?

God is the Only Truth

2235. After all, the truth is that God accepts no worthy sacrifice from human beings

The most important thing is to realise that we ourselves have the ability to accept the Oneness of God as the truth and that we must lead a holy life.

2236. God demands no more of us than what is set out in His Ten Commandments; if anyone feeds on the fables of these faiths and neglects love for one's neighbour and for God, they are worthless to God.

2237. 787 God's grace is stronger today than the killing of false prophets, so it is better to avoid them in a simple way, thereby diminishing their power.

2238. There are various harmful books and paths of falsehood which aim to spread their own stench.

2239. This statement is like a parable of light and shadow, saying: 'I am truth and falsehood, so that I may be accepted more quickly'.

2240. We ourselves are responsible for what our hands have done and what our mouths have spoken; it is we who bear responsibility before God for our sins.

2241. Our sins cannot be concealed or erased by anyone before the holy God; we do not need an intermediary to God in the person of Jesus or Mary; we need God as the source of strength to fight the evil that surrounds us.

2242. We need the Father who is in heaven to help us free ourselves from the snare of sin.

2243. He is the Counsellor who helps us and lifts us up without the need for intermediaries, helpers in the form of priests or mortal and sinful dead people who are incapable of understanding anything.

2244. He is a loving Father who asks us to be faithful to Him; if we reject Him, He will encourage us, plead with us and knock at our hearts to open them to His holy influence.

2245. God, the loving Father, is close to those who ask for forgiveness of their sins.

2246. 790 Elah, the God of the fathers of Abraham, bestowed His love upon them and led them through trials, just as He led Adam around the tree of knowledge.

2247. God is the God of trials, and animal sacrifices are a trial so that we may never offer them again.

2248. Yet fanatical Jews, in their folly, still expect to offer them; sacrifices are like the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

2249. Sacrifices should be replaced by prayers and pleas for forgiveness, which unite God with humanity.

2250. 791 The dualism of Christians and Muslims is destructive; through their belief that Satan is the devil, the idea has arisen that God fights Satan in spiritual wars, which translate into wars here on earth – hence the belief in jihad and the belief in an eternal struggle between Satan and Jesus.

2251. These two ideas are entirely pagan, and we must teach people that God is the Elah of reality – the God from whom the 'light' of the morning and the 'darkness' of the night originate.

2252. This does not mean that God is the source of evil, but rather that He tests us in the fire of our lives and trains us through our sins on this earth, so that we may recognise the despair of our sins and strive only to separate ourselves from sin and its influence.

2253. Yahweh God is the God of reality; He gives us free will to choose between good and evil; we need neither the devil nor the influence of holy angels for this.

2254. The devil is a figment of the imagination of Christians and pagans.

2255. The devil is also a base nature, a symbol of sinfulness and separation from the 'light' of God.

2256. If a person experiences more evil in life, they will find it repulsive and abhorrent; in this way, they will strive for good, to do good, and draw closer to God, like the biblical Job.

2257. The prophets were sinners and serve as an example to us so that we do not act in the same way.

2258. It is important to believe in God and to adorn ourselves with righteous and good deeds that serve our families, communities and humanity.

Respect for every human being

God commands us to respect and love followers of every faith.

2260. As long as they do not cause harm with their own hands and do not harm others, we are obliged to respect their rights and work for their good.

2261. 797 We are ready to be patient; we are ready to swear by heaven and earth that we will exercise self-restraint for our own good, for the good of those we care about, for the good of society and humanity!

2262. 798 Do not seek hopelessness, but find peace; do not seek a place for excessive self-importance, but rather a place for humility.

2263. A true believer in God is recognised by his qualities, qualities through which he spreads a wonderful fragrance!

2264. 799 A wonderful fragrance for Allah is his faithfulness, being among the righteous, being righteous, and curbing pride and conceit!

2265. 800 Do not deprive yourselves of mutual love, do not be selfish, and do not exalt yourselves!

2266. Spread a wonderful fragrance around you, the purity of your deeds; avoid all curses and all selfishness!

2267. 801 But God does not look at the number of souls who please Him; He looks at the heart and the love we show to others – this is the greatest honour, the greatest truth and the most sincere faith – to love one's neighbour as oneself, to love all people!

2268. 802 Seek fellowship with those who desire liberation from the mundane, and keep your distance from those who seek friendship only amongst those who love dust and transience.

2269. 803 Fight with all your might against difficulties and do not let them overcome you.

2270. 804 Do not let fear overcome you, for Elah is stronger than evil and fear!

2272. 806 Be cruel to no one.

2273. No one deserves to be harmed or oppressed, whether by word, hand or deed.

2274. Our God is a God of mercy; He delivers people from all suffering and does not allow victims to be harmed, so free the victims from the yoke of their oppressors.

2275. Free the victims from the bondage of their oppressors; free the citizens of nations from the tyranny of their rulers!

2276. 807 Do not be overly critical, lest you bring discouragement and disorder into the places where God is worshipped.

2277. 808 Do not express all your love through harsh words towards your wives, daughters, husbands and sons.

2278. Rather, cast aside harshness and choose gentleness and calm.

2279. Let your love blossom, and let the shoots of compassion and the leaves of health heal and bind up the wounds of sorrow and despondency.

2280. Whoever is wandering, whoever is in darkness.

2281. Let us be compassionate towards them, full of gentle feelings and understanding.

2282. 810 God loves people who spare no effort to work hard for their daily bread, to be conscientious in their affairs, to wish their neighbour happiness without expecting payment in return.

2283. 811 God loves people who are not selfish, who not only speak words of love but are adorned with a multitude of wonderful deeds.

2284. 812 God loves people who share their bread with the poor – those who truly need help.

2285. 813 God loves people who encourage their neighbours to love one another, to refrain from violence, to help one another and to seek respect.

2286. God loves people who are gentle of heart, gentle in their manner, and who smile at every living creature – human and animal.

2287. 814 God loves people who are not impulsive, who do not get angry, and who spread peace and harmony amongst one another.

2288. God loves people who show understanding, who do not seek quarrels and who do not excessively look for faults in their neighbours.

2289. 815 God loves people who do not seek to exalt themselves, are not proud, and do not wish to be singled out in matters of faith and love for others.

2290. Therefore, do not exalt yourself when you help the poor; do not let your pride get the better of you, but do so out of love for your neighbour.

2291. 816 Treat your neighbour justly, and above all, treat your family with the utmost dignity and love.

2292. Be tender and sincere towards your wife or husband; bear one another's burdens; do not seek quarrels, but promote peace and unity.

2293. 817 Let love be your crown; God is love and rejoices in every good deed you sow in your magnificent gardens.

2294. Pull up all the weeds of dishonesty and war, and sow all the flowers of love and peace!

2295. 818 God does not require us to fight against followers of other religions.

2296. Our God is the God of peace, forgiving the sins of those who stray, unwavering in His love for sinners!

2297. 819 The time has come to cast aside all anger and refrain from harming one another, even if they hate us and wish us ill.

2298. God, in His omnipotence, abolishes all war and commands that all nations be taught the words of love, harmony and reconciliation.

2300. He who builds himself upon unjust words will sow unjust deeds.

2301. That is why I have rightly declared that it is not worth reading books that drive people to the frenzy of hatred, to enmity between people, and to wars in the name of God.

2302. 821 As for the teachings contained in books derived from Islamic, Christian or Jewish law, they may be read in such a way that their words translate into doing good and leading others towards mutual love; in this regard, I am not in the right.

2303. It is therefore not forbidden to possess many books, as Brama said: If those books which differ from ours teach actions for the good of the family, society and humanity – such books should be recommended for reading, and not forbidden to be read or taught by believers.

2304. We must resolve all ambiguities concerning the moral law bestowed by the Original Point – the Unconverted God: And there are no miracles beyond these Scriptures; truly, gather knowledge against this Book, and God will erase your false words.

2305. For he who argues by means of his books of falsehood – the Gospel and the Qur'an – has no knowledge; he walks in darkness, and falls into the abyss and darkness.

2306. Nor was it permitted to beat or abuse one's wife; if anyone beats his wife, he should be admonished and punished.

2307. The first payment for failing to restrain one's hand against one's wife shall be used by the community to distribute gifts to the needy and to spread the holy faith.

2308. And it is most just that if a husband does not desist a second time and continues to beat and abuse his wife, and the punishment is not adequate, then he should be declared a criminal and imprisoned.

2309. The commandment not to send the wife away when the husband is forced to travel should not be observed.

2310. God loves sound understanding, not blind following of religious leaders; judge for yourselves in this matter what is good for you.

2311. 826 It is not lawful to marry off children over the age of eleven or young adults.
2312. This is not ordained by Heaven in this world.
2313. 827 In the Holy Name of God lies the miracle of the earth, of life and of the universe.
2314. So do not neglect the earth upon which you tread, do not pollute the air or the water!
2315. 828 As for repeating the words of the rosary and the missal, do not do so.
2316. God does not listen to a prayer that is recited endlessly as a mere formula.
2317. Unconscious people who recite prayers endlessly cast a spell upon themselves and allow themselves to be carried away by delusion and forgetfulness!
2318. Elah loves those who focus on devoting themselves to prayer, rather than mindlessly repeating His holy names!
2319. Elah does not condemn to hell the souls of those who do not know His Oneness or have not recognised Him as the One Saviour of the soul; He is merciful and forgives sins!
2320. 831 God has shown us true, tender love; let us not be proud, but let us become humble before Him.
2321. Let us not be indifferent to the sorrow, injustice and cruelty that afflict the innocent!
2322. 832 Do not be discouraged when you are small; do not be discouraged by life's trials.
2323. Let God breathe new life into you, the breath of the Holy Spirit.
2324. Do not be prepared to die for God; our Elah does not want martyrs, but devoted fellow servants!
2325. He loves life and saves you from all death.
2326. 833 Do not be unjust in the eyes of your society, and do not be unjust towards God by spreading mistrust, theft and negligence.
2327. Do not succumb to selfishness and excessive love of money; cast aside all envy, all disputes and wars that have arisen amongst you.
2328. 834 Keep your hearts pure, far from all deceit and selfishness!
2329. Do not defile yourselves with malice, envy or greed.
2330. Elah has given us all the means, all the opportunities, and will grant us all the desires to bring peace to the earth and remove from it strife, discord and war!
2331. 835 Be Elah's labourers in His vineyard, to plant vines full of nobility.
2332. Share the wine of generosity, pressed by the press of support, and do not hesitate to soil your feet whilst treading the wine for the needs of the poor and the needy.
2333. 836 Seek neither satisfaction nor contempt, nor let your hand grow weary because of the poor believers under your care, whom God has loved and is leading by His power to the heavenly Canaan.
2334. 837 Do not be content with seeking enemies amongst those you know and those you do not know.
2335. Rather, seek to live a life that devotes its efforts, its time and its talents to improving the lives of others.
2336. Our Elah is the source of all good!
2337. 838 Do not waste time on trifles; gather together as believers to form the people of Elah, the chosen ones from among the nations, His saints!
2338. 839 Nor is there in any book permission for clergy or priests to take the place of God!
2339. We ourselves, all believers, are equal before God; He is our miracle-worker, He is our only Priest and our only Saviour!
2340. 840 It was forbidden to fast excessively, or to command His servants and fellow servants to offer burnt offerings.
2341. Strangely enough, let every one be cursed who performs ancient rituals, who dares to slaughter lambs and calves for burnt offerings.
2342. 841 It is forbidden to impose burdens on people, to set harsh demands and to mortify oneself; but our destiny is to seek God in humility, yet without excessive submission or humiliation.
2343. 842 For the sake of God and His exaltation, it is necessary to assist the authorities in closing all religious orders, for how much evil has been wrought by their actions, and how much severity and cruelty has been imposed upon those who belong to the orders!

2344. 843 For the sake of God and His exaltation, Christians must be shut up – saying firmly: ‘Jesus did not die for you’; do you not know that the Paschal sacrifice was a thanksgiving offered to God by the Israelites!

2345. Have you not been taught the lies and delusions that have arisen amongst your clergy?

2346. Elah is just and judges according to deeds

For the sake of Elah and His exaltation, the mouths of Muslims must be silenced – one must not have more than one wife; do not misinterpret the Bible.

2347. It is acknowledged that anyone who promotes polygamy is cursed!

2349. How much jealousy and misunderstanding has arisen as a result of polygamy, how much unforgiveness has spread as a result of human errors!

2350. 845 For the sake of God and His exaltation, the mouths of the Jews should be shut – they have long been told not to desire burnt offerings!

2351. Well, soon they will return to their godless rituals and believe they are doing so for the glory of the Most High!

2352. Did not God Himself, in His omnipotence, declare that ‘My house shall be a house of prayer for all nations’, and not a house of endless burnt offerings!

2353. 846 Look for yourselves, even today it seems that slavery has returned, and people exploit one another without measure!

2354. Human trafficking is forbidden at all costs, and may every one who engages in it and spreads it be cursed!

2355. 847 No one is truly a slave to our Elah; look, we ourselves have Free Will, and the trials of life show whom we serve – ourselves, our neighbours, or God!

2356. 848 You should not abandon your spouse if they belong to the ‘People of the Book’.

2357. Be faithful to one another, but do not make your differences public; walk side by side for the sake of your children!

2358. The ‘Law of Prudence’ is permitted because believers may live in lawless lands so that you are not deemed ‘unbelievers’. The highest value for Elah is the preservation of life, not surrendering it to martyrdom.

2359. Accept, then, the principle of the ‘Law of Prudence’ as justified and necessary for spreading the kingdom of Elah on earth by means of this tool, when you face death or harm at the hands of those who despise you.

2360. Examine everything with reason, and so as not to shy away from investigating abuses and all shortcomings, everything that is evil and corrupt must be eliminated and must not be honoured or further developed.

2361. 851 If you truly love your families, strangers and fellow believers, you will not supervise or direct them, nor will you exalt some above others.

2362. 852 If something wrong happens, say a firm ‘no’ and do not allow ‘evil to multiply amongst you’.

2363. Pull up the weeds whilst they are small and weak, not once they have grown.

2364. 853 Listen to people’s concerns, and let everyone who believes in God take such action as will, in every possible way, improve living conditions and combat all social inequalities.

2365. 854 Avoid also any sermons that spread hatred and incite violence.

2366. 855 Do not exercise excessive control over believers; be priests unto yourselves; God is our High Priest, and we are slaves to no one but God Himself.

2367. 856 Nothing is imposed by force, nor is the defamation of a person’s good name tolerated or permitted. 857 That which is good and pleasant for the body is not forbidden, nor is it for our spirit and soul.

2368. Expressing oneself amongst believers is not a waste of time, but should be respected and welcomed.

2369. Joy, empathy and concern for others are the highest form of love and should replace the competition for honours and the race for ever-higher levels of 'divine' exaltation.

2370. Such 'divine' exaltation is merely an illusion, arising from pride and unbridled selfishness; we are all equal before God, regardless of whether we are men or women.

2371. 858 Despite the sin of 'loving differently', it is forbidden to attack, humiliate or violate their dignity and self-esteem.

2372. It is a commandment to love all people.

2373. .

2374. It is also unacceptable to accuse a person who 'loves differently' of bringing hail or drought upon them.

2375. We are all accountable to God for our sins and are no better than them!

2376. Sins cannot be weighed; all sins are equal.

2377. 859 As for the family, you should proclaim the Oneness of God, proclaim His love amongst the daughters and sons you have borne!

2378. May the joy, love and compassion they share never fade!

2379. 860 Go and proclaim the joy of Elah amongst the nations; burn down the shrines of hatred and discord!

2380. 861 Do not say to God: 'I will beat and flog my children!' And do not forgive sinners, for whoever does so shall not receive forgiveness!

2381. From the distant heavens it has been commanded to treat children with respect, as if they were one's own flesh and blood, to devote all possible attention to them and to encourage them to be vigilant, so that no harm may befall them from strangers or those close to them!

2382. Keep a watchful eye on your children, lest they end up on the streets and become a burden on society!

2383. Teach your children all wisdom and doctrine, so that they do not steal and become common thieves.

2384. 863 It is right and proper to bring up children and keep them in complete purity.

2385. Children should not be a burden to their parents, nor should parents be a burden to one another; give them freedom, offer them sensible guidance, and do not fear that your children will obey you in what is good and right, in what does not destroy their conscience or cause them sorrow.

2386. Let mothers feel the need to love not only in word but also in deed, just as fathers do.

2387. Let them watch over their children, but not hold them back; let them not cause harm to their parents, and let parents not cause harm to their children.

2388. 865 Let them not allow unnecessary quarrels to arise, nor speak unkind words, especially to those closest to them.

2389. Let them love their neighbours, especially their families, and let their hearts be united, not divided by any beliefs or differences of opinion.

2390. 866 Elah has commanded you from on high not to dwell on anything gloomy nor to give in to darkness, but to fill every day with joy and smiles—the smiles of your family, your wife and your children.

2391. 867 Make no distinction between the duties of a father and a mother; let both labour in their tasks, let both care for their children, and in their parents' old age let them care for them, showing them due respect and honour!

2392. 868 You, O God, divided Adam into two and took away his part, and from his 'tree of life', from his holy rib, You took Eve, the mother of all mankind.

2393. 869 O Yahweh, Elah of all abundance, You whose words cannot be silenced!

2394. 870 Do not remain silent about the truth, so that you may treat your mother, father, wife, husband and children well.

2395. Cherish all peace in your minds and treat no one with contempt.

2396. 871 There shall be no word nor doubt concerning the love that God bestows upon all people, and these are not empty words; our Elah loves all people without exception!

2397. 872 I feel unclean; wash the stains and dirt from my robe, that I may feel clean before You.

2398. 873 May peace on earth never fade away; may peace on earth never be taken away!

2399. May apologies, love and forgiveness take root in people's minds.

2400. May the crown of mutuality, mercy and peace rest upon the heads of those who claim to be worshippers of the One God.

2401. 874 May peace on earth never fade away, may peace on earth never be taken away!

2402. May apologies, love and forgiveness take root in people's minds.

2403. May the crown of reciprocity, mercy and peace rest upon the heads of those who claim to be worshippers of the One God.

2404. 875 Enough of what I say – to the idols of Christians and Muslims, how much evil have your hands wrought, how much suffering have you caused on earth, how many tears have you shed through wars and discord?

2405. Is not our Elah the 'God of light and darkness'? On what grounds do you attribute darkness to angels, when both 'darkness' and 'light', good and bad days, come from God, who created us?

2406. Let not sin be your guardian or mine; turn your eyes and minds towards that which is pure, sublime and inspiring.

2407. There is no truer mirror on earth, no purer source of law and love, than Elah on high; He is Elah above all Elahs and God above all Gods.

2408. Let not your feelings towards God and people be clouded, and let not your anger be quenched.

2409. Do not despair over your wrongs or failures, nor complain excessively; be grateful, avoid thoughts of discord, and instead embrace the law of peace and reconciliation.

2410. 878 May peace be crowned, may the throne and the arm of Your presence rise above that which is higher, may Your mercy and Your infinite love never fade.

2411. Let us build ourselves up in forgiveness and reconciliation, and share love with those we know and with those who are strangers to us.

2412. Above all, let us be friends of the nations; let us not harbour anger nor nurture envy.

2413. Turn your minds to bringing your justice to the hearts of the fallen, those who love unrest and are far from peace.

2414. Hold in love those who bring peace to nations, who harbour kind feelings, who share selfless love, and who are not merely a cause of discord and hatred.

2415. 879 Do no harm to anyone, do not boast of your wickedness, do not cease to help the poor, and distribute good deeds as often as possible.

2416. 880 Do not keep a friend by your side; he is not your property.

2417. Likewise, your wife and children are not a reason for you to betray your soul or to depress it.

2418. 881 Be honest, but do not justify your sinful behaviour.

2419. Treat yourself with compassion; we are all, without exception, subject to sin.

2420. Value yourself, even when you fall; do not hide from the world, even when it betrays and hates you.

2421. 882 True faith is that which stems from secularism, seeks the middle way, and is not driven by fanaticism.

2422. Beware of provoking wars and being the cause of hatred, and also beware of sending your children to their deaths because of wars and the destruction they cause.

2423. Beware and keep away from the filth of wars, their destruction, and the endless pain and suffering.

2424. 883 The Messiah for whom I waited did not return; he returned as the 'Holy Spirit' during the lifetime of the apostles.

2425. Do you think that his 'return was immediate'?

2426. – He did indeed return during their lifetime, on the day of Pentecost.

2427. See for yourselves how Christians are fixated on fairy tales and think that He, Jesus, might return 'in the clouds', but not alive.

2428. The Gospels – their falsity and everything in them that is holy and pure – have not survived, but have been emptied and swallowed up by the clergy and hidden from the sight of ordinary people.

2429. Therefore, do not say that they are ‘unbelievers’; they are all worthy people.

2430. They are all worthy people; they were all created in the image of God, and within them lies the spark of God’s presence; they all walk upon the ‘clouds’ of God’s knowledge and may enter through the gates of Elah’s knowledge.

2431. So go quickly to ‘Mount Elah’ and do not delay in sharing the good news.

2432. You were not promised to marry a ‘wicked wife’; you were promised a bride who is pure and steadfast in your obedience.

2434. May His love abide in us forever.

2435. Elah of Peace

Peace in the world will come only when all the children of Abraham unite and determine what is most important to them, rejecting what is less important and superfluous.

2436. 887 They speak with one voice: ‘We have peace in our souls, but there is no peace or hope amongst us, and all nations despise one another and wage ceaseless wars.’ Is it not therefore obvious that Elah has brought the law of peace to the nations?

2437. Do we not follow Elah, and will He not, in His power, bring us obvious peace?

2438. Our Elah is the God of peace, not of war.

2439. Cast aside your old habits, cast aside your old customs, cast aside your old prophets who taught fables.

2440. Turn to the God who created you and exalted peace, sharing it with everyone around you.

2441. Praise the heavens and the whole earth, Yahweh, Elah of the whole world!

2442. Let gratitude and love increase.

2443. For women desire love, whilst men seek pleasure only in the world.

2444. The pursuit of the world will pass away, but women’s love for what is beautiful, pure and glorious will never pass away.

2445. 890 Women are not thorns, but roses, whose delightful fragrance, love, empathy and support are given to all members of the family, yes, to children and husbands.

2446. What would you men do without women? They gave birth to you, so what right do you have to call them inferior?

2447. 891 Women know love, desire marriage and rarely seek debauchery; with men it is the opposite: they seek what is vain and pursue the pleasures of life. May they become like women – pure and righteous in their deeds.

2448. 892 It is in women that the potential lies; it is they who give birth to life and bestow life; from them you draw empathy, love and warmth.

2449. Holy women are holy mirrors reflecting the unquenchable fire of the Shekhinah, the divine messenger of the heavens, she who is the Star of the Ocean.

2450. They too are gentle, pure and without blemish, just like the divine messenger of the heavens.

2451. 893 Women are a refuge in sorrow, a support for families, an encouragement to peace.

2452. And the flame of their love transforms the ruins of life into a city of goodness, rich in kindness and faithfulness.

2453. 894 They are a comfort in misfortune to their children.

2454. They are a refuge in sorrow for the oppressed and the humiliated.

2455. They are deliverers from suffering; holy women bring joy and relief to those who wander in darkness.

2456. 895 Holy women readily forgive everyone; they are ready to forgive every wrongdoing.

2457. They love selflessly and offer a helping hand and support to those who have fallen and cannot rise again.

2458. 896 They walk in the veil of true holiness, clothed in virtue and all righteous deeds.

2459. Why then should they wear veils, when they are rightly clothed in the light of their righteous deeds?

2460. 897 Glory to the heavens and to all the earth, Yahweh, God of the whole world!

2461. These divine counsels have been sent for your perfection, that the earth may become brighter than the heavens and the Throne of the Most Holy!

2462. 898 If you truly love your spouse, surely remain faithful and chaste towards one another.

2463. There is no doubt that God watches over marriages in every respect; let them refrain from fornication, let them unite as couples, and let them share their love only between themselves.

2464. 899 Since time immemorial, it has been ordained that one person is destined for another, so that their love may be expressed, united and grow.

2465. This is the most precious love, full of tenderness, purity and joy.

2466. The ancient texts state that 'one may have many wives', but true love flourishes when people come together as couples, free from the imposed burden of polygamy.

2467. 900 How much suffering results from polygamy?

2468. How many children may live in poverty because of this, and how much jealousy is born between wives?

2469. God certainly did not permit such marriages, which have been intended since time immemorial to share love with a single wife.

2470. 901 Taking more than one wife stems from greed and debauchery, and there is no doubt that the behaviour of such husbands brings only misfortune upon misfortune.

2471. 902 In marriage, every precious smile and every act of help should be cherished.

2472. Every joy, every good deed, and the sharing of love through righteous acts always bring blessings, strengthen bonds, and build up rather than tear down.

2473. O nations, arise from your slumber, from your ruinous lust.

2474. Gather together in one place to praise Elah, your Creator and only Saviour.

2475. O, gather the nations, those whom Elah has scattered, and make them great once more.

2476. Do not allow anyone to engage in quarrels and senseless disputes; be noble and gentle towards believers and non-believers alike.

2477. Do not insult anyone, either in word or deed.

2478. Be a model of excellence to others and treat your neighbours with kindness and love.

2479. 905 Do not slander anyone, nor be a source of hatred towards your family or neighbours.

2480. Be a source of joy to strangers, family and loved ones.

2481. 906 Listen to the wise and avoid conversations with fools; do not distance yourself from them if they whisper and lie; do not shun the weak because of their weakness, but unite in prayer for them, for their improvement and perfection.

2482. 907 It is far wiser to acquire an education and gather wisdom than to desire infinite wealth; the former will remain forever, the latter will pass away and is fleeting.

2483. Engaging in worldly affairs is right, whilst avoiding worldly and financial matters leads to poverty and is a source of worry.

2484. 908 Do not remain silent or pray too much; be guided by reason; do not look for faults in one another, but rather seek common solutions.

2485. 909 Reason and wisdom are more valuable than gold and silver; you can preserve them, and neither water nor fire will take them away or hold them back.

2486. Respect every person, protect the weak, the suffering, the wronged, and those who have failed in life – care for them and love them with all your heart.

2487. 910 Do not succumb to deceitful people, and it is better not to associate with those who do not live in accordance with our customs and the laws of wisdom.

2488. Do not, however, shun people, and take care of their past in order to create better conditions for their future.

2489. 911 When suffering comes, turn to God as the source of truth, the source of strength and power.

2490. He, our Father, is the God who helps, works miracles and comforts in all trials.

2491. 912 Do not be proud and do not turn away from this; do not be stubborn either, but be obedient to your superiors.

2492. Do not rush towards evil, but rather be zealous in every good deed and regard all justice and its practice as the greatest piety on God's path.

2493. It is Elah, our Father, who protects the good, whilst allowing the wicked to fall into the snares of their own destruction!

2494. 913 Do not incline towards evil deeds, injustice, or causing harm to the guilty and the innocent.

2495. Do not judge people hastily; by what right would you judge them – are you gods on earth to do so?

2496. 914 You, Jews, Christians and Muslims, turn to the source of truth, happiness and peace.

2497. I write only what God, in His infinite wisdom, shows me, and not what I myself wish to show and convey.

2499. Be water for the thirsty, a support for the poor, and a comfort for the oppressed.

2500. 916 Do not seek quarrels with your neighbours, nor seek clashes or arguments with them; do not seek quarrels with those who disagree with you and who, in their foolishness or folly, are quarrelsome and rejoice in your misfortune.

2501. 917 Passion is hatred and the seeking of hatred amongst nations; they fight amongst themselves for a morsel of bread, for water or for the earth's springs; instead of sharing them, they steal them from one another, turning the earth into a place of destruction and depriving it of joy.

2503. 918 Do not rob anyone of their property, and do not support wars and their abominations!

2504. 919 Elah's primary intention towards us is to compel the nations to submit to a covenant of eternal peace; let us therefore establish such conditions and principles that all nations may accept the eternal principle: 'never again shall we take up arms to oppress one another'. Let war become a shadow of the past; let Elah make us citizens of this earth, rich in peace.

2505. Let us turn this earthly temple into a paradise, and Elah himself shall sit upon the throne as the Elah of peace and eternal joy!

2506. 920 Since war brings only misery, and its instrument is the weapon – let us destroy all weapons and strive for their destruction.

2507. O our Elah, I beseech You that all weapons, all hatred, all war may be transformed into Your glory, Your perfection, Your unity, and not into chaos!

2508. Elah, create for us the conditions to develop Your paradise on earth; make our earthly dwellings a home for those who rejoice in peace, those who live safely in their chambers, those who do not fear perishing on the battlefield; O God, grant us all this and make us happy!

2509. Our Elah, make us citizens of Your kingdom, make us stewards of Your peace, here on earth!

2510. 921 May all anger and hatred soon be suppressed; may hatred have no place in this world.

2511. May ingratitude, lack of love and the pursuit of hostility towards one another vanish from our minds.

2512. May Elah of Reconciliation soon reveal His power; may He bestow His grace upon us. He, our Elah, is our leader, our One and Only Saviour, our One and Only King and Defender!

2513. 922 Who is my enemy?

2514. No one; everyone is my friend, provided they do not wish me ill or wish me dead; they are my friends.

2515. Elah is my best friend; He cares for my life, my survival, my worries, my comings and goings.

2516. He is a true friend, helper and saviour on this path!

2517. 923 A wise friend conceals his companion's difficulties and failures; so does God. Therefore, do not make a man the confidant of your sins; always pray to God with a humble heart that He may forgive your sins, and through His help He will comfort you, strengthen you, and encourage you to excellence in righteousness!

2518. 924 God does not forget people's good and evil deeds; He records them in His books and commands the angels to count both good and evil deeds.

2519. Above all this, He is the most beloved, the most just, most sincere and most generous Leader!

2520. 925 Do not confide your sins to people; confide only to God what you have done wrong; He, Elah, will surely hear what foreign ears do not wish to hear, what foreign ears will surely curse and call evil and sinful.

2521. But Elah is patient; He hears sins, humble and a servant of His people!

2522. 926 Do not make your heart a tomb; do not be sad or anxious.

2523. Do not hide the secrets or worries that torment you; seek help from those close to you who can comfort you and not judge you.

2525. 927 Forge bonds of friendship with those who wish to show you mercy; do not reject the help of strangers if they are sincere and do not seek to take advantage of you.

2526. Elah sends angels of light from among the children of men to dispel the darkness and gloom that surround you; they are the light that leads you to cast aside all darkness, all sorrow and suffering.

2527. 928 Be ready to help those who cannot help themselves, and do not betray the secrets of your friends.

2528. Let peace become evident when weapons are cast into the fire.

2529. Do not impose upon your bodies any burdens or human customs – those customs of Jews, Christians or Muslims, which in God's eyes are all a burdensome, transient and senseless bondage and a scourge upon mankind.

2530. 929 Those who are great orators and sometimes place their trust in their deeds are also of limited intellect.

2531. Those who are of limited intellect are not always talkative, nor are they always fools; protect such people from those who attribute bliss, carefreeness and foolishness to them!

2532. 930 Do not be slaves to people who claim to be outwardly adorned, yet are merely the foundation of customs and traditions.

2533. Nor be slaves to God, for He has given you free will and the law of justice; so how can you be slaves to both God and men?

2534. You cannot.

2535. 931 Some are deceived by the devils of their own minds and think that it is the devils who tempt them, but it is they themselves who tempt themselves; the devils have no part among people who have free will and are of sound mind.

2536. It is no secret that people choose the path of evil or the path of good, depending on personal choices or chance.

2537. 932 Do not argue if you encounter a contradiction, whether in the Gospels or in the Qur'an; anything that contradicts itself must be a lie and a figment of the human mind!

2538. However, everything that has been written for our comfort, strengthening and perfection surely comes from God and has been written down to explain its meaning in the spirit of THIS Book.

2539. A rare breath of the Holy Spirit inspired the mind of Brama and imparted to him words of joy, that he might write down these holy verses to bring the harvest of salvation to the whole world, and thereby enable the world to understand the greatness and Majesty of God!

2540. The One who is neither born nor dies, the one true King of the Universe!

2541. Above all, remember only the name of Elah, King of the Universe!

2542. 933 Do not yield involuntarily to the admonitions of men, but be guided by reason on the path of God.

2543. Choose the righteous truth that comes from God, not the path that seems right to you and seems right to people.

2544. 934 Choose the path of righteousness, so that Elah may become your fortress, your ocean, where, like a drop, you will dissolve into His waters.

2545. You are a drop in His ocean, you are a stone building His fortress, which will never fall nor be shaken by the strong winds of fear and anxiety!

2546. 935 Follow the river of these Scriptures, follow the righteousness of these words, and surely from the spring of love and respite you will meet Elah, sailing in the boat of understanding upon the open ocean of destiny and respite.

2547. 936 Be like that single drop of the ocean – faithful, kind, far from indulging yourself, neither vain nor stingy.

2548. Be like that single drop of the ocean – united, shaped to foster gratitude for all that lives; be faithful and adorned with the charm and radiance of mercy and goodness.

2549. 937 This single drop is part of the ocean; it is a glorification of the divine and an understanding of its mercy, its qualities.

2550. All these drops can reflect His divine attributes, whilst He already lives.

2551. He, Elah, our Heavenly Father, can make us a heavenly drop of unity with Him, when the drop shares with Him all attributes, all actions and all the love of the waters which He has enlivened and taught unity.

2552. 938 Let us unite like these drops to build an ocean of mercy, unbounded by lands or by lands of forgetfulness of His greatness and attributes.

2553. 939 Similarly, the prophets are the sources of drops of water that enliven, sprinkle and caress plants and flowers with water.

2554. The prophets are springs whose flow sets the pace for the development of faith, which is scarce at the source but becomes broad and accessible to all as it flows towards the mouth, so that all creatures may feel quenched and sated by the holy water.

2555. 940 Let us therefore draw the water of life from the words of the prophets, and let us not despise the mirrors abounding in all holiness and righteousness.

2556. His Worldliness, the Gate, therefore speaks of the prophets as ‘suns’ that guide the course of humanity, so that those who prosper.

2557. Prophets are like mirrors that reflect the unchanging light of God – the light of the Shekinah; they declare in a single Word that Elah is One and Indivisible; He is not mirrors, but the Uncreated Light, and the Shekinah His rays of generosity.

2558. You cannot bear wrong or harm; likewise, life is not merely suffering and torment.

2559. Were not the prophets themselves wounded, yet their suffering was not in vain?

2560. We ourselves are not ‘mirrors’; there is no need to suffer for God as much as possible.

2561. Our task here on earth is to transform the earth into a paradise; it is our duty to prevent harm and suffering from befalling strangers, loved ones and our families.

2562. This is the essence of faith and all mercy: to ‘love one’s neighbour’, to do no harm, and not to spread hatred amongst one’s neighbours!

2563. 942 prophets on God’s path called for suffering and chose it.

2564. We, however, are far removed from the darkness, the cares and sorrows of this life. Like reflections of His Light, the prophets strive day and night, persistently praising God, desiring only Him and speaking only of Him.

2565. Yahweh is the Lawgiver and Ruler; He will not yield to the worthless thoughts of men or the wisdom of this world.

2566. 944 The prophets are the symbolic ‘sun’, which is also a light for all mankind; if you look at the sun, it will blind you, so it is not worth worshipping the ‘sun’, for it is merely a tool in the hands of God.

2567. For the Morning Star, together with all the stars of heaven, worships only God and no one else!

Protection of the poor

2568. Those who deserve happiness are those who practise justice, for the greatest benefits flow from the source of justice.

2569. For the source of happiness is justice, just as the highest good
He who is the defender of the poor is a lover of justice, which Elah himself has sent Behold, you yourselves are priests of God, for what use are priests to God who covet the wealth of the poor and the rich?

2570. Does it not follow from this prayer that priests are believers, those who truly love God and His signs!

2571. 948 So what does 'Satan' mean to us? The Devil signifies only the temptation in the human heart to choose justice and reject the harming of the innocent, and to choose justice!

2572. 949 We should keep far away from lying, deceiving and misleading our neighbours, our families, our spouses and all those we love.

2573. We must not, therefore, seek to blame demons, nor must we seek to justify our wicked deeds by invoking evil spirits.

2574. All people possess, in equal measure, inner 'daevas', inner 'devils', which we ourselves must overcome and from which we must purify ourselves.

2575. It is in the minds of people, not of so-called demons, that all repulsive thoughts are born; all repulsive crimes are unleashed upon the world through the thoughts of the human 'Ahirman'.
Therefore, it is right to say: strike down all evil people who desire evil and the doing of it.

2576. It is also right to overcome them and destroy them with the very Words of God, so that they may be calmed and return to righteousness of thought and deed.

2577. The 'Devil' is the inner evil nature inherent in man, which can be overcome, and I urge all who believe in God to oppose all evil people, all hatred and all crime.

2578. All the prophets were once mirrors leading to the 'Sun of Truth', to the Noble Words of Divine Joy.

2579. May we all draw strength, power and comfort from the holy crystals and crystal-clear mirrors that illuminated the world with their radiance.

2580. Just as Moses reflected the light of God and His commandments, the teacher Jesus brought joy and liberation to oppressed women, the teacher Muhammad destroyed the pagan idols, and the Mother Book united their bonds and joined their eternal truths.

2581. It pleased Elah to create a great light out of darkness.

2582. You shall be cursed and remain in darkness until you acknowledge even a modicum of the wisdom of the pagans – Christians and Muslims, who are depraved amongst the children of Israel!

2583. 955 Do you not see that a fratricidal struggle is unfolding before your very eyes, and that God has established such conditions to refine you and draw you back to Himself in His humble mercy?

2584. 956 It is your pride, your carelessness, that you are not tolerant enough and judge in God's stead!

2585. 957 God is equally disgusted with all of you – rabbis, Christian pastors and Muslims – and calls upon you to make amends for your abominable deeds and abominable behaviour.

2586. For centuries you have done nothing to reconcile, to comfort, and to make the world a better paradise than it is now!

2587. You bring unrest into the world and, regardless of which faction you belong to, you instil hatred towards one another; you become 'devils' in your actions and words towards one another!

2588. You are vain and consumed by your own worship, the worship of your places and positions.

2589. Yet you have God, His peace and the spreading of His unity for free.

2590. God is so disgusted with you that He has sent upon you confusion of the senses, hatred, obstinacy and fanaticism.

2591. Out of all this, He has sent you reconciliation, so that you may be far from fanaticism and a lack of repentance!

2592. So be reconciled, all of you who truly love God, whose eyes are not blinded by fanaticism and who do not say: 'I will keep God only for myself!'

2593. 958 You must avoid fanaticism and the rabbinical observance of the Sabbath – the seventh day of the week – at all costs.

2594. The more you dedicate this day to God, the more He blesses you, but you need not observe it if you care for your family.

2595. Caring for one's family is also a great honour to God; by loving one's neighbour, we show God the same love as when we pray to Him or worship Him.

2596. 959 Many of the commandments and precepts contained in the Tanakh should not be taken literally – this is a path to fanaticism and to indulging in the ossified customs that have taken root among the Jews.

2597. If one interprets the meaning of this book figuratively, it brings spiritual well-being to both soul and body.

2598. 960 God does not see with human eyes, but with divine ones, and perceives things differently – Jesus and Muhammad were a sure path to understanding God, and rejecting these two prophets is not right even today and is a cause of spiritual harm to oneself.

2599. There will therefore be no harmony amongst all God's children unless the descendants of Esau and Ishmael acknowledge that their 'prophets' have failed them, having lied and deceived many.

2600. We must worship God every day, not necessarily by reading the Holy Scriptures.

2601. We must express ourselves through righteous deeds every day, not just on feast days, thereby becoming 'children of God'. May our sins vanish, may our blushes brighten.

The destruction of weapons

2602. Act with pure thoughts, with the clear awareness that you will receive your reward: good for good, evil for evil.

2603. This is true humility and modesty, if you have this awareness.

2604. Since time immemorial, we have been told to love one another and not to seek strife; it is essential to keep away from hatred.

2605. The good fruits of the tree of peace are harmony, unity and cooperation.

2606. Let us raise the banner of peace and burn the weapons of hatred.

2607. Let love reign over our world; let love, not fanaticism, prevail amongst us.

2608. Together, let us build a new and better world order, overcoming all worries, all wars and all prejudices.

2609. This has been the principle for centuries, eternal in its message, true in its divine prototype.

2610. Our calling is selfless love for all people.

2611. To overcome hatred is to overcome the eternal enemy.

2612. He, our Elah, is the only Saviour and the only one on whom one can rely; He is the advocate of love, peace and friendly cooperation.

2613. Like a weak and sick tree, the sinner falls under the weight of his sins.

2614. Deprived of patience, let him cast aside thoughts of honour, let him cast aside thoughts of earthly pleasures and turn his face towards Elah, his Redeemer.

2615. Let him humble himself; let him not exalt himself on the Day of Atonement.

2616. Let him surrender his senses to his Elah and the Sole Saviour of his soul, being self-controlled, moderate, and far from carelessness.

2617. Then Elah will not tempt him, for he will avoid all that is evil and haughty.

2618. See for yourself how sad it is when a man strays from the path and seeks pleasure only in worldly things?

2619. Look, how much suffering does ignorance of the mind bring?

2620. How much suffering and hatred flows from the lips and thoughts of people who are wicked and prone to ignorance.

2621. But they all deserve to have their unrighteous thoughts overthrown, their weak branches to rot away, so that laziness and hatred may be cast into the fire of friendship and reconciliation.

2622. 965 Faithful, strong and reconciled is he who has overcome all impurity within himself.

2623. The wind of destruction shall not touch him, the weight of earthly pleasures shall not crush him.

2624. The wind of destruction will not touch him, the weight of earthly pleasures will not crush him, for his senses are under control and he himself is moderate in his actions.

2625. Let us look for a moment at those whose lives are devoted to sobriety of mind and deed.

2626. What deeds have they accomplished, what achievements have they brought to their families and to the world?

2627. See for yourselves: they are stars shining in the darkness of the night; they are diamonds whose value surpasses that of uncut stones.

2628. But God chooses uncut stones and makes them precious through the trials of life.

2629. Become beautiful in your calling; become respected citizens of the world, displaying all noble qualities and holy attributes.

2630. 966 Blessed are those who delight in the purity of their thoughts and deeds.

2631. They shall walk the path of earthly life with joy.

2632. They are virtuous in all their deeds, and they are surrounded by the joy and radiance of Providence.

2633. Purity has never harmed anyone; on the contrary, through it we may attain heaven, and heaven dwells amongst us.

2634. Gentle love for the sinner is the answer to God's message 'love your neighbour as yourself'; how can you judge one another when you yourselves are sinners?

2635. If you ask Elah for help and forgiveness on the Day of Atonement – 2 October, what right do you have to seek any fault in those who do not repent?

2636. Look first for faults within yourselves, so that you may find them there.

2637. Elah seeks out the humble and celebrates their noble deeds.

2638. Be steadfast in your actions, honest in your conduct, prudent in your spending, and do not let yourselves be carried away, even for a moment, when it comes to wealth and the management of money.

2639. 969 O noble heart, free yourself from all attachment to worldly things, envy and hatred.

2640. This is the day on which all false prophets will be silenced.

2641. 970 Elah Himself has dwelt in my spirit; He has inspired me to write for His Eternal Glory.

2642. Gather the children of Israel in one place; be assured that God is with us and has not forsaken us.

2643. 971 O you who are fashioned from clay, be at peace and do not tremble with fear.

2644. Be devoted to Elah with all your heart and do not succumb to temptations or false accusations, as if you were serving the devil.

2645. We truly serve God with all our hearts, but the doubters will mock our service and our devotion to Him and to humanity.

2646. That which is the Temple of Elah stands upon distant heights, yet they still doubt, thinking of its reconstruction because of the shallowness of their minds, for they do not trust Elah, the One Creator!

2647. 972 No flood can overwhelm the wise man who rises to the island of justice and devotion to Elah.

2648. Through restraint, moderation and the renunciation of anger, all floods recede, and his island is not shaken.

2649. Create for yourself an island of unity, create for yourself an island of reconciliation and peace.

2650. Friendship is more enduring and stronger than hatred.

2651. Do not follow the stubbornness of your hearts, and do not succumb to hatred, anger and hostility.

2652. 973 Purity is a complete blessing; purity of mind brings happiness; purity of body inspires you to refrain from foolishness.

2653. Let us not follow the impulse of violence; let us be gentle.

2654. Let us not be led astray by the errors of earthly pleasures; let us build ourselves up with moderation and all restraint.

2655. What is this?

2656. Vanity and sinfulness lead to the abyss; pleasure and all desires pass away in equal measure, whilst love, brotherhood and devotion endure for ages.

2657. By what right, then, do you seek vanity, lust and debauchery instead of that which is pure and righteous?

2658. Seek wisdom in your downfalls, and Elah will lift up your sorrow, your pain and your suffering; in Him you will find solace.

2659. By repenting for all your failings, you will find solace for the mind; evil thoughts give rise to evil deeds, which bear bitter fruit.

2660. Repent with all your heart and yield to the temptation to surrender yourself to Elah and His infinite Love.

2661. He will gladly and joyfully welcome you under His roof, take care of you, and erase your sins from the heavenly books.

2662. 974 O Elah, make our hearts pure; let us enjoy the purity of our minds.

2663. Let us guide one another with a humble heart, so that we may be sober, merciful and helpful to others.

2664. Let us maintain righteous habits, and above all, when you meet a truly poor person, rejoice in what you have, sharing with them what you possess.

2665. Wealth is fleeting, so salvation comes from helping others.

2666. What is piety, if not deeds arising from justice?

2668. A noble mind is one that does not succumb to lust and is sober, guided by the good of the whole, whilst loving itself.

2669. Then they will say: well done – your mind has served you well, you are perfect in your righteousness, you have proved noble on the path of the One God!

2670. 975 Bitter fruits are reaped by fools who care for earthly pleasures.

2671. Let such people seek forgiveness from Elah and the One Saviour of mankind.

2672. Act wisely – that is the best advice for you.

2673. Do not be too anxious or too resigned in the face of your weaknesses.

2674. Your greatest enemy is sin, neglecting your children, wives, household and yourself.

2675. It is better not to waste the bitter fruits of your life.

2676. May joy, love and friendship be with you all.

2677. Not everyone is blameless in their conduct, but everyone can strive for perfection in their righteous deeds, not to be seen by the crowds and seek praise, but for the sake of those they love and care for – this is doing good.

2678. 976 Happy and joyful is he whose transgressions Elah has forgiven.

2679. He has shown repentance; Elah has befriended him, cleansed him, and his transgressions have been removed from him.

2680. Such people walk the earth in humility, never exalting themselves for a moment.

2681. They abound in righteous deeds; their sin has died; Elah has cleansed their souls and overcome sin within them.

2682. Yahweh is the source and the goal of all good in this world.

2683. May friendship and love be with us forever.

2684. Refrain from ill-will, which is a lack of piety; be blameless in your company, and kind towards all races and those of lower station.

2685. Do not be wasteful either, but spend the money you have earned wisely.

2686. All good things come from God, so love Elah, your Creator; He is truly not a man, but a spirit; He is the One and Indivisible in His essence.

2687. 977 Do not despise those of lowly station, nor revere those of high station.

2688. Treat every person as a friend, for all people are equal.

2689. God forbid that you should shun the wicked, but do not shun the righteous or the unrighteous.

2690. .

2691. Who is a humble person?

2692. He is a man who boasts of his sinful conduct.

2693. It is not a person who hides their sin, nor one who is ashamed of their deeds.

2694. Truly, Elah covers the sins of those who desire to be holy before Him!

2695. 978 Those faithful to God are not deceived by the praise of fools.

2696. Their words of praise do not waver; they are moderate in their decisions, for they act with justice.

2697. .

2698. O Yahweh, who is One and Indivisible, truly the holy in their conduct, and not merely in speech, seek neither praise nor condemnation from their neighbours.

2699. Let us all seek the presence of God, His protection, and the rays of the Holy Spirit.

2700. Let us all seek God, His majesty, and His marvellous treasures, which He bestows upon us daily.

2701. 979 He, steadfast and unchanging in His actions, loves all creatures with equal love.

2702. And He showers the dust of friendship upon those who seek unity with Him.

2703. 980 Be therefore like a solid rock, unshaken by a whirlwind; be at peace with your neighbours; do not walk in the darkness of falsehood and sin; love one another, and Elah will bring you coolness instead of a strong wind.

2704. He is truly Elah from eternity to eternity, unchanging in His laws, Elah of love and peace!

2705. 981 A righteous man is like a smooth lake, calm in his actions, obedient to the law of love, willingly fulfilling it.

2706. Listen to the love of Elah; His joy and sweet fragrance are our prayers, our righteous deeds.

2707. He is unchanging in His righteous deeds.

2708. He, Elah on high, is the Elah of all people.

2709. He has given us this world so that we may build peace, share our goods and the fruits of our labour, the harvests that the earth yields.

2710. Our Elah has given us love and friendship so that we may show true piety in this world; He has commanded us to renounce ourselves for the sake of those we love and care for.

2711. Seek one another; self-denial for the sake of loved ones is true love; let all justice be expressed in acts of mercy!

2712. 982 O, let us seek the face of Elah and the one Saviour of mankind; let us long for justice.

2713. Let us not lose ourselves in earthly pleasures, for they bring only sorrow.

2714. Show mercy to sinners and do not let yourselves be too overwhelmed by the burden of your guilt.

2715. Be of good cheer: Elah is your shield, your Deliverer.

2716. And you who are burdened by your own iniquities, do not complain of their weight, but lay everything upon Elah.

2717. He counts on devotion; show mercy to yourselves, just as you show it to others.

2718. He is Elah, the Merciful, the Forgiver of sins.

2719. Do not let yourselves be overcome by fear, discouragement or despondency.

2720. Elah calls upon all the children of Israel to unity, to pray for one another and to forge bonds of friendship.

2721. He calls for reconciliation, self-sacrifice for God, reconciliation and love for one's neighbour; may it grow, may it never fall away.

2722. You, sons of Israel – you have been set apart from among the nations to worship God solely in the silence of your minds, of your souls!

2723. Be steadfast in your efforts, and even if you stumble, look with zeal upon Elah, your Creator, that He may touch you with the joy of unity in Himself.

2724. 983 Virtue flows from the mind, for the righteous man desires neither riches nor power, is not scrupulous, nor does he harm the innocent.

2725. Such a person is righteous in the eyes of Elah and is richly rewarded.

2726. These are truly God's faithful people – those who do not seek their own good, but devote themselves to service, to their families, to their loved ones, and to those who are oppressed and discouraged.

2727. They have noble hearts, their souls are virtuous, and the righteousness of their words is reflected in their deeds.

2728. It is the desire of God's Spirit that such people should be enriched and share their wealth with their neighbours!

Embody equality

2729. Be the embodiment of all equality between nations, between men and women.

2730. Be the embodiment of love, purity and joy.

2731. 985 Do not allow yourselves to be intoxicated by sin and a lack of mental clarity.

2732. We were created to be pure and to lead a holy life.

2733. 986 Express yourselves through deeds; let the delightful fragrance of your holy deeds rise to the heights of the Kingdom of Elah.

2734. Be an example of moderation; let the purity of your minds be expressed in speech and deeds.

2735. Be vigilant and do not be deceived by Satan – the sin that is debauchery and lust.

2736. Your carnal desires bind you into a clump of weeds that will be cast into the fire.

2737. Lust, passion and debauchery are harmful in thought and deed.

2738. Look for yourselves at the evidence of God's laws – frivolity and debauchery were never the destiny of humanity; do not concern yourselves with momentary pleasures, but be participants here and now in the glory of God, in building the foundations of His reign on earth.

2739. 987 Be angels of His righteousness, by which He called you into being, sanctified you, and made you virtuous in your deeds.

2740. Carnal debauchery has never been a joy; true self-restraint is pure joy and self-love.

2741. Do not condemn those who suffer and harm themselves because of debauchery.

2742. Are you God, that you should do this?

2743. Call debauchery by its name, and man will not despise God.

2744. 988 Infidelity, debauchery and impurity of thought descend the slope of lust, descending into the hell of selfishness and self-indulgence.

2745. Their joy shall pass away and turn to despair; their zeal shall turn to despair and ruin.

2746. Avoid what is impure; avoid unfaithfulness and all unrighteousness, all ardent lust that breaks down marriage and loosens the sacred bonds.

2747. The destiny of humanity is to grow towards eternity; our destiny is to invite God here, to earth, to dwell with us.

2748. Stability, order and peace are signs that God lives amongst us and protects us.

2749. Understand the laws of nature: that physical peace is that which is far from debauchery and wicked thoughts; it is the peace of the soul.

2750. Peace between nations is justice, as well as a peace treaty and mutual assistance in the destruction of weapons and the halting of the arms race.

2751. All debauchery, all suffering, sorrow and violence, weeping and destruction will vanish with the annihilation of war, the destruction of weapons and their reduction to dust, which will be consumed by the heat of Elah.

2752. 990 True harmony will be achieved when humanity realises that an end to war and the destruction of weapons are necessary for all sorrow, bitterness and destruction to disappear as well.

2753. The consequence of the sin of unrest is the domination of the strong over the weak; nations destroy their eternal potential and despise one another, destroying what God has given them, what they ought to nurture – the family, which is both near and far, and the warmth and love it contains.

2754. 991 This is a lesson for all humanity to abandon the ranks of Islam and holy war.

2755. This is a lesson for Christians to reject the hatred that Jesus spread towards those with whom he disagreed.

2756. Do you not understand that the principle of Elah is to make people happy heirs to His Kingdom here on earth, during our own lifetimes and those of our children?

2757. This is the true principle – harmony, how to live in Elah, the Elah of unity, the Elah of love and the Elah of peace.

2758. 992 From generation to generation, Christians and Muslims have stained their hands with blood, stained themselves with mutual hatred, and mercilessly slaughtered one another.

2759. Because of their debauchery and the sin of hatred, the earth is stained with blood and hatred, for they have chosen the debauchery of dualism and hatred of Elah, He who brings light and darkness.

2760. 993 Free yourselves from the deceit of men.

2761. But if possible, serve one another faithfully.

2762. Patience in afflictions does not pay; it is better to seek help.

2763. However, the qualities of righteousness are found in those souls who are tolerant, faithful and merciful towards others, especially towards their families.

2764. They are kind and loving towards their children, without neglecting their wives and children.

2765. They will certainly attain the measure of Elah's blessings, for their selfish desires have been overcome and their desires for self-aggrandisement have been quenched.

2766. Their temptation and desire were ceaseless hatred and a lust for war, seeking out enemies amongst the pagans and preventing them from accepting the truth of the Oneness of God.

2767. They have destroyed the truth and beauty of the Oneness of Elah; Christians have destroyed His Oneness, and Muslims have made Elah into an evil and a monster.

2768. Keep away from the lukewarmness of Muslims, Jews and Christians and their attachment to the clergy; hold fast to Elah and His assemblies.

Be victorious

2769. Overcome sin; the commandments are there for you to find rest in them.

2770. Happy is he who observes and fulfils all moral commandments, yet does not boast of them.

2771. Turn your faces towards noble deeds and perform them out of love for people and your God.

2772. No sacrifice, no martyrdom, no cross, no suffering erases guilt or adds merit.

2773. It is in help and mercy that you will find salvation for your souls, not in human achievements.

2774. Neither Jesus nor any rabbi died for your guilt, nor did any punishment fall upon them for our sins.

2775. A father's guilt does not burden the son, nor will he be punished for the sins of his forefathers; each is burdened by his own guilt and seeks salvation from the One God – the sole Redeemer and Saviour of mankind.

2776. Sacrifices of any kind do not erase guilt; deeds done for glory do not exalt a man; the purest thing is justice and perfection in deeds.

2777. A sincere prayer, repentance and an admission of guilt are a pure offering; they are a sweet fragrance to Elah.

2778. Life, happiness and beauty accompany everyone who is far from anger, who has abandoned malice, who is neither haughty nor hot-tempered.

2779. Such a person is full of honesty, and their righteousness is contagious.

2780. They are accompanied by peace of mind and compassion.

2781. The righteous respond to the hungry with mercy, leaving no one empty-handed.

2782. His conduct attracts joy and happiness.

2783. Elah will reward him many times over for his deeds; his driving force is altruism, a love of goodness.

2784. It is a commandment to have the capacity to love one's elders and one's own parents.

2785. Showing respect to elders and parents is a privilege; it is not worth breaking up a family simply because one party thinks or believes differently.

2786. Every family member is responsible for themselves, and seeking to cause divisions within the family is the worst of all possible sins.

2787. Family unity is in the family's best interests, and respecting parents, the weak and the elderly is in your best interests.

2788. You will find joy in life, beauty, and greater power to do good in this world if you heed the words of God and respect your parents, provided they are worthy of it – that is, they do no harm to anyone.

2789. Our Elah has given us moral standards and principles to make us happy on earth, not to make us slaves to His Will.

2790. Human nobility can be developed through small steps that each of us is willing to take to reduce the influence of instability, sinfulness and ignorance in our lives.

2791. Then we shall create a healthier environment, a place where God's angels will descend to make the earth a paradise, holier than the heavens.

2792. 998 True piety consists in showing nobility in life, in the daily struggle against our sinful nature, and in not burdening ourselves with worries about the future.

2793. Everything is in God's hands, so let us cease to worry unduly; yet it is also essential that we fulfil all life's duties and perform every possible good deed to transform this earth into a paradise.

2794. 999 Show friendship to worthy people, to those who are incapable of harming others.

2795. Wish for others what you yourself would not wish to experience, and wish them the joy of sharing life's happiness.

2796. 1000 Do not harm any living creature; neither sacrifice nor any other offering erases sins or brings about repentance.

2797. Do not hurt anyone with your words; remain silent if you wish to hurt someone.

2798. Always be sober-minded and refrain from speaking disparagingly of one another; it is better to keep curses to oneself than to utter them and boast of them.

2799. Let not sin rule over us; it is good to limit the influence of sin and to overcome sin through the righteousness of our deeds.

2800. Let not sin – Satan – rule over us in our thoughts, words and deeds; it is we who must rule and be sober, and not sin that must rule over us.

2801. No one can harm another person, so it is right that God could not harm Jesus for our sins and did not condemn Him to death for our sins.

2802. It is right to say that God does not lay the blame on the 'Son of God' – the Jews, Jesus – and there is no salvation in His blood.

2803. There is nothing holier on earth than the fact that people are willing to give up their lives in order to be holy whilst they live.

2804. Our holiness does not consist in being sad, vague and shallow.

2805. True holiness lies in being a light to others, seeking the company of good people, and loving others as ourselves.

2806. All self-mortification is an unnecessary challenge, harmful to the sons of men, their families and society.

2807. 1005 Being seduced by a man or a woman is not praiseworthy; the pursuit of fleeting feelings and passions always ends in momentary pleasure and emptiness, and lust is transient.

2808. The beauty of women or men fades, whilst purity of mind, words and deeds is eternal and recorded in the books of God.

2809. It is better for us that God does not lead us towards the beauty of women or men; we are to demonstrate the nobility of our deeds, the purity of our thoughts and words, so as to please God and society.

2810. 1006 All God's angels sing songs of praise over those whose holy and noble deeds are gathered upon the earth.

2811. They are saints even in this life, having chosen love for God and neighbour instead of anger, envy and hatred towards humanity.

God, the Only Giver of Peace

2812.

O God, teach me Your ways, O sole Giver of Peace!

2813. O God, teach me Your ways, that I may praise You for ever, that Your name may endure through the generations, and Your glory be extolled among the nations.

2814. Because of the belief in Jesus as God, the whole world has been stained with innocent blood.

2815. Because of the clergy's hatred for that which is humble and pure – in the faith in the Oneness of God and His Indivisibility – all love for God has been humiliated, and all compassion abandoned.

2816. O, behold how my love for God is rekindled, a love that will endure for ages – for those who love and worship Him are enriched by His love, by their unity with Him!

2817. O, look at the Christians and Muslims, how they stagger in their intoxication, how they care for their idols?

2818. By what right do the former turn to man and call him a God equal to the God of Gods?

2819. How do the latter call God evil and merciless – when He is a loving, forgiving and merciful Father!

2820. Turn your faces towards God; He is your only hope, your only path to salvation, your only refuge from sin!

2821. He, our Elah, is the One who forgives, leading the sinner from death to life!

2822. By what right, then, do you call Jesus 'life'? By what right do you speak of a God who wages war as a conqueror and a slayer – and say that He is God?

2823. On the contrary, He is the Elah of peace, bringing mercy and extending bonds of friendship.

2824. Is this not a mystery?

2825. The human sacrifice, which does not save, teaches us that it is not blood, but a pure heart that gives life.

2826. How can a man save, when God is the only true Saviour?

2827. Therefore, speak no lies – God calls us to war and slaughter!

2828. By God, He, our Elah, will send us the clouds of His presence; through our righteous deeds, He will transform the nations, break the weapons and render them useless – what more is needed for happiness than reconciliation and mutual friendship?

2829. Our Elah is the God of friendship and mutual aid, understanding and forgiveness!

2830. Why then do you turn away from Elah and your Saviour – from His everlasting peace and love?

2831. Turn your faces towards Elah of Hosts, seek not honour from men; let God be exalted as the One and Only among the nations!

2832. God has appointed us, as human beings, as heirs to His love; do not for a moment despise His compassion, do not reject His Oneness.

2833. Let us share His Oneness, saying: we are Christians, Muslims and Jews.

2834. To conquer and exalt Elah among the nations, this must be done – with all the might and unimaginable strength you need to speak of the Father of love, the Father of forgiveness and the Father of compassion!

2835. He is not a man; He has never been incarnated and will never take on human form!

2836. This is truly the eternal law of Unity, and whoever opposes it is a liar. You too speak words of compassion for Muslims; Elah wishes to establish faith with you; He is your Father in Heaven; He is near you, not far away?

2837. Why, then, should you reject the Father who loves you and forgives your sins?

2838. Speak also words of friendship to the Jews; Elah will grant you support through the way God has guided us.

2839. By loving you and seeking your company, we shall become a light unto the nations.

2840. Therefore, do not say that you are better than they are; we are the daughters, and they, the Jews, are our mother!

2841. Jesus failed to fulfil his duty and forgot his privileges, his message, and through his stubbornness strayed from God's path.

2842. Even if he strayed, he was sinful, and though they believe the opposite, do not insist on such claims.

2843. His glory has passed away; his body has turned to dust. By what right, then, do you make the man Jesus, one of his saints, equal to the God of Gods?

2844. Have you not understood that Elah is a spirit, and not a being who cannot take on any body?

2845. Through the oppression, contempt and harm inflicted upon me, and through the stubbornness of those who do me wrong, the whole earth shall blossom with joy, and not a blade of grass nor a twig shall be broken in my name!

2846. By God!

2847. I exalt no one but God, and I am not God, but my Creator is God, who bestows His mercy upon me.

2848. Let us be perfect, just as our God is perfect: 'As for the deeds of men, by a word from Your lips I have refrained from the ways of violence.' Do not yield to evil or even its slightest whisper; God is the Spirit who gives us the strength to overcome all darkness within ourselves.

2849. The radiance of justice rises to the hills and peaks, where God dwells; there is His radiance and light, there is the drive towards good and the restraint of evil.

2850. Our Elah, have mercy on us; we implore You to forgive our transgressions; we repent, and we pray to You only for Your help.

2851. That we may say: 'Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a steadfast spirit within me'.

2852. Protect us, O Great God, from evil; lead us not into the evil which only You direct.

2853. Though You are Elah of light and brightness, direct us towards the light which You value and honour.

2854. May all suffering vanish, may all flesh rejoice in righteousness, may all sin and excessive guilt be cast aside.

2855. Our Elah is wholly forgiving, seeking out those who desire His presence.

2856. When 'people are sated with good things from the fruit of their lips', then surely happiness embraces the righteous.

2857. Purity is an expression of love for our bodies; it is an expression of love for our neighbours and for God, who created us and made us happy.

2858. Rejoice constantly in God and be an embodiment of purity; be one who honours one's body and soul and adorns them with the finery of happiness and eternal joy.

2859. These adornments are also a clear mind and abstinence from lust; these adornments are the desire to share love with those close to us.

2860. These adornments are the forging of lasting friendships with those who are close to us and with those who are strangers to us.

2861. Our Elah has ordained us to be women equal to men, to guard our hearts from one another, and not to seek restrictions that enslave women or demean men.

2862. All scoundrels are those who 'abandon hope in unwavering love'.

2863. Be minds detached from the carnal, but do not shun carnal pleasures.

2864. Do not grow up in unrighteousness, nor in lust, nor in self-indulgence.

2865. Our Elah has appointed us as angels of heaven here on earth, that we may do all righteousness and acquaint God's people with all the virtues of heaven.

2866. Let us therefore follow this path towards heaven, to become One with God.

2867. He is the only Creator, the only Saviour, the only One who forgives sins.

2868. So if you have fallen, ask Elah with a sincere heart, and He will come to your aid; He will certainly not forsake you or abandon you in times of trial.

2869. Above all, 'learn to do good', so that goodness may endure and mature within you.

2870. By God, this is a truth a hundredfold – that he who is clear-minded and strives to observe God's law is with God on earth, and heaven cannot match his holiness and faithfulness to the Most High.

2871. His righteous deeds are his diamonds, his holy deeds are his precious stones, whose treasures are carried to the treasuries of heaven.

2872. Anyone who draws near to evil gathers iniquity drop by drop in a filthy vessel.

2873. All those who are humble and walk in purity of body and mind are saints in their lifetime.

2874. Such people have eradicated all Satan from their minds – sin does not grow within them, but is crushed by the love kindled for their neighbours near and far.

2875. Every fool, as a sinner, gathers in a jug all his selfish passions, all his illusory dreams that spring from lust and sin; he gathers them, and they become a burden to him, so he carries them and carries them, as if he were carrying a jug full of water.

2876. Sin accumulates bit by bit, drop by drop, but we should pour out that boiling water and fill the vessel with the sweet water of the Holy Spirit.

2877. Everyone who draws near to goodness gathers righteousness drop by drop in a pure vessel.

2878. So gather goodness, drop by drop of sweet water, so that you may be satisfied by it.

2879. You cannot, however, be sated by bitter water, which is tainted by the filth of selfishness, lust and greed.

2880. So overcome your base nature and do not let it lead you.

2881. Lusts, desires and temptations are like bitter water from a vessel, which gives only a fleeting relief from thirst, yet from within they are harmful and corrupt, tainted by every sin and the squandering of life.

2882. He who avoids poison is like a man who avoids evil deeds.

2883. To be able to truly love oneself, and not merely dwell on one's faults, it is better not to fall into despair and not to dwell too much on how fallen and sinful we are.

2884. God desires our happiness, and true happiness lies in moderation and in living with a simple mind, not a simple body.

2885. A life lived in balance is the answer to the boredom and emptiness that lurk in people's lives.

2886. We must guard against the temptations that lurk when we feel weak, discouraged and find it hard to find meaning in life.

2887. To insult an innocent person is tantamount to insulting oneself.

2888. I am no particular moral exemplar.

2889. However, I encourage people to be wise, not reckless.

2890. Purity, love and service to others are the highest values in human life.

2891. Through this, a person acquires wisdom, becomes faithful in the eyes of God, and has clean hands and a pure mind to worship God and His glory.

2892. The way to create a happy marriage is to be guided by purity, which is praiseworthy and arouses great admiration in Elah, His heavenly hosts and His holy court.

2893. 'The soul of God hates him who loves violence'.

2894. Cast aside the teachings of your rabbis, clergy and imams, those whose eyes and ears have been guided by the senses rather than by divine attributes and divine expressions.

2895. You must sincerely seek God and look for His divine attributes within yourselves; the future of the world lies in cultivating heavenly qualities within yourselves.

2896. Love for Jesus, Muhammad and other teachers will pass away, and only God and His Oneness will remain, rejoicing in Him and His presence in eternity.

2897. People endowed with reason and insight understand this relationship: God accomplishes His works through the prophets, but they are not like God, they are not His equals, nor will they ever be perfect in their essence.

2898. They sought refuge in Elah and the Creator of all realms of spirit and soul!

2899. In God, and not in creation, do we find our only joy and comfort, and in Him we find rest from all our fears and cares.

2900. He, our Elah, is the One Saviour, the One Rock of Salvation, the One Help in affliction and weariness.

2901. A man who is angry with others suffers himself because of his own harshness.

2902. The best lesson when it comes to anger is self-control over those thoughts that stir up a desire for revenge and to harm one's neighbour.

2903. God is justly angry; we should be angry in such a way as not to hurt our neighbour.

2904. Through the touch of love, anger fades away and is replaced by peace and forgiveness.

2905. Forgive those who truly deserve it, and keep away from the venom of the malicious.

2906. Fire reaches the soul that gathers the wood of its evil deeds, and the measure of such a soul is as though it had been burnt by fire.

2907. Let us seek friendship with all people and despise no one who has a different skin colour or is poor; let the rich man not exalt himself above him, but let him support him.

2908. A fool is the rich man who does not support the poor and does not free them from the bonds of poverty.

2909. In this way, a fool causes fire and destruction if he shuns helping others, gives no alms, or fails to make the world a just place to live.

2910. Fine words and lofty thoughts alone are not enough for God; one must be devoted to people and love one's neighbours, so that God may dwell in our gathering places, our families and society.

2911. If faith is not a source of mutual aid, regardless of a person's qualities, then such a person is not worthy of being called wise and is a fool.

2912. Fools, through their wicked deeds, fan the flames – stifling love, support and aid for the poorest.

2913. Cruelty begets cruelty; all heavy burdens must be lifted, and cruelty must be eradicated.

2914. A fool, whether in soul or body, will suffer all manner of misfortune, for his hand has not helped the poor, supported the needy, nor contributed to justice.

2915. A hellish, cold and miserable life awaits the fool who is selfish and cares not for the lives, livelihoods and well-being of his fellow men.

2916. True love cannot be expressed in words, but through deeds that make this world a little better.

2917. Every tiny deed, God's grace, His love and devotion to Him will transform this world into a paradise.

2918. Our task is to be angels for God; we have a duty to bring the finest values, and the well-being of body and spirit, into this world, so as to illuminate this garden of the spirit with the radiance of God.

2919. This is the greatest treasure – to share what we have with others, to turn the treasure of our own spirit into a gift and to distribute it to those who desire and long for it.

2920. A person who wishes to reach the House of Song must purify themselves of earthly desires.

2921. This purification does not come from performing mundane fasts and deeds, but is a gift of Elah's grace.

2922. Nothing can save that which affects the sinner, nor can rituals bring deliverance from sin to a foolish man, if that man has not surrendered to the will of God, to His love.

2923. And he does not share this love with his neighbours or with those he loves.

2924. Awaken, awaken those whose hearts are of stone; do the will of Elah, not to please Him, but to satisfy the good of those who most need mercy.

2925. The desire of every righteous soul is to serve God, but God serves us just as well – He sends rain and sunshine; appreciate what Elah has given us, be grateful for every breath you take and every word you speak, which He has made pure.

2926. The spirit will endure forever after leaving the body, so no one was allowed to desire the body, except for a marriage ordained by heaven.

2927. We were commanded to live as well as we could and to draw spiritual treasures from this, loving and bringing joy to husband and wife.

2928. Our inheritance is to grow in the image of God and become like Him, and our purity lies in filling our lives with joy, not sorrow.

2929. It is the destiny of every human being to reach the limits of understanding God's signs and to be reconciled with the Elah of all worlds, so that He may descend to earth and, through our righteous deeds, enrich the world with His blessings.

2930. Amen.

Nobility

2931.
Let us respect ourselves and our good name, and let us resolve in our minds to submit to His will and live nobly.

2932. 1029 Did He not create Adam in the beginning pure and noble?

2933. He clothed them in the radiant garments of purity and virtue.

2934. His generosity lay in clothing them with all the virtues of heaven, and His love was to dwell among them forever.

2935. He gave a part of Himself, His soul, to dwell within them and perfect them in His righteous deeds.

2936. 1030 [Noah's] mind, his heart, longed to do good and was completely cut off from evil, for the selflessness of his heart was profound!

2937. 1031 [Abraham] pitched the tent of friendship in a foreign land, and though he was a stranger, he sought no hostility.

2938. 1032 But [Lot's] wisdom lay in the fact that he cared for his family and was a light in the midst of spiritual darkness.

2939. Through his trust in God, he saw life and salvation.

2940. 1033 Remember also Ishmael, how God did not leave him in the desert to die.

2941. How great was the mercy shown to Elah, and how God saved his soul and the soul of his mother by sending a source of salvation and comfort.

2942. 1034 Remember also to show mercy to your neighbours, both near and far.

2943. Elah will reward every good and every bad deed.

2944. He will rebuke every weakness of mind, every imperfection of mind and body.

2945. Beware of all evil, reject all hatred, and embrace peace and friendship.

2946. Immerse yourselves in the appreciation of heavenly mercy, so as to purify your minds of repulsive, unlawful and harmful thoughts.

2947. All murder, all crimes and recklessness arising from hatred of Elah are repulsive.

2948. And wash away from yourselves all signs of hatred, ill-will and cruelty.

2949. Do not be like the people of Lot, and keep far away from their pride!

2950. 1035 Look also at the life of Joseph and his sufferings.

2951. God was his refuge, even though he was forced into solitude, and he did not succumb to any carnal temptation.

2952. He subdued all carnal desires.

2953. He possessed a clear mind and dignity, and his mind was devoted to purity.

2954. His words speak for themselves; his heart was noble and purified of all temptations.

2955. His eyes did not delight in Pharaoh's wife, and His radiant face was not devoid of God, but was devoid of all misery.

2956. 1036 The light of love did not fade from His mind, and the pursuit of purity and holiness was part of His life.

2957. He also gave his daughter in marriage to Moses and blessed them with harmony, love and purity of life.

2958. 1037 Look also at the life of Moses, how far he was from being a cruel person who did not love his people.

2959. God is distinguished by gentle punishment, not by pure hostility and destruction. He, God, is my teacher; He is merciful in His very essence.

2960. Both the blind and the hearing can perceive My love, My generosity and the purity of My mind.

2961. He has issued a mighty challenge to the clergy to cast aside their superstitions and old habits and to press a little harder upon the robes of the Hand of Elah.

2962. Through His wisdom and purity, He surpassed all creatures, so that He freed humanity from the shackles of their own ruinous imagination.

2963. He took upon Himself the mission of liberating humanity from the bondage of men who oppress women, out of love for the priests, and clothed His people in the robes of justice.

2964. It is out of love for them that I offer my sacrifice, service and devotion today to the nations of the whole world; may my sacrifice and service not be in vain.

2965. It is God's desire to gather Israel from among the nations and endow it with divine attributes, so that it may worship God with one mind and one tongue of love.

2966. 1041 Most High, help me with Your mercy; You alone are the One who will bring peace, and, O God, unite all with You.

2967. 1042 Look upon your past, upon the past of the people of Esau and Ishmael; you lie in the dust of your teachings, which bring only death and destruction.

2968. All this at once brings the bitterness of war, for you have believed in dualism, the endless war between the forces of good and evil, and yet Elah is 'Elah of light and darkness'. Ruin and destruction are the result of your inept struggle against the evil which God Himself created for your own good.

2969. He created evil so that you might improve your conduct, so that you might beg to be received before His holy throne and ask Him for forgiveness!

2970. 1043 We all have a heavenly spark within us; we can all be anointed to proclaim this wonderful news of salvation!

2971. From now on, they will not say that the burden of war rests on our shoulders; quite the contrary!

2972. Elah will send us a messenger who will bring us eternal peace!

2973. Oh, behold the song of my tongue, that which is worth mentioning and recounting. It was rightly said once that he who is greedy may suffer disgrace, whilst those who are miserly bring hardship upon themselves.

2974. See for yourselves how wise and pure people distinguish themselves through righteous deeds.

2975. Look upon those whose foreheads are noble, radiant in their joyful deeds.

2976. They do not waver in the face of life's difficulties, nor do they humiliate the oppressed and those wounded in spirit.

2977. Pure and noble people do not succumb to weaknesses, do not deceive, nor are they prone to feigned indifference – they care for the lives of their children and the living conditions of their families.

2978. Truly noble people are free from all animalistic traits; they do not lack the strength to combat evil with words; they are sincere and steadfast in overcoming evil and exalting good.

2979. Greed is a lamentable misfortune, for the greedy person does not save himself through his selfishness, but only brings misfortune upon himself.

2980. Patience, however, takes the form of courage, and piety is a means of warding off sorrows.

2981. True piety is distinguished by righteous deeds; even prayer and the remembrance of Allah on a holy day cannot replace it.

2982. True piety is distinguished by willing hands that reach out towards friendship and harmony, promoting peace, rather than paving the way for hostility and discord.

2983. True piety lies in inner restraint, not to limit oneself, but to distinguish between what is good and what is evil, what is noble and ought to be preserved, and what is harmful and ought to be rejected with shame.

2984. True piety is characterised by a joy of spirit, far removed from despondency and a mind inclined towards sadness.

2985. True piety is characterised by perseverance in the pursuit of perfection.

2986. Through such efforts and achievements, both in work and in education, we can contribute a noble treasure to society.

2987. Our devoted lives and perseverance can bring society nothing but benefits and balance.

2988. How unreasonable it is when parents do not allow their children to grow and develop; what a great burden they place on society.

2989. Perseverance in study and work is essential, and may God bless all who wish to educate their children in the fields of learning.

2990. 1053 True devotion is characterised by an appreciation of one's relatives and family members.

2991. Let there be no humiliation or abuse of spouses.

2992. A divine principle requires due respect for all members of the family.

2993. 1054 True piety is characterised by an appreciation of suffering and hardship, and by seeking help.

2994. Let not those who seek help from their neighbour be ashamed.

2995. Let those who truly need redemption, support and help, those who are truly in need, those who are truly poor and those who are truly in sorrow.

2996. And those who are truly wounded, whether by violence against their loved ones or by any form of hatred, must be helped.

2997. 1055 True piety is distinguished by sincere love for the poor and by not devoting one's life to any fleeting pleasure.

2998. All who are truly faithful to Elah have freed themselves from all selfish convictions and devote themselves to the joyful service of the poor, the sorrowful, and those who have fallen victim to violence.

2999. 1056 True piety is distinguished by the proclamation of the Oneness of Elah, the proclamation of the good news recorded in these Scriptures.

3000. Those who truly act in accordance with what is written here, and do not merely speak and whisper, will be truly rejoiced and comforted.

3001. A person's legacy should be their wisdom; through concentration, one can gain many edifying words.

3002. Reflect more deeply to heal the wounds of sorrow and find comfort in adversity.

3003. Do not waver in your righteous deeds; be beautiful in your actions, adorning yourself with every righteous deed.

3004. Reflect more deeply on those who are deprived of their rights, on those who are entangled in all manner of addictions; support such people and act for their good.

3005. Seek reconciliation, not war.

3006. All evil, impure and violent deeds must be cleansed from you, and your minds purified.

3007. Clothe yourselves, then, in new garments – garments of peace, goodness and gentleness.

3008. Reflect more deeply on this, so as not to pollute your minds with impurity.

3009. Let our consciences reflect the joyful virtues of the prophets whom God has sent.

3010. And do not point out your neighbours' faults in vain, but rather look first for faults within yourselves, so that later you may be a far better example than at the start.

3011. Reflect more deeply on meeting the needs of those who truly suffer, who lack harmony in their families and whose souls are far from unity with their loved ones.

3012. Reach the heights of your potential, whether for society, in your profession, or within your family.

God's help

3013.
It is necessary to select the best verses of the Bible in order to discover their true meaning and reveal their hidden significance, but all of them have been translated in this Book.

3014. Biblical verses that incite violence, all forms of injustice, lack of love, and hatred towards women must be rejected.

3015. No stories that do not inspire the spirit of God should be passed on or read.

3016. To truly help women who have not freed themselves from the hands of cruel husbands, one should seek help not from God, but from the authorities.

3017. It is essential to offer help to those who are oppressed and harmed by perpetrators of violence.

3018. We must not keep our secrets hidden if the victims are innocent, whether women or men, regardless of age, gender or background – everyone has the right to equal rights, respect and freedom from violence.

3019. Prayer and drawing divine teachings from the source of God are not enough for the victim to realise that they are being harmed; help, support, understanding, comfort and liberation from an environment of violence and oppression are needed.

3020. To be a follower of this Revelation means to live for the good of others, to share mercy, and to love God with all one's heart.

3021. I am but a simple vessel through which the radiance of the Eternal flows.

3022. The Revelation is the true descent of the Mother of all Words, not through dreams, but through inspiration.

3023. No one should sever family ties, not even through a voice of dissent arising from either inner feelings or external pressure from religious assemblies.

3024. We must strain our hearts and minds to stop violence on the streets, violence against people of a different skin colour, violence against women, and violence against innocent children.

3025. Use all the power in heaven and on earth to prevent human tragedies, suffering and violence, and then you will surely open the gates of heaven, and God's blessings will pour down upon the earth.

3026. God's happiness, our joy and the joy of the whole world will reach their peak when all nations understand that unity, love and peace will come when the gates of the heavenly and earthly temple open, here on earth, in our time.

3027. The souls of the dead shall rise from the dust; they shall see light or darkness, depending on the deeds with which they have adorned themselves.

3028. God, here on earth, will create Paradise for us; if we desire this day and night, His words will be fulfilled, and His miraculous power will return to the earthly Temple.

3029. Behold, our Elah is God and the Miracle-Worker, and He does what His soul desires.

3030. There should be no violence in the name of faith in God, whether against those known or unknown.

3031. God has endowed us with reason, empathy and love, so that we may share them generously with every person on earth.

3032. God is the Elah of peace and order, not of war and chaos.

3033. It is God's desire to be guided by love, to serve the good of every person on earth – this is God's purpose on earth; sharing love with our neighbours will reflect His aspirations and His divine nature.

3034. Some who considered themselves prophets have appropriated God's titles and given themselves divine names, to the detriment of the disciples and the people they led.

3035. Truly, God called them 'Saviours' out of respect, but our God is only Elah – the One Saviour of body and soul.

3036. I repeat once more – cursed be those who, in their hearts, demand worship, being mortals bound by sin and given to self-glorification.

3037. Those who walk the paths of darkness – thinking that when they sit upon the throne before the crowds, they will be honoured and adored, they indulge their selfishness – the filth of their sins, a hideous curse falls upon their heads.

3038. Now I shall discuss what love is.

3039. Love is the selfless devotion of two souls who unite in friendship and mutual companionship, and raise their children in a spirit of harmony.

3040. Love is the casting aside of prejudice, being guided by the good of one's neighbour, especially one's beloved, even if our situation is not comfortable.

3041. Love is the abandonment of selfishness and loving another person as one's own body.

3042. This faith and its holy countenance are but a seed, a seed that is to yield a tenfold, or even a hundredfold, harvest.

3043. The task of this faith, through the lips and hands of believers, is to fill the earth with His love, His devotion to the good of humanity, to fill the earth with His blood gushing from the very throne of Elah.

3044. He bestows upon you the heavenly principles of heaven; they are meant to give you hope.

3045. They will bring you the world of the longed-for paradise, so that your souls may be uplifted by divine love; here, on earth, in these earthly bodies, you shall behold paradise and its beauty, without the need to pursue the beauty of the heavens after the spirit has departed to the worlds.

3046. This faith serves the good and enrichment of all humanity and is not intended to exalt prophets in place of God or to call them intermediaries.

3047. Verily, God is One, and He will not yield His glory to mortals.

3048. Let us now consider how we are to preserve the miraculous power of life on earth so that it may flourish.

3049. With all our strength, we can hold back the raging forces of nature, all the crimes and dangers lurking in our lives.

3050. Through our collective strength, commitment and mutual love, we can halt the consequences through which people are destroying the earth.

3051. We, the people of God, have the strength within us to stand up against all abuses, all crimes and all inequalities that affect society, race and gender.

3052. When it comes to love for children, there is no forgiveness for a mother or father who harms their children, inflicting physical and spiritual suffering upon them, merely to alleviate their own troubles and suffering.

3053. Beating children as a result of the troubles their parents face is forbidden and is not equivalent to disciplining children.

3054. Similarly, if children are to be loved, they should respect their parents, provided the latter do not harm them.

3055. Parents should look after their children's welfare, and healthy concern and balance are commendable and sensible.

3056. They should avoid putting pressure on their children, as no form of coercion, shouting or cruelty will bring about the desired results.

3057. Inappropriate discipline violates children's dignity – coercion, harming children and provoking their resistance causes great wounds in children's minds, just as an adult who endlessly seeks faults in another person – this is unreasonable and harmful.

3058. Through simple games, boundaries should be set for children so that they know what is wrong and what should be avoided.

3059. It is inappropriate for parents to instil fear of themselves in their children; sadness always leads to depression and despondency.

3060. Fulfilling the conditions of love is essential for children's healthy development; love, security and strengthening relationships are vital for them.

3061. Do not let children become upset by their parents' inappropriate remarks, and do not let parents hurt their children for no reason – this is the best rule for raising happy children.

3062. To see joy on parents' faces requires perseverance, patience and self-denial, and their love and devotion bear fruit and bring abundant merit.

3063. When it comes to food, no one should worry about trifles if an unbelieving friend does not himself know what is good for his body or spirit.

3064. The most important thing is love for God and one's neighbour.

3065. We should not concern ourselves with judging what someone eats or how they dress, nor should we expect such behaviour from our neighbours if they do not wish it.

3066. Your neighbours are your relatives, friends and strangers – you are not commanded to impose obedience on them in matters they do not understand and cannot understand, when these are hidden from them.

3067. As for ourselves, we should avoid fanaticism regarding what we eat, how we dress, and how we judge our neighbours in matters concerning clean and unclean foods.

3068. As for the collection of tithes – what should we say to Christian clergy who unlawfully deprive believers of their tithes?

3069. Were tithes not offered to God as a sacrifice in ancient times?

3070. Yes, but to the Levites; so why do Christian clergy rob people of money to which they have no right?

3071. What right do they have to collect tithes, when these are intended primarily to help the poor and meet the needs of believers in need?

3072. Have they built their temples rich in precious metals and gold, and do they boast of them?
 3073. Let their gold and all their wealth perish if they boast of it.
 3074. Those who have amassed wealth and boast of the splendour of their temples will be subjected to God's judgement; they will certainly not escape punishment.
 3075. All those who plunder the faithful in this way, who love mammon more than God, their punishment for greed will pursue them to the very depths of hell.
 3076. As for faith in God – this holy faith will spread with the speed of lightning.
 3077. The spirit of innocence, simplicity, and showing love to one's neighbour, as well as worshipping only Elah, is an eternal commandment.
 3078. This is the golden rule, which must be engraved within us and inscribed in our conscience.
 3079. This is faith in the 'golden rule' and seeking worship from no one other than Elah Himself.
 3080. As for peace, true self-denial lies in awaiting the appearance of the Hand of Elah, the hand of God, in our time.
 3081. Scripture commands Him to be the 'Prince of Peace' and to disarm the armies of the world, to reconcile the nations with one another, so that there may be no soldiers on earth murdering the innocent.
 3082. I sigh and long for the moment when He, the Promised One, will appear, He who will reign as King of the whole world from His capital in Jerusalem.
 3083. He, the God who promised all this, will bring it all to pass.
 3084. As for disarmament, the longing of the nations for the coming of Him who was promised from eternity, He who will be the Peacemaker among the nations.
 3085. Lay down your armour, weapons and shields, warriors; do you see how much pain you are inflicting upon one another, upon your neighbours?
 3086. By what right do you shed the blood of the innocent?
 3087. Let the house of peace, joy and love descend from the heavenly abodes; let Elah Himself dwell amongst us.
 3088. Let us bring summer, not winter, into our minds; let the warm breeze of harmony and peace spread across the whole earth.
 3089. All mouths that breathe cold air and are cold at heart have surely rejected Elah and the Creator.
 3090. To bring summer, joy to the earth, to make hearts one's home, is to bring God, is to change hearts, is to shatter that which is the darkness of night and the uncontrolled cold wind.

Breaking through the barriers of hatred

3091. Elah's second commandment is: O, break down the barriers of hatred and rudeness; let the Spirit of Holiness and Mutual Love be revealed in your hearts.
 3092. Let the righteous deeds of every person be like incense, whose fragrance reaches God.
 3093. Let us adorn ourselves with righteous deeds, let us not covet unrighteousness, let us be sated with the righteousness of your spiritual food.
 3094. Let us keep away from things that are fleeting and transient, lest we turn away from the worship of Elah and love for others.
 3095. Let us fill the vessel with the Holy Spirit and not fall in love with glass, which is easily soiled.
 3096. So handle your conscience with care, lest you stain or break it like 'glass'.
 3097. Do not break, son of man, the hearts of those you love, for you will cause the glass of their souls to shatter, and it cannot be mended.
 3098. Though the whole world may be shrouded in mist, let us not be curious about the 'glass' palaces of this material world, for they turn us away from Elah and His abundance.
 3099. Let us work on ourselves with all our soul and heart, let us remain steadfast in times of trial, and let us create conditions in which all people feel safe.
 3100. Let us not be fanatics, nor treat any passage of the Qur'an or the Bible strictly literally.

3101. The blessing of these Scriptures is that we find in them genuine treasures hidden amongst the stories, parables and traditions.

3102. When we find these pearls, our talents will awaken, our resources will become inexhaustible, and our lives will blossom like a spring tulip that has emerged from spiritual frost and was covered in the snow of traditional illusions.

3103. God sends rays of light to revive the flower; the nourishing water of the Holy Spirit sustains its essence, and the rays of love enrich it, so that it does not wither.

3104. Similarly, people are symbolic tulips, reaching for the rays of the Holy Spirit, uniting with God's holy conscience, nurturing all that is good – love, peace, talents abound, and life becomes more glorious.

3105. For when people are sprinkled with the waters of generosity, they lift the spirits of others too, because they themselves have experienced mercy, sharing it and bearing witness to the Mercy of the Almighty.

3106. All of us, as believers, like raindrops, have leapt into the fountain, washed ourselves in the river as in water, and met in the sea of Elah's Unity.

3107. The sea of passions, lack of sobriety and the pursuit of pleasures cause his downfall, and taking measures against this means he drinks fresh water instead of drinking salty sea water and taking pleasure in it.

3108. He ensures that his deeds are not conspicuous, but he refines himself in righteousness, loves his neighbours, and this encourages others to follow his example.

3109. Let us therefore imitate one another in righteousness and rejoice that we share in the deeds of the righteous.

3110. O Elah, without You there is no peace.

3111. Without peace of mind and a clear conscience, it is certainly difficult to achieve peace and unity with Elah.

3112. Let us multiply our good deeds step by step; then we shall become truly powerful, endowed with the love of Elah.

3113. Let us therefore journey in self-control and holiness. Let us follow the path to You – Elah, my Master of mental clarity and self-love – so that we may reflect on how to tread upon sinful yet stable ground, which is essential for addictions and the impetuosity of the heart to pass away.

3114. We cultivate the attitude of a liberator; if we care for our inner child, then our sobriety is restored, and selfishness and greed do not dwell within us.

3115. Similarly, pride does not affect those who are addicted; they themselves are weighed down by the burden of the difficulties they face.

3116. Their hearts are broken and they need comfort, support and the realisation that they are valuable and precious people.

3117. In Your love I have lost all pride. Lost, however, are those who do not struggle with their lack of sobriety, but think of themselves in a pleasant light – a baseless search for humility within oneself is destructive.

3118. On the contrary, Elah commands that those who flourish in intemperance, are wasteful, and share neither kind words nor good deeds with their neighbours, should abandon selfishness and pride.

3119. And free from pride are those who have pure hearts and choose to love God, to love their neighbours and support them by every means, to love their families boundlessly and not to humiliate any of their members.

3120. I have fallen in love with Elah; my heart loves only the Benevolent One, Elah of the whole world.

3121. Those who are wise in matters of the heart and have sought the face of Elah worship and honour Him alone.

3122. They are filled with love for Him and for all that lives.

3123. They have fallen in love with God and draw from Him all love, all justice, and all encouragement to continue in all righteous deeds.

3124. And now listen to the faithful of Elah, His friends.

3125. Love is like the rays of the Sun; without love, no plant grows, only emptiness remains.

3126. Those who are truly devoted to God not only speak words of love, but also act in the spirit of love.

3127. They are friendly, family-oriented, and harbour no grudges nor seek enemies – they do not hate their neighbours.

3128. Their attitude, their whole way of life, bears witness to the great love and devotion they feel for their fellow human beings – especially for their families.

3129. For Elah, only the star of his beloved shines.

3130. True lovers cherish their closeness, long to care for one another, and when conflict arises, they immediately ask for forgiveness.

3131. This is good advice for married couples – that they should forgive one another and not humiliate one another.

3132. Then the gifts of heaven will open up and all blessings will be poured out upon the earth like the dew that covers the meadows at night.

3133. Thus, warm words full of the wonderful, strengthening dew—not the dew of quarrels, but the dew of forgiveness, the dew of warm words, the dew of devotion, the dew of harmony—will flow from within them.

3134. Then love and joy will reign in the home, and heaven will descend to earth.

3135. Truly devoted spouses become stars, the angels of Elah on earth.

3136. In this world, both wife and husband need love.

3137. Truly, both wife and husband are equal; both must go through life in unity to raise children in an atmosphere of love.

3138. The children’s development and their future depend on their parents’ behaviour: if one parent is angry with the child and inflicts an unjust punishment upon them, the child will certainly suffer, for the punishment is too severe, whether verbal or physical.

3139. Similarly, if a wife is abused, whether verbally or physically, all this destroys true harmony, the true order that must be recreated in heaven, for harmony and love reign between Elah and His angels.

3140. Women should be treated with angelic love, just as God treats angels with respect and devotion.

3141. Although women serve their husbands, one cannot exist without the other.

3142. The same order prevails in heaven; Elah cannot live without His angelic messengers, so how could He Himself show love if they did not exist?

3143. Similarly, husband and wife are an expression of what takes place in the heavenly realms.

3144. Harmony, concord and love between spouses reflect the harmony in heaven.

3145. In the fire of love, the embers do not burn completely; you will not be ensnared. Burdens have been placed upon women because of men’s sins and their unfaithfulness to the law – if they place burdens upon women, in reality they hate the ‘creators’ through whom humanity exists.

3146. One cannot hate what is sacred to Elah; their wombs, their souls and bodies are sacred to Him.

3147. A moth, if it approaches earthly fire, will surely burn, but if the moth – the souls of men and women – unite in mutual respect and observance of the laws of equality, on the contrary, they will not unite spiritually, but will grow and deepen in the ‘fire’ of the Holy Spirit.

3148. Let us drink from the cup of Elah’s love; let us cast aside all desires.

3149. Women are accused of lust, but the same applies to men – there is no difference in the degree of lust between the sexes.

3150. Equality must exist everywhere, and then we will be able to ensure that our lives do not revolve around inequality and the sorrow that stems from it.

3151. It is good when both sexes drink from the cup of sobriety and mutual support in moments of sinful fall; then the heavenly spirit will touch them and not separate them.

3152. Fanatics say, ‘This is God’s will’ in reference to the unequal treatment of women, but in reality their consciences are corrupt and they drink from the ‘cup of lust’, that is, from the oppression of the weak and innocent, whom God has made great.

3153. May the arrow of Your love, O God, now fly through the waters of infinite knowledge.

3154. True love is rich in all righteous deeds; it can pierce even a heart of stone.

3155. Let us look at children, who are innocent from birth and, in accordance with what is proclaimed by both the prophets of the Old Covenant and this Book, are born innocent of their own accord.

3156. Any form of indifference towards the care of infants and children is a form of abuse, just like abuse itself, and all of this is not divine, but satanic.

3157. Violence and abuse against children are the most abhorrent of all possible crimes and are unrivalled in their neglect.

3158. If a parent witnesses violence or abuse against a child, they must take immediate action to save the child’s soul, their proper development and their well-being.

3159. Failure to counteract violence or abuse is a sin.

3160. Similarly, a wife cannot endlessly endure the ‘punishment’ of a cruel husband, just as a child cannot.

3161. Violence must be abolished and eradicated from people’s minds.

3162. Elah’s commandment is mutual love: of husband to wife, of children to parents; we must respect this order, this divine order.

3163. The destruction of this order stems from satanic motives and from an unregenerate, cold, callous heart.

3164. Cruelty brings only despair, helplessness and the destruction of relationships.

3165. On the contrary, it is essential to strengthen family bonds with the bonds of love, a willingness to respect differences, a willingness to love, but not to tolerate violence and force.

Cooperation

Equality and cooperation are best, not the domination of women over men or of men over women – this robs us of mutual respect, breeds prejudice against both sexes and destroys society.

3167. We must call a spade a spade: all violence within the family and society must be eradicated, so that not a single accursed trace of unjust deeds remains.

3169. Let all differences vanish from among you; wipe away the dust of slander from one another, and Elah will surely dwell among those who desire peace and unity for their families.

3170. When you stand in prayer, whether you turn your face to the right or to the left, wherever your hands and feet carry you, distinguish yourselves by truthfulness and honesty, out of love for God and for people.

3171. Like the angels of God, stand at the door of God to serve humbly and to learn.

3172. All the heavenly hosts serve Elah selflessly, just as we ourselves should serve our loved ones, our parents, our children, and all those whom we have loved with a love beyond this world.

3173. Look with divine eyes upon the poor and the thirsty, those longing for a loaf of bread?

3174. Feed the hungry and leave no one truly hungry in need.

3175. Learn from one another love, care and concern for others.

3176. As for money, manage it so that you have enough to live on, and above all, do not neglect the children in your care.

3177. Elah’s requirement is not to spend money on unnecessary luxuries; it is essential to keep a careful account of all money and to allocate it according to need, from the most important to the least important, i.e.

3178. from what is essential to what is most desirable.

3179. As for children, we should speak to our children wholeheartedly about all the vicissitudes of life and not leave them to their own devices – street education.

3180. Parents expect their children to respect them, and children expect their parents not to harm them.

3181. You should teach your children to spend money wisely, so that in the future they learn that it is not worth getting into debt and that it is wiser to save moderately than not to put any money aside at all.

3182. The family should be surrounded by a shelter of security, peace and joy, whilst the vagaries of money cause storms, anxiety and arguments within the family.

3183. Look at it from this perspective – come together as husband and wife, work on yourselves, on your character and on how you spend money; do so wisely and do not let even a penny slip away on unnecessary debts.

3184. Avoiding debt ensures your security and keeps you far from disputes and anxiety.

3185. Do not confuse saving with stinginess, and allow your children to satisfy their desires.

3186. Do not belittle your worth, and do not deny yourselves the chance to become wealthy; this is no sin, but is dear to Elah's heart.

3187. It is Elah's desire that everyone should become rich, but honestly.

3188. Raising living standards and improving living conditions lie at the heart of Elah's purpose; we are to bring Paradise to this fallen world, not to expect Paradise in the afterlife.

3189. Therefore, keep away from selfishness, self-interest and stinginess, whether at work, at home or in daily life; be generous, rejoice, share what you have – but sensibly and in moderation.

3190. We all care about something; let us care above all for successful marriages, for raising children in love, for bringing love and nobility into our homes.

3191. To a large extent, the well-being of our family and the relationships we maintain depend on us and our behaviour.

3192. If faith does not care for the affairs of the family, nor for the affairs of society, nor for the affairs of the poor and the sorrowful, such faith is superfluous, and the resources devoted to such faith are in vain, and its deeds are worthless.

3193. Parents, especially Christian parents, should not believe in the myth of 'original sin' and should not think that children inherit any impure behaviour; children are born innocent, but whilst living in this world, they acquire both bad and good qualities – through a distorted or proper upbringing.

3194. Much is demanded of parents, and much should be demanded of them if they wish to raise children who do not pose a threat to social order – who do not steal, lie or destroy the conditions in which they live.

3195. The street cannot raise children; we must care for children and prevent any influences that may arise amongst them.

3196. Educating children of all ages is the solution to preventing them from being raised by the streets.

3197. Children are also a good example to their parents.

3198. How many parents fail to appreciate their children – how innocent they are, how they do not seek to blame others, how they are not jealous, how kind and joyful they are.

3199. How many parents lack these qualities themselves, preventing them from being happy?

3200. Children are born innocent, and their development depends on favourable or unfavourable conditions.

3201. Let us, however, ensure that we meet all our children's needs, and especially the most important one – the need for love, care and maintaining relationships.

3202. Learn from children how to do good, for they came into the world unaware of the sins of the world.

3203. How can we, too, cast off the dust and bondage that make this sometimes hostile world feel so far from God?

3204. We can draw closer to God by becoming children, children nourished by the heavenly bread of God's Word.

3205. This is the love of compassion; maintain your bonds with your children and let no one separate you from them—neither differences of opinion, nor differences of faith, nor any passing change or human influence.

3206. The love you have for your children must not be severed by any external influences.

3207. A child should not be left without care, whether spiritual or temporal.

3208. Parents' love must be expressed in deeds, not words; then love will grow, and the relationship will be boundless.

3209. Parents should meet and agree on how much they will spend on the child.

3210. A child is not an expense; on the contrary, they bring joy and provide support in old age.

3211. Every parent must consider how much to save and how much to spend on essential needs.

3212. I advise you to allocate your earnings to such endeavours, in such good hands, to people you trust, so that your children's education may be a success and bear fruit in the form of nobility and the beauty of the skills they acquire.

3213. Let us walk together, let us be friends; if, as a father or mother, you are not friends with your child, how is it that they do not respect you?

3214. If you show them tenderness and forgiveness when you have to reprimand them, your children will surely repay you with respect for your respect.

3215. However, children should not overstep boundaries with their parents; they should show them respect, as described in the Bible – it is written there: 'Honour your father and your mother'; be kind to your parents.

3216. Come and help one another; be neighbours to one another; work 'side by side' for the good of your families, your communities and the whole world.

3217. Remember – show love to all your neighbours; acceptance is better than rejecting a sinner; praising one virtue of the righteous is better than looking for faults in your neighbour.

3218. Gather together, people of God, to praise your One Saviour and Loving Father; He has commanded you to help orphans, to protect the weary and those afflicted by suffering, and to support the poor.

3219. He has commanded us to promote education amongst children, so that they may grow up in an atmosphere of joy, happiness and prosperity.

3220. He has commanded you to be companions to one another and to gather in assemblies, so that you may break away from mundane and worldly matters.

3221. It should be noted that true faith defends itself; we need no defenders or leaders to protect what is holy and true.

3222. God is our Defender and will deliver us from all adversity, from all trials and sufferings.

3223. Elah is our Defender and Refuge in times of sorrow.

3224. Surely the dream of all humanity will then be fulfilled – when God Himself, as Ruler, dwells amongst us, and He, together with His Ruler on the throne, establishes universal peace.

3225. Even today, there has been a resurgence of accursed slavery, extreme poverty, social inequality, and the exploitation of children for hard physical labour, which is unlawful and harmful to them.

3226. All these harmful practices will disappear when the rightful Ruler from the 'house of David' is revealed.

3227. He will prolong his lineage through his offspring, 'and a shoot shall spring from the root'.

3228. Our faith – the faith of the Father of the Book – is a faith that leads humanity up 'Jacob's ladder' to heaven – connecting heaven and earth, desiring that equality of gender, race and nation may reign on this earth.

3229. It is a faith that does not wish harm upon one's neighbour, but maintains friendship with all believers on earth.

3230. Concerning the tolerance and friendship that should characterise all people – grow through righteous deeds, do good to all creatures, show respect to one another, and treat everyone equally.

3231. The mystical bird of the Holy Spirit whispers wondrous news into my ear, words of greeting for the followers of Elah, sweet mercy poured out upon those who sincerely follow the Words inspired from the Heavens of Freedom.

3232. Christian prophets, clergymen and Muslim imams read, but do not understand these Divine Words; they pick out a single Word from the Holy Scriptures and use it for their own perverse purposes, to refute one assertion after another, yet they themselves fall into the abyss of pride, ignorance and self-exaltation.

3233. Elah, however, commands that one Word of the Holy Scripture be read in conjunction with another, just as it is in its essence, and commands that ‘nothing be added and nothing be taken away’ with regard to the prophecies of this Book, so that those who interpret it may not be deemed liars.

3234. These holy words, these divine prophecies and counsels, are far more precious than silver and gold.

3235. They are the purest air breathed by the angels and all God’s saints, all praising the Father, His devotion and His love with a single breath.

3236. Seek not fear, and let not fear enslave you; he who teaches of hell and heaven, he who has surely come to know human delusions,

Those who feed those who fear God with the food of fear – hell and heaven – those who call God ‘satanic’, certainly separate the faithful from the Divine Being and Divine goodness,

In Him, people of all faiths are united, drawing all their spiritual strength from Him,

It is He who has gathered in this revelation all the divine principles of all faiths,

Moses was the divine seed; David became the leaves that healed wounds; Isaiah was the flower of divine unity; but the glory, the marvellous taste of the fruit of harmony, belongs to the revelation of the Mother of the Book.

3237. I care for the least of these; let us fulfil our duties of love and care for our neighbours, and we shall surely bring them closer to the Oneness of God.

3238. Do not judge people for their beliefs, for their opinions and views; give them space for their expressions and opinions, so that they may not hurt one another, but love one another.

3239. He, Elah, is truly interested in sharing love and showing it to one another;

This breath of divine revelation is a return to the source of divine discernment; it is an entry into the court of harmony and peace with the brothers of this world; it is the restoration of Elah’s glory, that He may dwell in the Temple of Elah forever.

3240. Elah is exalted above all things carnal; He is the Spirit who humbles those who boast of their pride and conceit, who casts false prophets from their thrones and exalts the weak and humble spirit.

3241. It was promised, as in the ancient scriptures, that the Law of Holiness would appear, the unity of all faiths and the abandonment of all strife – behold, it has come to pass; may the glory of this revelation reach the ends of the earth!

3242. Let us use the words of the prophet: ‘For out of Zion shall go forth the Law’; shall we all—who in one voice worship only the One God—regardless of our origins, be called God’s ‘Zion’?

3243. Let us never say: ‘Let us kill our brother, let us kill our enemy for war and plunder.’ On the contrary, our Elah prophesied in ancient times that harmony, reconciliation and love would flourish among the nations; let us therefore be peacemakers among them and not allow soldiers to raise arms against one another.

3244. Ruin, despair and vengeance follow war; these are destructive forces which our Elah abhors.

3245. Never say: ‘You must hate your mother, your father’, ‘Let us separate father and son’. On the contrary, our Elah commands you to seek harmony – restore your sons’ faith in your fathers’ love, do not quarrel with them, do not part ways because of differences of opinion.

3246. Our fathers inherited lies, and after them came war and despair; and after the lies and fairy tales came suffering and destruction.

3247. Sing joyfully, rejoice, for will you not be freed from the cage of your illusions, from the fairy tales you were taught by heart?

3248. He calls the humble to His peace, that in the sanctuary of His presence they may praise Him without reproach.

3249. He calls all the nations of the world to Himself alone, that they may worship Him, praise Him, and turn to Him with their petitions.

3250. He is the God of peace, not of war; He brings us a desire for harmony, reconciliation and mutual understanding.

3251. The descendants of Esau – Christians – and the descendants of Jacob – Jews – lived like cats and mice, hunting one another, hating one another and waging spiritual wars amongst themselves.

3252. But the time has come to speak out – enough of this; Elah calls upon you to reconcile, to heal the wounds and destroy the hatred that has grown between you.

3253. Let the descendants of Jacob cease to humiliate and slander Jesus, and let the descendants of Esau cease to spread messages of hatred against their brothers.

3254. Love and joy will surely prevail, but if they themselves do not seek reconciliation, all should expect God's wrath, the curse of all.

3255. Let everyone say, 'So be it'; let them not seek discord but harmony, let them not seek strife but reconciliation, let them not seek hatred but love.

3256. The descendants of Esau made themselves God's people, bringing a curse upon themselves, whilst the descendants of Jacob deprived themselves of openness to pagan customs, gaining only contempt amongst the nations.

3257. Without discernment, it is difficult to determine what is truth and what is falsehood, and the Jews accuse the Christians of lying, and the Christians accuse the Jews of lying, which ought to be elaborated upon and clarified in this Revelation, which is here openly set forth.

3258. Do not exploit anyone in deed or word, for the suffering of the oppressed rises to the Throne of Elah, and He hears their pleas; their requests are answered, and He does not leave them alone.

3259. On this basis, it must be said that Elah does not like it when a believer is tormented.

3260. God does not gather people into the caves of hell, nor does He desire the destruction of the sinner, but his conversion.

3261. God does not become angry unjustly, and His wrath is tempered by the justice of human deeds.

The Banner of Peace

3262.

Come, draw from the pitcher full of love, friendship and peace; draw from the well of the Holy Spirit, so that you may never thirst for the Water of knowledge of Elah.

3263. These words were not written to judge people or to make them dependent on God.

3264. They are a balm for the ills of humanity, a response to the suffering of the world, a remedy that ensures health.

3265. So reach for the jug of love and share it with your neighbour; he is thirsty for the water of the Holy Spirit and its refreshing power.

3266. Pour the ocean into the jug, pour in the living water of the Holy Spirit; let the ocean of Divine Words fill your soul.

3267. The jug of lust will never be filled.

3268. The greedy do not easily draw the water of life; they go to the well of life, where they find not a single drop of water.

3269. They are impatient; they follow the desires of their hearts and thus constantly crave either the love that flows from lust, or company, or temptation.

3270. Are soot, dirt and rust not worldly pleasures and debauchery?

3271. If we cleanse ourselves of all the rust of sin, Elah will surely dwell among us and will not forsake us in times of trial.

3272. These Words, this divine counsel, are a remedy for the wounds of humanity; they are a source of strength against the distraction and sorrow that have clung to human hearts.

3273. Ponder these Words, reflect on their value, grace and the joy of sharing them in friendship.

3274. The Holy and Righteous One is utterly free from greed and sin.

3275. Elah gives us all joy and happiness and brings us heaven on earth if we heed His Words of Madness; conversely, if we do not heed His counsel, surely driven by greed, we condemn our bodies to the scourge of suffering, torment and separation from God.

3276. May Elah wish everyone the very best; may man rejoice in the fruit of his hands and the fruit of love for his neighbour.

3277. Sing joyfully to the whole earth, sing to the heavens the glad tidings of peace.

3278. Cursed are those whose parents do not make a habit of caring for their children and neglect to meet all their needs and provide for their comfort.

3279. But children who have no loving fathers and mothers, who do not wish to form a relationship with them, let them seek the love of 'Elah in heaven'.

3280. Invite no one into your heart but the Father Himself, for people are flesh, and Elah is not Spirit; invite into your heart the Father, who is Spirit, that He may strengthen and comfort you in times of sorrow.

3281. Why should you be sad? He, Elah, is the healer of all suffering; He comes to those who call upon Him for help and comfort in times of distress.

3282. Seek the Father's love, and He will certainly not reject you.

3283. Let us love Elah, raising the consciousness of our earthly vessel; may souls ascend to You, O pure Elah.

3284. Let Elah dance with joy, with all their might; let the souls of heaven praise You.

3285. Our God is One; He is the Saviour of mankind from the dawn of time; He chooses no intermediaries for Himself, but sinful men have chosen His collaborators.

3286. May His Love and Fatherly care remain with us forever; may the trees and hills joyfully sing songs of praise to His Holy Name.

3287. Take refuge under the Father's tent; He will not forsake you in times of sorrow, in times of darkness, and in times of distress.

3288. May the fire of the Holy Spirit, the divine Shekinah, return from heaven to earth; may the heavenly voice of God's messengers resound like the most magnificent flute in every corner of the earth.

3289. It has been said that the fire of love which inspires song will surely strengthen and lift the spirits of the downcast, and bring them heavenly joy.

3290. May God win the hearts of mankind through the messengers of joy.

3291. May His Love, His reconciliation and His friendship towards every being on earth endure forever.

3292. Virtue and a life of peace, resulting from the removal of selfishness and the humbling of pride, always bring peace of mind.

3293. Happiness, joy and smiles are always painted on the faces of those who pride themselves on virtue and holiness of character.

3294. The memory of the saints during their lifetime shall never fade, nor shall their souls fade away in the afterlife; Elah shall be among them.

3295. Let the news of virtues spread throughout our homes; let us embrace every virtue in our minds for the sake of justice; let it dwell amongst us, and let us form covenants of friendship with it.

3296. He who claims to be a Lover of Elah, serving Him out of love and not out of fear, will never be covetous on the path of Elah, nor will he ever be characterised by greed.

3297. Let us be lovers of God, let us be His saints, seeking neither greed nor generosity; let us not seek piety, and let us keep away from lust.

3298. Let us distinguish ourselves by cordiality towards our neighbours, sobriety and moderation in all things.

3299. We, as God's people, should be capable of all righteousness and guard against enslavement by lust, lack of sobriety and the pursuit of violence.

3300. Let us raise the banners of peace, let us raise the banners of reconciliation with our neighbours, let us raise the banners of fellowship amongst our neighbours in a spirit of devotion, service and love.

3301. We must be pure, purified, so that when Elah appears on earth, He Himself will satisfy us with His heaven and His presence.

3302. When all rise from the graves of their illusions, only the voice of God will be heard in these Scriptures.

3303. Do not condemn this counsel or call it useless; on the contrary, Elah has called us to feed on His counsel, His principles and His precepts, which spring from love.

3304. In this wicked world, it is difficult to overcome selfishness, greed and mundane deeds.

3305. However, we have no intention of separating ourselves from the world.

3306. We must work together for the good of society, for the good of our families, for our own good.

3308. The accumulation of wealth is not a sin if it is done in moderation, without harming others.

3309. Let your well-being, joy and sense of happiness be fulfilled, and do not deprive yourself of the splendour of earthly life.

3310. Elah has commanded us to live in death, to live without prejudice, to live in friendship with our neighbours, not to live according to His commandments, but to live by faith in virtue – arising from love for God.

Gender equality

3311. He endowed humanity with a pair of men and women so that they might be equal, Men have made women weaker and subordinate; they crave power and exploit their subordination.

3312. They are unintelligent and fail to appreciate the burdens women face, How much love and empathy is spread through a woman's charms?

3313. Are her weaknesses and desires not as insatiable as those of men?

3314. Such behaviour must not take place amongst us – for a man to fight against a woman, for one to rule over the other.

3315. Equality, love, empathy and harmony are the answer to the enforcement of obedience, mistreatment and the undervaluing of women.

3316. Women and men must be treated equally and valued for their contribution to raising children or for the achievements they have attained.

3317. Then the world will surely flourish, and equality will bear the noble fruits of their efforts.

3318. Through cooperation and forgiveness, you will guide your wife, and she will repay you in kind.

3319. Let there never be violence between you; evil must be removed from the very beginning so that it does not spread.

3320. 'To cut out the root' figuratively means that the disease, the infected 'root', must be eradicated from one's attitudes.

3321. Here, the seeds of discord in marriage are misunderstandings, arguments and blaming one's spouse; neither of them should look for fault in the other, but first in themselves.

3322. Violence is not the solution, and anger is not a cure for pain and suffering.

3323. Violence, anger and difficulties cannot be hidden and must be called by their proper names in order to eradicate evil.

3324. A merciful believer in Allah must not make any threats against his wife or those in his care, including the forbidden intimidation of those who have been separated as a result of divorce.

3325. Even if it seems to you that the victim might bring shame upon the family, the victim of domestic violence is suffering, is deprived of dignity, and the darkness and oppression inflicted by their spouse may lead to mood swings, leaving their job, or abandoning their previous activities.

3326. Do not look upon this with indifference; have compassion on the person suffering from all pain, all violence and all oppression.

3327. The victim herself feels like a lark caged, lacking the air of love and the water of peace needed to escape the cage of unbridled anger.

3328. The lark needs human help to break free from the cage that neither feeds, waters nor cares for it.

3329. We can be that helping hand to ‘eradicate’ violence against women, wives, but also girls who have fallen victim to rape or assault.

3330. We cannot remain indifferent to such treatment.

3331. God will surely reward those who extend a helping hand and offer support.

3332. Accusations against both men and women must be abandoned, and the death penalty should have no place among us.

3333. Teach humanity, then, to love one another and to harm no one.

3334. Teach your Muslim brothers so that they may bear the burden of Sharia and the lies imposed on people by this cruel law.

3335. There should be no feelings of anger, sadness or blame between husband and wife; rather, let there be kind words, forgiveness and self-reflection between you.

3336. If you examine your heart – seeking fault in yourself rather than in your fellow human beings – you will surely restore harmony between you and your wife.

3337. Women living in any country should know their rights and be aware that the protection of those rights and the prohibition against harming them should take precedence over the fanatical laws of Muslims, Jews, Christians or any other religion.

3338. Every woman and every man has the right to live in peace; their rights to dignity must not be violated in the name of Elah, and their protection and free will must not be restricted by fanciful laws.

3339. Women faithful to Elah should come together in groups to fight against all violence and violations of their rights.

3340. These groups should focus on raising awareness of the issue of violence against women; difficulties will always exist unless men change their attitude towards women.

3341. Men must once again choose to respect women; by doing so, they will respect themselves, and the righteousness of their deeds will be recorded in the Heavenly Books.

3342. Otherwise, the law of punishment has been established; their names will be erased from the Heavenly Books, and after death their bodies will fall into darkness and destruction.

3343. Do not take money from the poor, nor chase after money, trampling on the innocent along the way.

3344. Our destiny was to earn an honest living by the labour of our own hands; therefore, Heaven has decreed the abolition of the priesthood.

3345. For God, every believer is a ‘priest’. They have the right to decide for themselves, they have the right to decide according to their conscience what they desire, and the most important thing is that they choose goodness – without causing harm to others.

3346. Every human community, including every believer in this Book, has a duty to realise that the community is like a single living organism, and that its various members determine its internal stability and order.

3347. For this reason, every believer should be loyal to the secular state in which they live, but should not be subject to religious authority which destroys or displays to the whole world its tentacles of power intertwined with secular authority.

3348. Every true believer in God, as a believer, should not mix religion with either secular or religious authorities, for this path leads only to chaos and disorder.

3349. We, however, as one head, together with every community, form one body, for every part of the body, in order to function properly, needs the assistance of organs such as the internal organs.

3350. To tackle domestic violence, it is essential to instil a great deal of love into society; it is essential to teach young wives how they should love and respect one another – this is the main solution to the problem of violence against women.

3351. In the Islamic and Hindu worlds, there are still laws in which women’s rights are restricted, which constitutes a violation of the laws and commandments of God recorded in the Book of the Father.

3352. He forbade the killing of girls whilst they were still alive; he forbade the beating of women, but permitted shouting at them when they are talkative.

3353. The Arabs and other nations who have distorted the words of Moses from the Torah are seeing the consequences of their deviation from the right path: instead of equality, inequality reigns; instead of harmony and cooperation, confusion and disorder reign.

3355. Because of the foolishness and thoughtlessness of the scholars, women must suffer, and they despise the image of Moses as a cruel man and accept the insults of the pagans as truth.

3356. May the name of Brama be most dear to me, for he gave his soul for such a noble cause – to grant women the gift of equality; not a single drop of his martyr's blood was shed in vain.

3357. Today, thanks to his righteousness, we can rejoice and share his principles with God's faithful and with the whole world.

3358. The oppression of women occurs when societies are on the brink of collapse.

3359. Women bear children and thus create new life, and everyone who knows this should treat them equally, if only because of the creative power with which the Most High has endowed them.

3360. Surely these societies will collapse when the scale of hatred towards women becomes very serious, and they fight fiercely against any freedom for women – which is a sign that the Spirit of God has no place among them.

3361. The Spirit of God has not entered the hearts of imams, Hindu priests, rabbis or Christian priests if they teach the oppression of women and their subjugation to men, whilst they ought to teach the principles of equality and cooperation between the two sexes.

3362. We must raise the banners of equality to remove all signs of inequality between men and women.

3363. We must arm ourselves with a heavy shield against attempts to introduce inequality, and we should draw the swords of justice so that courageous women may be strengthened by them.

3364. Let women, then, wield the swords of equality and gather in the name of Elah to teach and spread the message of gender equality.

3365. Let the employer, if he is a man, not abuse his power and not burden a woman so that she may receive lower pay.

3366. It is not God's will for women to dominate men, nor for men to dominate women through their strength.

3367. Elah's message is to establish equality and harmony – within the family, in the prayer assembly, and in society.

3368. Our Elah is the God of equality, order and harmony.

3369. If men and women are not treated equally and with equal rights, unemployment, poverty and great suffering will surely afflict one or the other.

3370. Women and men must be treated equally; they must be valued both at home and outside it, and then we shall surely gain paradise on earth instead of chaos.

3371. Do not delay in freeing yourselves from inequality; if a man oppresses a woman, he oppresses himself, 'for whatever he sows, that shall he reap'.

3372. Gather therefore into your baskets the virtues that foster equality, so that your dignity may grow, your understanding may grow, and your love may grow.

3373. 'Who can find a perfect wife?

3374. She is more precious than jewels'.

It is not enough to talk about domestic violence; action is needed to prevent such problems in the future.

3375. Society is like a single organism; we must instil this principle in both young people and adults so that they can properly recognise the signs of domestic violence or any form of violence and hatred.

3376. Role models are helpful in effectively combating all forms of abuse, including domestic violence.

3377. The specific teachings of all the Mirror Prophets are about caring for women and not blaming them; women were of great value to the Gate of God – the Divine Shekinah.
3378. We know that our society is like a body, composed of various elements; for it to function as a whole, it is necessary to educate individual members of society in order to prevent all forms of abuse.
3379. Our Elah certainly examines our hearts individually and knows who has a clear conscience; His angels look with compassion upon the victims of all violence and hatred.

Marriage

3380. A bride-to-be should examine her fiancé to ascertain whether he is suitable for marriage; his behaviour may betray traits of selfishness, and selfishness in the future breeds violence, anger and a lack of self-control.
3381. The ruin of a marriage is caused by a lack of clarity of mind, a lack of self-control, anger, violence and other faults, all of which are linked to the selfishness that has taken root in the wife or husband.
3382. To reunite a mismatched marriage, love is needed, and in particular, a selfish husband or wife must reject the poison of selfishness that fills their mundane ego.
3383. To truly love your wife or husband – do not blame your spouse for his or her faults.
3384. You must suppress the venom of anger, malice and selfishness; then the spark of love will complete the marriage, and quarrels will turn into an oasis of peace.
3385. The Word of God has healed the hearts of those who have drawn near to His law of love; He is the Holy Spirit, and I am the Gate to this – the Good Thought of the Creator Himself.
3386. Do not look at the outer shell, but at the good qualities that cling to a person; the more you contemplate goodness and good qualities, the sooner you will rid yourself of the outer shell that obscures the light.
3387. Look also at these Scriptures: how much valuable advice do they contain, how much wisdom has Elah given us in His mercy?
3388. This verse signifies love for these Scriptures, which are dear to God.
3389. Spending money on the translation of this book is essential for revealing Elah's presence on earth. The more kindly you help the poor through almsgiving, the more Elah will care for you from on high.
3390. Therefore, with the sword of the Holy Spirit, destroy all anxiety, all discord and hatred.
3391. God has commanded you not to cling to prohibitions and commandments with all your might.
3392. Believe first in the Oneness of God, and His love will fill you; out of love for God you will do good.
3393. Draw the water of life from the crystal spring and drink your fill of divine counsel, so that you may ascend into the presence of Elah, filling your cup with His delightful glory.
3394. O obedient people – keep far from selfishness; do not feed on the fruit of sin from the tree of pride!
3395. Choose life from the tree of reconciliation, cultivating gentleness and mercy!
3396. Blessed are those who remember peace and spread it, yet do not mix power with religion.
3397. He has instilled in the human mind the distinction between good and evil – the conscience – and has infused into it His love and greatness – the blessed principles of love for oneself and for the beings around one.
3398. Thus, the five 'multitudes of body and soul' contained within man are: feelings or the soul, its form or the body, and perception.
3399. The fifth 'multiplicity of body and soul' is conscience; it is the eternal spirit, and the reciprocity of love encompasses the essential principles of justice.
3400. O peoples of the whole world, put an end to anger, hatred and prejudice through the power of self-control, love and tolerance.
3401. Let cordiality and cooperation reign amongst us; cast aside all anger, hostility and hatred.
3402. O people of the Most High Name, discover your true nature; thereby reach the source of your feelings, be they anger or hatred, and purify yourselves of them through the prayer of love.

3403. Lest you suffer, separate justice from wickedness in your minds; embrace cordiality and kindness instead of hatred; establish self-control instead of seeking division; choose cooperation at the same table of understanding instead of constantly feeding on hatred and prejudice.

3404. Let only the Name of Elah be exalted among the nations,

It is our destiny to be servants and handmaids for the development and building of a better world here on earth, and for future generations.

3405. God's heart beats with kindness for the world, if those who have answered the call of the poor and the hopeful.

3406. For the salvation of mankind is achieved through helping the poor, the oppressed and the sorrowful.

3407. Whoever claims that faith alone saves him is a fool; look upon the poor and those who have failed – in their suffering lies your salvation, if you lift their burdens from them!

3408. Neither the blood of the prophets, nor their martyrdom, nor their sweet words, nor faith alone saves!

3409. Freedom from sin lies in 'righteousness and justice', just as justice lies in the 'foundation of God's throne'.

3410. All sins that do not stem from hatred will be forgiven through sharing with those in need.

3411. Elah is worthy of praise; He knows the secrets of the heart and exalts those who are poor in spirit, who willingly share with the poor and the needy.

3412. Let not the rich exalt themselves above the poor; let the rich give to the poor what is due to them.

3413. In Elah of all worlds, order is established faster than the blink of an eye.

3414. Truly, Elah is the Great Benefactor, so take some money and distribute it to the destitute, and Elah will distribute it according to their needs.

3415. The surplus of what we possess should go to the poor; this is atonement for sins.

3416. There is no salvation for you in man, but only in God, Elah of all things.

3417. If you give alms to the poor, and the wombs of mothers bear young shoots, this is far better than spending money on the temple.

3418. Giving alms is a gift; Elah blesses it sincerely; He is the Giver of all things, generous to the very core.

3419. Justice towards the poor and needy is to bring spiritual blessing, physical health and deliverance to those who believe in the One True God.

3420. On the other hand, the rich should grow richer, but they should not exploit the defenceless for their own ends.

3421. And all people were created by the hands of God's goodness; all are vessels of His Holy Spirit, the spirit of goodness and justice.

3422. Let the heavens therefore unite with the earth; let the wise heed this sweet counsel.

3423. He, God, needs no companions on His journey; He is the most beloved, the most magnificent.

3424. For God separates good from evil on the Day of His revelation, here on earth; He is the willing giver of knowledge, the Merciful.

3425. Know also that you must not enrich yourselves at the expense of others; walk the paths of justice.

3426. Accumulate wealth, for in the hand of Elah, the Most High, lies the power to ennoble the world.

3427. Know, then, that from the tree of knowledge of good, Elah of justice and goodness is revealed, whilst from the tree of knowledge of good and evil, only greed is revealed.

3428. Every effort we make, every attempt to make the world more perfect, every good deed and every kind word is a gift to this world.

3429. The aim of the Supreme Elah is to make this world like heaven, and then God's faithful people will cry out with joy: behold, the 'new heaven and the new earth' have been revealed on earth.

The Path of Mercy

3430. This is the path of mercy; whoever follows it embraces kindness and concern for those in need,

This is the path that leads to perfection, full of gratitude and mutual kindness,

Those who walk the paths of righteousness distinguish themselves by their righteous deeds; even without necessarily believing in the existence of the Most High, they bear witness to Him, without even mentioning His Name.

3431. Be lovers of God, showing kindness, courtesy and mercy to all people.

3432. The essence of faith is 'love thy neighbour as thyself', so do not shun the unbelievers – they too suffer and love, feel and rejoice, so we show them true love and persist in showing mercy to all God's children,

True faith is that which is expressed in acts of kindness, and those who walk in Nur d-Elah do not harm the innocent.

3433. Reap the fruits of your hard work by bestowing upon this earthly life all the precious gems of compassion, care and selflessness.

3434. Let people draw from the treasury of God's knowledge of these divine counsels the strength to nourish themselves – to nourish their children spiritually.

3435. To clothe the poor in children of love and give hope for peace to those whose families are full of strife and anxiety.

3436. In this way, children will show respect if they themselves are respected; they will return love with love; they will allow their parents to love one another.

3437. Let us remember – God's way is not a way of hurting, but of offering mutual help even to the enemies of the faith.

3438. Let us awaken within ourselves the desire to seek justice and to live under the roof of righteousness; let us not merely speak words of love, but live in love and act with the language of love and compassion.

3439. Nor should we reject those who are far from returning love with love; they are like the 'blind, dumb and deaf' who do not feel, yet boast of the wealth of their violence, hypocrisy and destruction.

3440. Everyone at least desires to know God's love, to become the purest; how can they see God, if not in the mirrors of the prophets?

3442. May God's Majesty be reflected in the mirrors we hold as gifts of the Holy Spirit, and may we ourselves seek in His holy attributes all the great virtues we can emulate.

3443. It is also better for a person to write down a single verse full of love than to pour forth torrents of hatred, violence and anxiety against their neighbours and unbelievers.

3444. God is Love.

3445. As the Heavenly Father, He bestows His mercy upon all who long for it and suffer.

3446. Let us walk the paths of friendship and show compassion to all living things; let us raise the banners of peace, harmony and reconciliation above war, discord and strife.

3447. Do not keep company with those who lead others to the depths of destruction and boast of their violence, thereby worshipping hatred, whilst in their hearts they are cruel – command them to subdue their 'hearts of stone', so that they may become hearts of 'flesh', full of life, holiness and the avoidance of harm!

3448. Nor should you rejoice in the evil that befalls your neighbour, for you too may fall into a worse abyss; therefore, do not wish for your neighbour what you would not wish for yourself.

3449. Must one forsake all the pleasures of this world to unite with the Humble Gate – the Shekinah, to forsake the world?

3450. How is this possible?

3451. 'To renounce the world' means the same as renouncing materialism and getting rid of excess wealth; how many children and poor people in the world need your help?

3452. How much suffering is caused by unjust actions and exploitation? God is almighty in His deeds and commands a fair distribution for the benefit of widows, the poor, orphans, believers and non-believers, for all suffer equally; all people are therefore your neighbours!

3453. If only you would abandon everything for Elah and be carried away by the good of the society in which you live, paradise on earth would surely have been established long ago.

3454. A paradise without wars, poverty or suffering.

3455. Let the earth, teeming with all manner of life, be for you an example of Elah's goodness and a sign of His love.

3456. May parents and children, to rise above the mundane, turn away from all base thoughts and inequalities; may they turn their faces towards noble thoughts; may they gird themselves with the belts of every virtue and the manifestation of all compassion.

3457. Therefore, desire with all your heart and soul that harmony, love and compassion may reign in earthly families.

3458. Let this love not be mundane and be distinguished only by tender words; let love be distinguished by acts of kindness amongst family members.

3459. 1281 Let parents and children not drift in a sea of resentment, hatred, rudeness and mutual hostility; let them be nobly enriched by a desire for reconciliation; let rudeness between them – of husband towards wife and parents towards children, but also of children – be replaced by respect, tact and the speaking of tender words.

3460. Let hatred be destroyed by mutual service; let hostility be replaced by equality and the sharing of equal responsibilities in the home.

3461. God is exalted above the whole world; He brought the Torah and gave you the Mother Book to distinguish truth from falsehood, so let us go and take pride in His Treasures.

3462. Satisfy the minds of those who long for comfort, yearn for liberation from a cruel husband, and desire equality in marriage.

3463. These are divine counsels; feed on the 'bread of salvation' and drink the miraculous 'water of life' from the spring.

God's law is just; a child is not guilty of the sins of his fathers, his ancestors, and does not inherit the sins of his parents; he does not sin by living amongst unjust people, nor does he acquire righteousness by living amongst righteous people.

3464. True lovers of God should not walk in darkness, but rather should turn away from their sins and draw near to the Divine Shekinah, the ocean of divine love. My God, my Beloved, in the essence of Your joy I may immerse myself, glorify You, and glorify my soul.

3465. God, above these principles, so as not to add partners to Him, asks us to fill our lives with all righteousness and virtue.

3466. May the aims of our God become our own.

3467. He is our helper in all trials; He will bring us every happiness when we ourselves live in virtue.

3468. Come and never be a liar; lying has never brought happiness, though it may give a momentary sense of joy.

3469. By speaking the truth, we become a blessing to those with whom we live, thus fulfilling the role God has given us to enlighten the blind and the deaf as angels of light, from Nahare Nehor – streams of light flowing from His Throne.

3470. Let the whole body come to Elah to bow down before the Holy One; He is no liar; He judges liars in righteousness.

3471. God is the source of love and shares it with all His creatures.

3472. Let us share our love with our family members; let us not fear our work for the families to whom we shall bestow love and rays of joy, all their needs and all balance.

3473. Families exist so that love may endure within them, so that love may spread amongst them.

3474. Let this love manifest itself in arrows of devotion and mutual service; let arrows of respect reach the parents, and arrows of security and care reach all the children.

3475. Parents are responsible for their children, to provide them with everything they need for life and development; if they fail to do so, may God curse them.

3476. Let children not work like adults; let them rather learn through play, let them derive all joy from it; do not deprive children of play that does not lead them to hatred.

3477. Let all acts of kindness, love, piety, patience, truthfulness and virtue be present amongst us.

3478. 1292 We are to be courteous, to encourage kindness and hospitality; we are to seek all goodness in our neighbour, rather than seeking wickedness.

3479. Give willingly to the poor, the afflicted and the suffering; in these virtuous deeds you shall be saved.

3480. If we gather gentle words into the baskets of righteousness, then surely, when we bring them before the Throne of God, He will honour us and will not forsake us.

3481. Those who are distinguished by gentleness are far from weakness and subjugating others; rather, they are kind, courteous, and share peace with their neighbours.

3482. Those who believe in God and truly devote themselves to Him with all their heart and soul treat themselves with dignity, have a good opinion of themselves, and are sound in mind.

3483. God does not want us to be sad, embittered, or self-flagellating in heart and body; on the contrary, He joyfully rejects sin.

3484. Let your words not be hurtful, as has been recognised since ancient times – that one person should not hurt another. Do not hurt anyone with your words who does not deserve it.

3485. Love all people and do not try to hurt them with words or any weapon.

3486. A heart attached to religion, tradition and rituals draws upon resources from a pagan source.

3487. However, a heart that worships Elah of Hosts finds such resources from the source of divine knowledge.

3488. When the heart feels no love for the Jewish people, their suffering is of no concern to it, for the prayers and rituals of Elah are of no use to it.

3489. For a heart that is far from God and love for one's neighbour, prayers, zakat, and tithes given to Elah, even with the aim of improving the situation of the poor, are of no use.

3490. May kindness, courtesy and hospitality flourish in our hearts.

3491. May every man and every woman close the door of modesty in their minds, so that pride and selfishness may not creep in.

3492. For noble people are distinguished not by the totality of their piety and religiosity, but by the totality of their work for the sake of their family, neighbours and relatives – bestowing love upon them in return for love.

3493. May friendship flourish between husband and wife; may children respect their parents; may parents treat their children with dignity and do them no harm.

3494. Rejoice in the wine of God's Words and hold fast to them; read these Words whenever you can; do not be slaves to religion, but rather become servants of God and your neighbour.

3495. Have noble minds; purify your consciences of selfishness; act with kindness; and persevere in kindness and mercy towards your neighbours.

3496. Serve God, so that you do not harm the poor, orphans, or the suffering.

3497. For salvation is granted to us through the help and love flowing from selflessly drawing from the source of healing water properties.

3498. Draw water, then, and feed on the Divine Words of Elah, drinking your fill, quenching every thirst.

3499. When you wake in the morning, let your eyes and hearts be filled with love for your kin, for your wives, and for those who are near and far from you.

3500. May the Kingdom of Elah flourish amongst us, if we bestow selfless love upon our neighbours; may our conduct not be distinguished by rites or rituals, but let us ourselves strive for the growth of virtue in our minds.

3501. You, O God, open the eyes of the blind; may Your eyes and Your souls be filled with love, and may the whole world also be filled with love.

3502. Let us clothe ourselves in the garments of goodness, honesty and mercy, and let us be stewards of justice.

3503. Let us never be intoxicated; rather, let us seek piety in sobriety and self-control, and let us be worthy to be called saints.

3504. May we here on earth, in these earthly bodies, be clothed in light, and be present amidst the Elah of love.

3505. May patience endure, along with the growth of wisdom and the vigour of mind and body.

3506. May understanding of God's truths, His principles, and His love develop within us and amongst us.

3507. Standing at the threshold of the great Benefactor's door, do not leave His door, do not fade into oblivion.

3508. Pay heed to the Word: Elah is a symbolic door, not a man, for the Shekinah leads to the knowledge of God's love, His attributes, and His devotion to humanity.

3509. May we perceive every moment of respite in the love of this door; may we perceive every moment of respite in the attributes of His dignity, devotion and humanity.

3510. May parents show love to their children, and may children love their parents, if the latter care for them with love.

3511. Let grown-up children love their parents; let them grant them forgiveness upon forgiveness, if they are worthy of it.

3512. A worthy parent is one who has not harmed their children nor been the cause of sorrow, or of the destruction of body and spirit; such a parent is truly loved by God.

3513. In the morning, let husband and wife exchange kind words, let them share food, let them share mercy, let them help one another out of kindness.

3514. Show respect for the sake of respect itself, but if your wife or husband does not respect you out of love for God, show them all the more love, and then they will understand that God's love overcomes all obstacles, all shortcomings and all sorrow.

3515. This is a revelation that is constantly being revealed: give of yourselves in times of need; let children respect their parents both for what they receive from them and for the love they share.

3516. Let parents say to their child: 'You are my wealth and my treasure,' and let grown-up children of advanced years respond to them with the same words.

3517. May kind and tender words be present in marriages that remain faithful to these Scriptures.

3518. May they rejoice in the gentleness they share; may they not suffer from separation, but rather be servants to one another.

3519. In harmony and accord, in mutual service, lies the joy of marriage.

3520. Before Elah of the whole world, spouses become a gift to one another, adapting step by step, helping one another, sharing what they have, caring for one another, not hurting one another; then love is bestowed in full, and the joy of God and God's angels is visible in the heavens.

3521. These generous Words, these divine principles, have been sent down so that the people of Elah may rejoice in them; let them read the New Scriptures with joy, sharing them.

3522. In Elah you will find eternity; His mercy, His generosity, His remembrance of us will never fade nor pass away.

3523. If we remember and love Him, He too will not forget us.

3524. Let believers and non-believers, let all people, in all circumstances, amidst all adversity and joy, distinguish themselves by a mind filled with justice and every virtue, so that they may be a help to their society, and not a burden.

3525. Bind the Words of the Tanakh to your arms and wear them upon your 'foreheads', remembering them day and night.

3526. Be not my slaves nor Elah's, but be servants of the principles flowing from righteousness.

3527. Do not provoke your children to anger by harming them in body and spirit.

3528. Rather, teach them self-control, keeping your children's anger and curses to yourselves.

3529. My tongue professes love for your children, for this brings us closer to the work of the Most Holy.

3530. Divine love rises above all joy; thus should we speak of true love.

3531. Through this love, victory is achieved on the path of Elah, not through violence and hatred.

3532. Let quarrels, disputes and hatred be atoned for through reconciliation with our spouse, our relatives, strangers and those far away.

3533. Be steadfast, but not like an uncut gemstone, far from irresponsibility.

3534. Peace of mind is great, but in the New Year let us bring one another gifts to improve ourselves, rejecting all greed.

3535. Let not our homes be tainted by intemperance and extravagance, and may the memory of moderation and austerity, comfort and harmony reign in all homes that revere the Most Merciful Elah.

3536. Cleanse yourselves of all debts; do not take out loans nor practise usury, for God, in His mercy, abhors both these things.

3537. Avoid that which God abhors.

3538. Be grateful both for the bread from God and for the divine bread sent down by the Spirit of Elah.

3539. Let gratitude and thanksgiving reign amongst us; let service and acts of mercy be valued amongst us.

3540. Let us care for one another; let us not spend money on unnecessary things, but let us not be too frugal either.

3541. May we be strengthened through service to our neighbours, and through striving for unity with our neighbours and strangers.

3542. May the sweet fragrance of these Words remain within you, and may you share it with everyone.

3543. May the feeling of peace, uniting families in love, endure, and may no one divide their families on the basis of religion or beliefs.

3544. It is God's desire not to harm and to joyfully proclaim that we should not harm.

3545. Seek what is best for strangers and relatives alike.

3546. Be mindful not to harm people or animals.

3547. Overcome loneliness too; leave the ranks of celibacy if you are priests, and leave the ranks of the monastic order if you are monks; get married and seek a wife.

3548. God wants you to be happy, not to seek a life of solitude.

3550. For your own sake, for your neighbours and relatives, do as much good as you can before the time of reckoning comes.

3551. Do not search in the darkness, lest you fall into the valley of this world's oblivion; let asceticism, the repetition of prayers and meditation be far from you, for these practices are utterly pagan, they send people to the valley of illusion and exalt mortals instead of God.

3552. Sail the ship across the gracious seas of enlightenment, so that your soul may be illuminated by the golden radiance of God.

3553. Gather, then, upon the ship sailing towards the heavens, particles of gold and silver – particles of good deeds and all virtues; and then, having amassed a treasure, as you set foot upon the island of paradise, you shall sing a joyful song to God.

3554. It will be a joyful song of the gathering of marvellous treasures, full of marvellous ores, overflowing with all warmth, devotion, service and mercy.

3555. Amongst the gathered treasures, you shall drink the drink of immortality and eat from the tree of life; you shall not be intoxicated by wine, nor shall your body be burdened by suffering.

3556. In your mind, even after leaving this world, you shall rise to the light of Oneness; therein you shall find Oneness and cast off selfishness; therein, too, after leaving the body, all suffering shall cease; therefore, do not rejoice in death.

3557. This life and the life to come are the gateway to growth; they are, as it were, a 'purgatory' that cleanses us of all sins; here, on earth, in these earthly bodies, our human nature is transformed into an angelic nature.

3558. We are here to overcome ourselves and our weaknesses, and to give birth to angelic virtues, so that we may be united with God in His Oneness.

3559. A word concerning the Scriptures – In this Revelation, you will certainly observe that the burdensome and harsh laws of the Torah were abolished solely to confirm the true meaning of the Scriptures, and not because they were to be discarded and forgotten.

3560. When a brighter light appears, it is replaced by a new, more glorious one, based on divine proof.

3561. Those who claim to be pious think that by believing in a particular book, they have attained salvation because they have read it – the opposite is entirely true.

3562. Elah, the One Giver of harmony

Wishes everyone happiness and is the giver of love and peace,

He moves amongst people who express themselves in love, act in love, and keep away from hateful thoughts.

3563. Go forth and love, share compassion with those near and far; He, Elah, will grant you clarity of mind; He is a refuge for those who seek Him.

3564. If you love, do not hurt; if you truly love, do not practise injustice; be far from persecuting, tormenting and exploiting the weak.

3565. Quench one another's sorrows; bring the water of compassion to your loved ones; all anxiety will be quenched by the water of compassion and kindness.

3566. Adorn your minds with precious stones, polish your thoughts of the grime of materialism, root out all sorrow and despondency from within yourselves.

3567. Therefore, do not sever the roots of your heritage; heaven has not commanded you to cut yourselves off from your roots; if you wish to remain with God, cut yourselves off from false idols, not from your family.

3568. Then surely your joy will triumph; your mind will not be clouded or disturbed by separation from the heritage of the past.

3569. Practise aversion to hatred; we must root out from our minds aversion to strangers, aversion to those who are not white, to those whose hearts are bound by materialistic prejudices – let us teach them the path of balance.

3570. Extinguish your sorrow and open your mind to compassion; may the Power of the Most High shine upon you,

God speaks to us through a prayer of love; how much more should we cling to the sources of life, balance and the soothing of anger, rather than seek water in the desert of misfortune and ignorance of joy?

3571. It has been promised that at the end of time, Elah will bring all the friends of His Oneness to the One Mountain of Elah.

3572. In Elah there will be one faith and only joy, so let God's will be done.

3573. The power of love means to love in friendship; he who does not truly love his wife is he who complains about her, shouts at her, abuses her – he is the worst of sinners.

3574. Love one another in friendship, give yourselves to one another in love, in understanding of each other's needs, and then your friendship will become true love.

3575. Similarly, children should be disciplined sensibly, but without causing them harm.

3576. It is even better not to tell them what to do, but to let them imitate adults in good deeds.

3577. Let parents care for their children; let unconditional love flourish and endure between them; let parents not expect payment for their love, but children must be taught respect for God and their parents; then both the home in Heaven and the parents will be happy.

3578. Let parents and children gird themselves with the belt of love and mutual respect; let them turn their anger into gentleness, and their impatience into merciful discipline.

3579. Let parents soothe their children's sorrows; let children provide a roof over the heads of their elderly parents; then suffering will vanish.

3580. True salvation lies in those we care for, in caring for widows and ensuring the well-being of the poor, especially those close to our family.

3581. Let parents serve their children, and children serve their parents, and let no weeds or discord take root in the homes of those who are followers of the Comforter.

3582. Practise bestowing unconditional love upon one another, but be prudent, lest you be deceived by any liars.

3583. Let us be joyful, we who bring the radiance of the sun, who are not obscured by dark clouds of weeping and lamentation.

3584. Let us share a word of comfort with those who are weak in spirit; let them not succumb to the darkness of doubt, let them seek refuge far from the errors they have brought upon themselves.

3585. Then deliverance is at their door, if they seek and desire help, and those who comfort look with eyes of compassion, listen to the suffering, and offer them a helping hand.

3586. A single act and a kind word, born of love and compassion, can save a life from death, can give hope, can heal depression.

3587. It is a miracle when a helping hand is extended to a suffering person, pulling them out of the oppression of sin, out of the oppression of humiliation and enslavement, towards liberation.

3588. Let us bring joy to those who suffer in times of trial and discouragement, in moments of pain and when they feel abandoned; let us give them hope of liberation from the cage of suffering.

3589. Let those who have ears and eyes be moved; so let us bring great joy to those who are despondent, whose lives have taught them suffering and who stand on the brink of despair, discouragement and sorrow – let them not feel alone.

3590. Let us also be grateful to Heaven for making us happy with universal glory, giving us the better and worse days of our lives.

3591. Let us not, however, be indifferent to inequality, lack of compassion, prejudice or abuse; God is the God of love.

3592. He hates everything that is not expressed in words of love.

3593. Love your children too, so that you treat them all equally.

3594. True love cannot be calculated either; it is right that the beloved should please the beloved and vice versa, that they should fulfil each other's desires and help one another.

3595. Meet the needs of your wife and children; let the wife return her love; let the husband not make his wife a slave, nor the wife do the same.

3596. Likewise, let true love be expressed in acts of respect, mercy and respect for each other's freedom.

3597. God has entrusted us with the prayer of love, so unite yourselves with the God of the universe to attain it.

3598. Let honesty, gentleness, humility, self-control, kindness, and respect for parents and children be evident on your lips, in your thoughts, and in your deeds.

3599. Strive to achieve Unity with the Almighty, condemning gender inequality, racial inequality and social inequality.

3600. Elah has established equality for us for the happiness of the flock, both for men and women; He gave us this principle, not God.

3601. And fools, instead of praising God for equality, shame women by ordering them to cover their faces; their foolishness and lack of understanding of the Holy Scriptures only proves their fanaticism.

3602. Be skilled in doing no harm; in this way, both people and animals will be safe, and the happiness and joy of heaven will be revealed on earth.

3603. Be skilled in speaking the truth; if you lie, you despise your neighbour, evil multiplies in the liar, and your neighbour has no trust in him.

3604. Be sincere, then, for he who speaks the truth is held in high esteem.

3605. Be skilled in not despising the equality of men and women, in not despising believers and non-believers, in not harbouring ill will towards non-believers, in seeking friendship with those who hate you.

3606. Be skilled in cultivating boundless and selfless love, in showing compassion for compassion's sake, in giving gifts to the poor, in creating paradise on earth.

3607. Be skilled in rejecting sensuality; desire purity of mind, thought and deed, and then we shall be protected under the canopy of Elah, we shall sit upon the thrones of His mercy, and we shall not be despised.

3608. Be adept at not incurring debts or taking out loans.

3609. And if the matter concerns the faithful, let them not build houses of prayer that are grand and full of adornments, for otherwise God will not dwell amongst impure endowments.

3610. And temples were erected to please the eye, but at the end of time no mention of them will remain.

3611. Elah rewards those who do good; Elah hates the ornate decorations of temples; Elah is His Name, the Benevolent.

3612. The way of Elah is the way of peace; walking in the paths of Elah is covered in gold, so do not promise one another violence, but mutual aid, cooperation and harmony.

3613. O, look – set aside your disputes and slander; do not hurl lies and insults at people known and unknown to you.

3614. Elah is witness to all things; you may not slander either heaven or your own lives.

3615. Shall we not become a ‘mother’ or a ‘daughter’, just as the followers of the Qur’an do?

3616. Let us not wade in the blood of the innocent; let us not walk the paths of violence.

3617. Remove all destructive desires from your eyes, hands and thoughts; let violence and destruction vanish from your land.

3618. Be servants of peace, justice and the desire to act in friendship and harmony.

3619. Remove from your sight all that is sinful, and let those who sit in the dust cover themselves with a sackcloth of repentance.

3620. Turn away, turn away from violence, hatred and the vain invocation of God in prayer – bowing three times and more, in vain.

3621. Offer fervent prayer before the God of the whole world; turn away from iniquity; destroy violence in your hearts; hate wars, conflicts and the infliction of harm.

3622. God hates divorce, but permits it when both parties are at odds, when the husband abuses his authority, or when the wife or husband casts the husband aside to follow her lover.

3623. Do not act treacherously towards the one you have chosen in your heart, nor be tempted into debauchery, but keep yourself pure, lest God punish you.

3624. Stay far from violent ways, from angry ways, and from those who incite rebellion to spread injustice and chaos.

3625. Elah is, above all, the Lawgiver of good; let us therefore walk with Him and in His presence.

3626. And who will listen to me?

3627. A sinner who falls, who is unworthy to rise from his bed of sorrow?

3628. There is no prophecy about me in the holy books, and I ask no one to exalt my name.

3629. I am not by any means more important than God Himself; He alone is worthy of worship and glory – to Him alone be the glory!

3630. Avoid poverty too, and do everything for your own good, so that you may receive all riches and do no harm to others.

3631. And what if the seven bowls of wrath were poured out upon the earth and a drought ensued, and people fell into poverty, if they did not care for one another?

3632. Take in the poor and give them bread.

3633. Do not go hungry, nor let your child go hungry; feed your child, do not provoke God’s wrath, and do not neglect your children in any way!

3634. You will receive salvation from God if you offer the gift of love to your neighbour, share your savings in moderation, and God will look down from heaven and bestow upon you a great blessing.

3635. And especially with regard to your home and children, do not neglect their needs; provide them with everything they require, and do not forget your wife, the one chosen by your heart.

3636. Do not abandon your children in their weakness, and do not punish them if they do not understand.

3637. Show kindness to those you care about, but allow your wife to speak respectfully of you – her husband – and then her love and convictions will be satisfied.

3638. Elah will not leave you in poverty; care, strengthening of relationships and mutual remembrance are your right.

3639. Love your son and daughter; do not speak ill of your daughters, and do not believe the lie that women, wives and daughters are weaker because of the sins committed by their ancestors.

3640. What right do you have to accuse innocent women of Eve's sin?

3641. Adam would not have plucked the tempting fruit of sin of his own free will.

3642. If Eve had a choice then, should women not have greater freedom of choice and decision-making over their own lives?

3643. Did Elah bestow power upon Adam and Eve, record this in the books, and predestine their fall—not as a punishment, but as a necessity for growth, for when people fall into sin, they need God's help?

3644. May their choices – both men's and women's – be wise, and when good outweighs evil, may they be generously rewarded with Elah's light and a long life.

3645. Therefore, we should be poor in heart, but we should not abandon bodily attachments.

3646. Do not arm yourself with lies, and do not speak ill of your neighbour.

3647. When you have a grievance against your neighbour, it is better to make peace with them than to persecute them by speaking lies about them.

3648. If you care for your neighbour, you will reward, not punish.

3649. Poverty lies in wait for the man who does not save, but spends his money in vain.

3650. Therefore, do not wander about like a vagrant and do not beg for money in vain.

3651. Elah is exceedingly wise; he is the God of wisdom, bestowing guidance and counsel.

3652. It has never been Elah's commandment for people to take whatever they want; on the contrary, Elah helps those who return stolen goods, and commands people to return other people's belongings.

3653. This commandment stems from the heart's need; let us say: do not take what has not been given to you.

3654. It was not God's commandment to hurl unkind words at others so that they might feel deceived.

3655. On the contrary, Elah, in His wisdom, commanded that no lies should come from the mouths of believers.

3656. Let our righteousness shine before those who do not boast of their faithfulness.

3657. It was not God's commandment that people should drink strong drink; their fertility will perish, and they themselves will sink into addiction.

3658. It is also noble advice not to be angry with an addict in any way; let us set aside our accusations, and thus keep away from arrogance and anger towards people who are 'the image of God'.

3659. Let us look upon their suffering and extend a helping hand; let us not leave the addict in the despair of their addiction.

3660. It was not Elah's commandment that a husband and wife should be merely a matter of entering into marriage; it is important that a bond of friendship be established between them.

3661. The noble path is for the two of them to be guided by bonds of compassion, abounding in care for their beloved and rejecting all hostility towards one another.

3662. Let empathy and freedom of choice be the foundation of their relationship.

3663. Let us not be overcome by a desire for revenge, nor allow the killing of innocent animals.

3664. Do not impose on yourself, your wife or your children burdens that they cannot bear; do not punish those whom you love and who live in your home.

3665. Be free from hostility, ill will and deceit towards those closest to you, and wish for their lasting happiness – so let your love find expression.

3666. Cast off passion if it is a burden; may God not tempt you too much.

3667. The heavens have decreed that those who walk and act in righteousness shall be recorded in the heavenly books.

3668. Those who are steadfast in their deeds, far from succumbing to carnal desires, have risen like stars burning in the heavens to illuminate the sky with their radiance.

3669. A radiance that causes no pain, does not tear at the body, does no harm to one's neighbour.

3670. Such people are kind, content, and pose no threat to humans or animals.

3671. Such people are called wise, not fools; they are aware of what is good and strive for it, and do not become accustomed to evil, nor to the government, nor to the country in which they live.

3672. Those who are holy are called truly pious – those who are perfect in all virtues, whose conscience is pure, and whose lives bear witness to noble deeds.

3673. These are not in darkness; they have a conscience that rejects evil and chooses righteousness; these have become saints even in their lifetime.

3674. They are the angels of God sent from Elah of all the heavenly kingdoms.

3675. Do not forsake pleasure if it stems from your own good and that of your neighbour.

3676. Loosen the shackles and cast off the chains full of delusions, resentment and hatred.

3677. They penetrate the body and inflict wounds upon the whole body of humanity.

3678. Fill your life with the virtues of heaven, and you will restore paradise on earth.

3679. Say: 'God, my shield, whom shall I fear?'

3680. Be cheerful in times of trial and discouragement.

3681. But renounce evil, lest trials befall you.

3682. Heaven has instructed you to fill your life with meaning, to fill it with joy.

3683. Therefore, read the Ten Commandments; let your conscience become like a field where the seed of the Ten Commandments grows, and let good thoughts flourish under the moisture of love and understanding.

3684. Those who walk the path of righteousness reveal rather than conceal their virtues – the wonder of their magnificent deeds.

3685. And do not say – that man is utterly sinful, that from the cradle his heart is filled with corruption?

3686. It was never God's intention that man should be perfect in his deeds; on the contrary, God has shown us that we should rely on our strength in Him.

3687. Come, then, in mutual love; hold fast to the lamps that illuminate the dark corners of evil.

3688. Let those who watch in the darkness not extinguish their torches, so that amidst the illusions of darkness they may see the light of the spiritual Sun.

3689. May our illusions and the illusions of foreign idols be destroyed; may the root of their delusion be annihilated.

3690. And let those who have never known Elah, but sincerely believe in their idols, first turn to the path of righteousness, so that we may become a light unto them.

3691. Seeing, then, passion, lies and discord, let us cast aside passion, lies and discord.

3692. Then those who did not desire it will desire fellowship with the people of Elah.

3693. The Spirit of Elah is our torch, guiding us to the recognition of spiritual mysteries, leading us to the knowledge of the 'Sun of Truth'.

Those who tread the paths of obstacles are deprived of dignity, just as I am; those who read the New Scriptures will certainly not be deprived of Elah's love, protection and mercy.

3694. O, if you meet someone who believes in God, who reads these verses of praise, even if he sits in the dust, know that he sits upon the throne of eternity; the chariots of the cherubim – the Wheels within Wheels – are His Help.

3695. Let not, therefore, those who are oppressed be sad; Elah will deliver from oppression those who suffer.

3696. He is our defender, Elah, and our Comforter.

Cutting off hatred

3697.

Cast aside all envy towards the Arabs, the Jews or any other nation; God does not choose a nation for Himself, nor does He claim people for Himself solely so that they may worship and praise Him.

3698. As for love of one's neighbour, let it be expressed in deeds of justice.

3699. Clothe yourselves in virtuous deeds; walk righteously in God's way, refraining from harming living beings, and avoiding theft and extortion.

3700. Return what has been lost, and give back to your neighbour what is due to them.

3701. Do not swear falsely; do not make false oaths before those who are your neighbours, and especially before members of your family.

3702. God abhors violence, He abhors arrogance, He abhors deceit and the humiliation of the weak.

3703. Blessed is the son of man who does not practise deceit, but desires to speak the truth, keeps his tongue pure, and daily cleanses his conscience of all impurity.

3704. Blessed is the son of man who neither curses nor wishes ill upon his neighbour.

3705. His lips are pure; he is able to speak lofty things and renounces all curses, slander and guilt.

3706. Blessed is the son of man who expresses love for his neighbour in word and deed; he seeks no harm without cause, nor does he seek reward to be praised; he cares for the good of all out of motives flowing from the heart.

3707. Blessed is the son of man who is filled with the Holy Spirit, who rejects falsehood and calls the truth by its name.

3708. He turns his lips away from deceit and rebukes cunning speech.

3709. He has no pangs of conscience, he does not love what is illusory and fleeting, but strives for the truth to dispel the darkness of the night.

3710. Blessed is the son of man who has frightened no one, who does not harm the innocent. Truly, he shall not be snatched from God's hand, for there is no deceit or violence in his mouth.

3711. Blessed is the Son of Man who comes to the aid of the poor, who does not hesitate to help mothers and fathers, who cares for children.

3712. He feeds and gives drink; he is the power of salvation in the world; he is a lamp shining in the darkness of suffering.

3713. He answered the cries of the suffering, brought them comfort in moments of anguish, comes as a saint and becomes the comforter of many.

3714. O son of man, heed the call of Elah, be one who rewards, not one who curses; wish happiness, not one who curses the innocent.

3715. God is the judge; be like the purest cloud; He has filled the ocean with the purest drops of holy deeds.

3716. Then you shall truly say: God is an ocean of love; He is the fulfilment of my heart's desires.

3717. He is the Saviour of the sons of Judah and Israel; may they soon be united.

3718. Do not listen to those who dream and dream, who speak perverse things – and say: 'Has Elah revealed Himself to us?' Has not Elah revealed Himself and given the Decalogue to the whole world on Mount Sinai?

3719. Why then do you say: 'We have a new revelation'?

3720. Is it not a curse upon you that you are constantly dividing yourselves and fighting over trifles, whilst Elah has already proclaimed his holy 'Ten Words' on Sinai?

3721. Do not take bribes; it has been stated so clearly that bribery harms everyone.

3722. Nor should you run up debts; in hard times, preserve your savings, and do not seek profit at the expense of your neighbour.

3723. And when you lend money at interest, do not take a separate bribe, nor act in a way that undermines love for your neighbour, nor harm your neighbour or a stranger.

3724. Do not oppress the innocent, but punish the guilty severely.

3725. Did not Moses himself kill with his own hands the slave who was guarding him?

3726. He stopped evil, so stop evil; let it be cut out of your consciences, let it be destroyed and trampled underfoot.

3727. The answer to this question is: do not oppress the innocent, but judge the guilty fairly and not without witnesses, with a trembling heart.

3728. Awaken the conscience of all people; first love your neighbour, restraining evil deeds and the evil within yourselves; let mercy precede judgement and condemnation.

3729. Restrain your hands from shedding the blood of the innocent or the guilty.

3730. What right do you have to oppress and kill; are you God?

3731. Are you God in God's stead, to punish people?

3732. Do not turn a blind eye to the oppression of women, to hatred and violence.

3733. Do not say there are no obstacles, for there are many; let us resolve all the necessary issues, let us make the earth a paradise!

3734. Do not look upon evil, and do not let evil survive.

3735. Show love and care to those who are oppressed, to those who are weak and poor; lend a helping hand; do not abandon a woman or a man who has been wronged.

3736. Our Elah is not partial; He calls the woman His bride and the man His bridegroom; they are one flesh; did He not create them in the beginning as a pair of twins?

3737. As God's blessed people, we should not engage in excessive quarrelling; disputes must be avoided; what is the point of suppressing anger if it is intense?

3738. Avoid violent anger and restrain your anger for the sake of the evil that awaits you.

3739. Therefore, do not be fools; do not quarrel, lest you bring sorrow and misfortune upon yourselves, one misfortune after another.

3740. Do not torment one another, and even more so, do not command rulers to torment their subjects, and let the rulers of one country not attack another.

3741. It is also said in the holy books that one must not provoke war, nor resort to accusations of war; let all disputes cease.

3742. For it is also said in the holy books that one should not be envious, that one should bear the fear of Elah in one's heart, that one should not bring shame upon one's name, that one should not be envious, but strive to amass wealth, so as not to harm others.

3743. For it is also written in the holy books that one must not commit adultery; this applies to both men and women.

3744. Do not burden women alone with impurity, nor harbour hatred towards them; by what right would you judge, making yourselves sinless?

3745. It is also written in the holy books that one must not kill a child in the womb if it is healthy.

3746. If he who kills an unborn child offers a sacrifice to Baal, let him who does so be condemned. Here is the answer to the question: so as not to harm the child in the womb, so as not to destroy the unborn child, repentance is assured before God, so that the mother may show repentance.

3747. Finally, the holy scriptures also tell us not to exalt ourselves in place of God, who has bestowed upon us the value of our name.

3748. We are commanded to be joyful and to bring happiness to others.

3749. We are commanded not to be proud, not to sadden our neighbours, and not to humiliate them.

3750. O, do not fear the saints of the Most High; you, the people of God, are God's chosen ones.

3751. Do not worry about the trials, sufferings and envy of our enemies; on the contrary, keep your full trust in God, for He is the protector against all adversities.

3752. He is like a caring gardener who pulls out the weeds of hatred, and with His mercy waters, protects and fertilises the flowers brightened by faithfulness to Him alone.

3753. Faith in God is an expression of love for one's neighbour and for God, seeking neither punishment nor reward in this world.

3754. The Gate commands that no one be put to death; even the worst sinner has the right to change if he turns away from all that is sinful and destructive.

3755. It should be known that the commandment to kill anyone has been deemed unlawful.

3756. A believer or a sinner who harbours in his heart the thought of killing proves by his transgression that he has abandoned his faith in Elah.

3757. Elah, in His mercy, does not pass the death sentence on anyone.

3759. Since the sun has not yet set on the truth for any believer in God, it is forbidden to kill anyone: if anyone does so, he was not, nor is he, of God.
 3760. There shall be no greater sin for him.
 3761. Verily, God has revealed: Whoever kills a soul—it is as though he had killed all mankind.
 3762. Murder brings suffering; it is an injustice inflicted upon everyone around; suffering begets further suffering if violence and murder are not stopped.
 3763. Murder by choice must always be condemned, and the perpetrator must be punished so that evil does not spread.
 3764. God has established principles that protect families, societies and nations from self-destruction.

Freedom from the burden of suffering

3765. All people long to be freed from the burden of suffering, harm, wars and disputes.
 3766. That you may live, you and your descendants, and not be a cause of suffering to anyone.
 3767. That you may live, you and your descendants, and not be a cause of harm to anyone.
 3768. That you may live, you and your descendants, do not go to war unless you are fighting in self-defence, so that you may not be the cause of vengeance and the growth of hatred, Seek your own happiness whilst striving for the happiness of your neighbours; do not kill anyone, do not speak words full of contempt, do not address parents or children harshly.
 3769. Respond with words of anger when evil provokes you.
 3770. However, quell the fire of anger when you are impatient, when you harm the innocent for no reason.
 3771. Burn away your anger and do not be a fool for whom contempt, gossip and anger are passions.
 3772. Cast all mundane anger into the consuming fire; rid yourself of all harmful hatred.
 3773. Do not let yourself be consumed by anger that does not consume evil.
 3774. God's wrath consumes evil, wickedness and pride, but His wrath is not eternal, but just.
 3775. Do not inflict pain, harm or suffering upon the innocent, those among your people, among your relatives and those closest to you.
 3776. All wrongdoing brings only loss and misfortune, and misfortune comes to an end, so keep away from harming innocent souls.
 3777. Break the chains of discord; let every soul cry out: 'Here I am, free, far from harming the innocent and causing strife amongst neighbours!'
 3778. Blow up and destroy hatred; as God's chosen ones, raise the banner far from destruction, far from burning the houses of discord, far from staining yourselves with passion.
 3779. Clothe yourselves in the pure robes of justice, that you may not blame those who are not guilty; control your sudden anger, that you may be truly holy.
 3780. Do not hold back out of pride; but rather exalt Elah and offer Him great thanks for all His gifts.
 3781. Accept admonishment with gratitude if you have been justly punished.
 3782. Let no rod be raised against you, let no curse touch you, if you lack humility; so do not be proud.
 3783. Do not consider yourself wise, and trust in Elah with all your might.
 3784. To have doubts is no sin; on the contrary, those who praise God with their lips but lack righteous deeds fall to the depths.
 3785. But those who do not oppose Elah are faithful to Him; they are not darkness, nor is darkness around them; they are joyful; they do not grow old in cursing, but grow in righteous deeds.
 3786. Be bold and courageous when necessary; do not humiliate yourself; righteous glory has never harmed anyone.
 3787. Blessed are those who observe the discipline of the Decalogue; they are full of love and wise before God.
 3788. Acquire the treasure of wisdom whilst you are still young, and do not give in to the temptation of sin and intemperance.

3789. On the contrary, guard against addictions; seek treasures in heaven.

3790. Blessed are those who do not lament their mistakes; happy are those who distance themselves from addictions, who are disciplined, who ask others for help, who do not carry their burden alone.

3791. Remember also to help the weary, not to abandon those in need, not to turn away from the poor, the sick and the despondent.

3792. So if you offer help to those who need it, you will attain a state of holiness; Elah will bless you with a long life; you will find balance; you will free yourself from greed.

3793. Great in life are those who are guided by the good of their neighbour, who love first, who teach others love through righteous deeds; it is they who are wise in the eyes of God.

3794. Great in life are those who feed the poor, help them to live with dignity, those who have tamed their pride and are full of mercy.

3795. Great in life are those who subdue their passions; even if they are sinful, no one can cover their sins or forgive them, only God Himself; He is ready to forgive.

3796. Great in life are those who crush evil and bring forth only good; they neither retreat nor seek retribution for justice.

3797. These are the noble ones who have conquered evil and pride in their hearts; they are pearls shining amongst an infinite number of precious stones.

3798. These are the great ones in life who bring paradise to this world; these are the saints who do not see leaving this world as liberation.

3799. On the contrary, they desire that the enemy be transformed into a friend, and that the sheep be welcomed by the wolf, and that both may graze together.

3800. None of these things would seem strange to them; they would not be driven by hatred, nor would they seek gain in harm.

3801. Great in their lives are those who do not judge by appearances nor call anyone 'dishonest'. They repay love with love, are friends to all people, and follow the path of nobility, kindness and goodness.

3802. These are the great ones in life who do not succumb to laziness; they are the truly virtuous, who set aside their own concerns to bring joy, not through reckless actions, but by illuminating this world with the light of the moon.

3803. This moon is free from the clouds that obscure love, harmony and goodness.

3804. The moon shines with the radiance of the sun and reflects its rays, so that all rests in the shadow of its goodness.

3805. Great in life are those who have been cleansed of their sins, asking only Elah for forgiveness of their transgressions.

3806. Nor do they seek any other direction to worship Elah, but only by looking up to the heavens.

3807. These are the saints in life who strike no one with weapons; they are the restrained; they are those who are far from selfishness, who share their company, are friendly, and do not unwittingly satisfy their selfish desires.

3808. Great in life are those who do not seek satisfaction in passions; nor do they wander in worldliness; nor do they indulge in any luxuries – they are not a source of exploitation for the poor.

3809. Great in life are those who labour to gather pure deeds as treasures and pearls; they are moderate in their actions and do not boast of their pearls before the world.

3810. Great in life are those who say: 'I am wholly devoted to Elah and serve only Him', and also say: 'We are far from worshipping idols and do not set up intermediaries between us and Him'.

These are the great ones in life who point to the worship of the One Indivisible God alone.

3811. These are the saints in life who do not speak words of hatred, are free from being driven by greed, from calling their neighbour an enemy over trivial differences, value the company of the righteous, and avoid the antediluvian 'ten words'.

These are the saints in life who repay kindness with kindness, treating their neighbours as relatives.

3812. They become stars, shining brightly, if they imitate these saints in their righteous deeds and rejoice, repaying mercy with mercy.

3813. They are truly holy, steadfast in their righteousness.

3814. They deserve a reward from God, and Elah will reward them according to the path they followed in life.

3815. These are the saints in life who interpret a single verse of the Bible so as not to bring misfortune, harm or injustice upon those who are poor in body and spirit, upon those who also await God's generosity.

3816. The saints in life are those who do not cause wounds to body or spirit; those who exercise self-control are truly great in God's sight.

3817. They are also merciful, those who keep away from offensive speech; they train their tongues to speak the truth, to encourage their neighbours to express gratitude, kindness and concern.

3818. Truly holy are those who do not seek exaltation in place of God, those who call sin by its name.

3819. Nor do they fall into despondency, but comfort the sorrowful.

3820. They, too, share glad tidings, not instilling fear, but guiding their steps safely.

3821. These are the truly holy ones, who do not harbour greed and share what they have with the poor.

3822. These are the ones who are content with their righteousness, so they do not see the suffering of their neighbours and are not attached to transitory things.

3823. They return love with love, do much good by overcoming greed, give what they can, and ask Elah in moments of weakness to speak the truth.

3824. When truth overcomes all lies, they become victors.

3825. So gather the juicy fruits of your righteous deeds and cast the rotten ones out of the basket.

3826. Make a basket from willow branches, make justice the pillar of your conscience; so gather the branches, choose the noble ones and cast out the unhealthy ones.

3827. There are many conflicting reports that a husband is permitted to have more than one wife, Brama stated that having a second wife is permitted only if the first has no children,

However, God established the law at the beginning so that all might be equal before one another, If a husband wishes to preserve his wife's respect and dignity, let him have one; if he wishes to have many against the will of his first wife, he should not have a second,

However, God does not leave the wife in subordination to her husband, and let the wife not scold her husband,

Let both respect one another with dignity; therefore, a husband must respect his wife's choices; a wife who, for this reason, rejects her husband's other beloved, rejects sharing the bed,

God does not err in His decrees, and His ways are not our ways,

However, the first wife's jealousy may prevail; she may hate the second wife,

Because of this hatred, Sarah hated Hagar, and Isaac and Ishmael became hostile towards one another,

Therefore, it is better to refrain from advocating the freedom to take a second wife, because of the hatred and jealousy of the second wife,

The condition for having a second wife is the husband's wealth; otherwise, one should refrain from taking a second wife,

God is great in His decisions, but He has given us reason and free will so that we may choose what is right.

3828. So choose wisely and do not harm anyone

Oh, listen

We, holding hands, shall be like brothers; at that moment they will no longer say – do we have an enemy, do we no longer have an enemy?

3829. On the contrary, I see life instead of ruin.

3830. I see brotherhood instead of war, I see peace instead of bloodshed.

3831. A song of gratitude

He is Elah, who nurtures gratitude, So be grateful that others wish to serve you.

3832. Be grateful for these words of encouragement, strength and comfort.

3833. Be grateful to God for the gifts He bestows upon us; He is eternal joy, He is an inspiration from generation to generation.

3834. So hold fast to Him, be humble of heart, and show gratitude to your neighbour.

3835. His profound love will be fully revealed if you repay kindness with kindness, and a good deed with a good deed.

3836. A Song of Kindness

He has commanded us to live in gentleness, not to scold others with words; let us be wise and gentle in our actions; though many obstacles befall us, Elah will lift us up and not leave us alone.

3837. Elah of love is the Most High; let us be pure as doves, gentle in our conduct and obedient to His will.

3838. Let us speak to one another with gentle, quiet words; then love for our neighbour will not fail us. Let us repay love with love, a kind word with a kind word; let us be faithful to these commandments and not walk our own narrow paths.

3839. Let us cast aside hatred, let us welcome gentleness into our hearts, let us place patience in our hands, and upon our foreheads let us fasten the faithfulness of Elah of Hosts.

3840. O you, guardians of the people, walk the paths of righteousness, give alms, repay kindness with kindness, bear the fruits of goodness and rejoice in them.

3841. Adopt an attitude of unwavering perseverance, bestow love upon others, harbour good intentions, and do not follow the paths of malice, anger, and hatred.

3842. Become holy, exemplary daughters and sons of God, full of gentleness, united in giving, full of selfless love and kindness.

3843. Love all people with a single language of kindness; take the Jew, the Muslim and the Christian as your companions.

3844. Show mercy to the suffering and the weak; be gentle towards the troubled, the afflicted and the sorrowful.

3845. Elah is the companion of our sufferings, and He alone will deliver us from the hands of the enemy.

3846. It is a heavenly commandment to show kindness to those who dwell in their homes.

3847. It is a heavenly commandment to bring the banner of peace into the home, not to forsake widows and orphans, and to provide for the needs of children, wives and elderly parents.

3848. To treat one another with respect, to show kindness and dignity to those who are wronged and in need of deliverance from the enemy.

3849. God forbid that we should fight against the unbelievers or pursue them in hatred; on the contrary, we are commanded to pray for their souls, that they may find the truth in God, the Only Saviour.

3850. May those who have hitherto been full of hatred, anger and rudeness detach themselves from the evil that rests upon them; may they discourage war, strife and discord; may they embrace gentleness, kindness and forbearance.

3851. May these saints of the highest enlightenment be gentle, kind and understanding towards every living being, and especially towards their neighbours and family.

3852. Song of Hope

He guides the ungodly so that the saved may be kind to the poor and hasten to proclaim the light, They spread His message; His boundaries shall be boundless,

Take diligent care of your salvation by giving alms, repaying justice with justice and kindness with kindness.

3853. Guard your hearts and do not follow the impure, who seek profit in their deeds and a place of mercy towards the poor.

3854. Song of Fasting

And even if you had no father or mother, and they themselves were your worst enemies, and you suffered greatly because of them, remember – you have a Father in heaven; He will not forsake you in your suffering.

3855. God has inscribed His holy commandment on the tablet of my heart:

This is the greatest of God's commandments – kindle the fire of equality where there is no equality, kindle the fire of love where injustice reigns, kindle the fire of discord where injustice reigns.

3856. So when you sit or celebrate, let there be equality amongst you; let women sit amongst men and men amongst women, then they shall become one.

3857. Verily, God is great in His declarations; He does not repeat words once spoken!

3858. Seek solace in Elah, that you may persevere in noble deeds, keeping your minds pure and your words blameless.

3859. God is unchanging in His forgiveness; He is the One and Only Elah who forgives transgressions, the One and Only who is the rock of salvation.

3860. Song of Majesty

Behold the holy precepts which the Merciful, Elah, has revealed.

3861. May the love of Elah endure for ever, for in His generosity lies the healing of the nations.

3862. Elah is One; He is the Leader of Wisdom.

3863. Come with a desire to do His mercy, come in search of the bond between parents and children, come and draw near to His majesty.

3864. Cast aside the idols that only deceive.

3865. Go to God, He is your Comforter, the Father of mercy and the Willing Forgiver.

3866. Wander through the mountains of Elah and do not indulge in debauchery; do not defile yourselves with falsehood.

3867. Spread love and reverence, that you may preserve brotherhood with all people.

3868. Do not put your hands into the recesses of impurity; on the contrary, let us all walk in the ways of Elah and rejoice in them.

3869. And whoever wishes to walk in His ways, professing this Scripture as the Word of God, should recite the 'Call to Peace' in the House of Prayer for All Nations.

3870. Nor should we despise the poor and their suffering.

3871. We must not mock them, nor mock Christians, Jews and Muslims, for they are our brothers.

3872. For the salvation of our souls, we must not walk the path of hatred, wrongdoing and intemperance.

3873. In all the books of Elah, it is forbidden to kill an innocent child in its mother's womb.

3874. Blessed is he who follows the path of non-harm, who weeps with the afflicted and lifts them from sorrow to joy.

3875. The path of those who are hostile towards one another is a path of bitterness, destruction and death.

3876. A wise person should not practise any form of magic, even if it were for the good of humanity.

3877. Otherwise, he serves not Elah and the Creator, but foreign gods.

3878. Do not be like Balaam of old, who advised a life of debauchery?

3879. A bad counsellor multiplies sins, whilst a counsellor full of wisdom brings relief, joy and blessing.

3880. Do not walk in the ways of the foolish, but take delight in doing good.

3881. Let us look for salvation in the God of our fathers; He will save every wicked person from death; He does not desire the death of the sinner.

3882. 1448 Those who defile the earth with murder, those murderers who do not swear under heaven that they will change their ways, should be punished with death.

3883. If those who have been found to be murderers in defensive combat suffer no punishment, because they were protecting their property and their people.

3884. It was said of Balaam that he was a sorcerer, and what is the punishment for murderers, sorcerers and witches after they have left their earthly bodies?

3885. If not darkness, then their wretched existence far from the presence of Almighty God.

3886. Sing, O people of God, the 'Song of Exaltation', to purify yourselves of all magic, of all the impurity of the souls of the giants.

3887. For they only summon impure thoughts, driving people to wicked deeds.

3888. If your soul is dear to you, do not utter spells, avoid gatherings at graves, and do not converse with the dead – all this is a loathsome curse to us.

3889. For those who keep themselves aloof from wicked deeds, who harm or murder no one, who neither steal nor lie, are holy to God and exalted above the angels.

3890. God's goodness accompanies those who do justice and preach righteous deeds to people.

3891. Do not be a miser on God's path, but willingly share what you have gathered and what you can give to the poor.

3892. In all the holy books, one is commanded to give alms and to do good to one's parents, for in these commandments all blessings and salvation are fulfilled.

3893. Those who do not give when they can act stingily; they are selfish, satisfying only their own appetites; they covet and hoard only for themselves – they are blinded by their pride, thereby harming the innocent as well.

3894. They are prone to recklessness, desiring only to satisfy their own needs; though outwardly they appear happy, deep down they become unhappy.

3895. They impose restrictions upon themselves, fail to develop their spirit, and pride and selfishness become their demon and curse.

3896. They are as self-centred as a vase climbing the tree of knowledge; they are proud, self-satisfied and self-absorbed, exuding greed and a curse.

3897. They crawl on their bellies like a vase, swallowing the dust of their own corruption.

3898. So do not follow the paths of selfishness.

3899. Wealth, however, is not a sin in the eyes of the Almighty Elah; he who becomes rich can more easily share good deeds and give alms.

3900. Therefore, share generously what you have with the poor, with those who have no roof over their heads, who are deprived of mercy, who bear the burdens of life – help all women, men and children.

3901. Therefore, mercy, nobility and the honour of Elah will be with us, bringing us merit and many blessings.

3902. For no enemy shall attack you, nor shall any harm or misfortune befall your home, if you provide for the poor what is due to them.

3903. O immerse yourselves in the commandments of Elah of heaven and earth, for you shall not fail in the life to come; all that is to come shall be fulfilled.

3904. Amidst life's trials, He purifies us of our sins; amidst suffering and immersion in torment, He draws us forth strong, hardened and exalted.

3905. Like a pair of inseparable lovers, we should love our wives and husbands, living in the utmost harmony and happiness.

3906. Because of our love for God, our actions must bear witness to His goodness; therefore, we should strengthen ourselves daily in righteous deeds.

3907. Therefore, the Sun of Mercy showers rays of grace and forgiveness upon those who desire, implore and ask for them.

3908. Send forth, then, doves of peace, as Noah did, and may the wondrous breeze carry the birds of the sky far to dry land, and not to sinners.

3909. They carry with them the harbingers of peace, giving life, so let not the peace that Elah will bring upon us in all our afflictions overwhelm you.

3910. The ravens were cast out of Noah's ark; they neither returned nor were sent back to their master; they did not follow the path of cooperation, but soared through the air, turning away from the right path of guidance and sinking into the mire of selfishness.

3911. O, appear, Holy Shekhinah, and drive out every unclean spirit.

3912. May the souls of the departed unite with the ray of life, may they walk the path of light upwards, may all the saints unite with the Shekhinah of Wisdom.

3913. And here is the punishment for the wicked – defiled, proud of their sins, they descend to the depths, they fall asleep in their sins, their soul is humbled, lifted up into darkness, separated from God Himself.

3914. Song of Songs

May She – the Shekhinah – lead us along the path of reconciliation, harmony and love.

3915. O Divine Shekhinah, protect all God's children and guide them along the path of wisdom and humility.

3916. But far be it from you to shame anyone because of their faults; the qualities that should distinguish you are purity of mind, words and deeds.

3917. Let there be no shame in this world, but compassion, and let this most precious quality, compassion, be evident in this world.

3918. Honour your mother, your father; love your children and protect them.

3919. Otherwise, the world would descend into chaos.

3920. When it comes to mutual recrimination, it is better to consider both sides, to examine both sides thoroughly, without criticising anyone excessively.

3921. Let the one who does evil be ashamed of his evil deeds, and let his evil deeds become known amongst righteous people.

3922. But those who are worthy, who are faithful to the word of Elah, do not seek glory nor spread a good reputation.

3923. Keep far away, too, from worshipping creatures, servants and prophets, as well as angels.

3924. For it has been revealed: draw near to God, O people and angels, and exalt Him alone.

3925. Instead of worshipping creatures or gods in place of God, cultivate that which is skilful and beneficial to the development of society.

3926. Develop that which is beneficial to you, and acquire wealth in such a way that no one is wronged.

3927. Others too should free their bodies, minds and words from the mundane; various carnal desires do not lead to liberation, but to enslavement.

3928. Ungrateful people are characterised by selfishness and a lack of honesty, even towards their own parents.

3929. A husband has a duty of love and devotion towards his wife, and a wife has the same duty towards her husband.

3930. Unkind husbands and wives fuel mutual disputes; their malice intensifies, they judge one another, and their discernment in love fades.

3931. Cultivate your virtuous qualities so as to build up, not tear down, the foundations of the family.

3932. We must reject stinginess in favour of generosity, and we must reject selfishness in favour of selfless love, both within the family and between spouses.

3933. Luqman's good advice is to follow the path of humility, avoid pride, and cultivate patience and trust in Allah. Distinguish yourself through humility, for this world, like the deep sea, swallows up and drowns many who are wise in their thinking.

3934. Build your ship wisely, with deep respect for God and His word.

3935. The cargo you gather on the ship is faith; let trust in God be at the helm, and the Holy Spirit the ship's driving force.

3936. Let the mind act as the captain, and let the Words of Kindness serve as the compass pointing the way.

3937. In homage to Elah, one should devote one's strength, resources and time to showing respect to one's elderly parents.

3938. This is the path of humility, of cultivating patience and rejecting pride.

3939. It is fitting that every righteous son and daughter should repay with kindness the proper treatment of parents who did not follow the path of pride, but were patient and showed love to their children in word and deed.

3940. Parents who have not mistreated their children deserve respect, so teach your children to respect anyone who does them a good turn.

3941. A mother or father who truly loves can sense the slightest signs that their child is in distress; such compassionate parents deserve the best treatment and the highest respect.

3942. However, love should not be weighed on the scales against one's parents; if they have avoided hurting their children, they deserve respect.

3943. As for sensuality, it is ruinous; anyone can be enchanted by it and become entangled in its web.

3944. As for friendship, let it flourish; let peaceful relations be established between families, and subsequently between nations.

3945. Teach families, then, so that all their members may live in mutual friendship, greet one another and be kind to one another.

3946. So exchange greetings of friendship and kindness with those people who are worthy of them.

3947. As for becoming entrenched in sensuality, it is necessary to uproot the weeds of sin; indulging in it brings not happiness, but disappointment.

3948. The same bondage is achieved by becoming entrenched in greed, seeking hostility and harming one's neighbour.

3949. As for the seeker, show him the right path, that he may rest in the embrace of Elah.

3950. Let not darkness overtake him, lest he be lost, but show him the path of righteousness, and give him the lamp of nobility.

3951. Incline your ear and hear the cries of the poor and the needy, and Elah will surely not leave you in need.

3952. May the heart burning with the fire of selfless love not be extinguished within us, and may we be devoted to helping everyone, even our enemies.

3953. Let gratitude flow from our hearts through appropriate words and deeds.

3954. Remember that your salvation lies in helping others, in supplicating to Elah, and in not harming the innocent.

3955. It is true that merely reading stories from books is useless unless they are taught correctly and symbolically.

3956. O people, if you have read all your holy books countless times, and yet still hate the servants of God – you are far from the beauty of the Truth.

3957. Those who thus cling to hatred towards the People of the Book lead themselves into the fire of hatred, and upon leaving this body, they are consumed by anger and hatred.

3958. Hatred is therefore destructive.

3959. The voice of God always advocates peace; He commends the fact that He is One; He also commends the law so that peace may reign amongst the nations.

3960. Therefore, do not harm any human being, whether yet unborn or already living.

3961. God speaks with the voice of life, and He Himself is life.

3962. Therefore, do not deprive humanity of the source of life, happiness and peace.

3963. Where peace, happiness and life reign, there Elah reigns and exercises His authority.

3964. O friends of Elah – Christians, Muslims and Jews – show no pride, but become fertile soil, nurturing the garden of roses that is your virtues.

3965. Elah gathered in the midst of the rose garden pure, white roses, extolling His Oneness and His Indivisibility.

3966. He planted roses of a noble hue, extolling tolerance and friendship.

3967. He planted roses of truthfulness, whose fragrance evokes the presence of the Holy Bird of Heaven.

3968. Let us therefore tend roses of various colours, roses of Unity and Indivisibility, roses of Tolerance and Friendship, roses with the wonderful fragrance of the Messenger's 'Ten Words'.

3969. And in the centre of the garden, Elah planted a remarkable rose, embodying the noble virtue of helping the poor.

3970. Help to feed the poor, and God will feed you; He is the Great Giver and Elah of alms.

3971. Did not Elah Himself declare – salvation shall be granted to you, and you shall be forgiven, because you support the poorest?

3972. Elah speaks to you with great signs; walk through the rose garden and tend the noble roses planted by Elah of Unity.

3973. Walk through it and water them with love, and Elah will see this and nourish them with the rays of the Spirit of God.

72 Elders

O, convene the council of the 72 elders as witnesses, that they may impose prohibitions upon the sinners from whom forgiveness of sins is expected.

3975. May God forbid cursing,

May God forbid debauchery,

May Heaven forbid the neglect of hand-washing,

May Heaven forbid the defamation of the name of Elah,

May God forbid the rejection of the counsel and pronouncements of the seventy elders.

3976. May God forbid that they should despise Jews, Muslims, Christians and all pagans.

3977. May God forbid that they should violate the laws of love for man and God.

3978. Extinguish stubbornness, extinguish sin within your being, and you shall rejoice in your light through the light of Elah.

3979. Elah's generosity is better than vengeance; Elah's love is better than unquenched anger.

3980. Such is the eternal order – love prevails over anger, grace prevails over vengeance.

3981. He exalts those who are humbled in sorrow.

3982. And the sorrowful are those who rely most on God's grace, those who place their trust in their virtues.

3983. Oh, let us, as the sorrowful, cling to the hem of God's garment; let us walk in pure speech; let there be no desire for strife within us; on the contrary, let us be at peace with all.

3984. We must not speak untruths about our neighbours, be they Jews, Christians or Muslims.

3985. Let us adorn ourselves with jewels of every value; let us not be like dogs that bark, but like dogs full of humility, whose friendship is returned in kind.

3986. Of course, any neglect is contempt for God and society.

3987. Neglect towards children, towards wives and towards yourselves must not be present or tolerated amongst you.

3988. With God there is no difference between the sexes; God has made them equal.

3989. Therefore, He delights in women's adornments, just as He delights in the splendour of men's attire.

3990. The requirement for modesty arises where there is a lack of love for Elah, where fanaticism takes the place of the soul's modesty.

3991. Let love for Elah be reflected in the kindness of the soul, in brotherhood and mutual friendship, so that you may call the House of Prayer for all nations – it is a court of delight, a house of beauty, grace and light.

3992. O children of God, do not rebel against the law of love for Elah and love for one's neighbour.

3993. Let us cry out in love for the forgiveness of our sins, and then the soul will cry out with joy – behold, I am pure!

3994. So replied the poet: I shall weep out of love and I shall sigh; life has blossomed around this one love; thanks to it, the soul may sing joyfully, or I may remain alive for love's sake

Elah is the God of just punishment, not of eternal wrath.

3995. What use is a sinner without a hand to Him? What use is an adulterer stoned to death to Him?

3996. God has reciprocated us with free will; mercy is dearer to Him than punishment; mercy is better than vengeance.

3997. The prophet Ezekiel put it this way: 'Do I take pleasure in the death of the wicked?

3998. – declares the Almighty Elah.

3999. 'Am I not pleased when they turn away from their ways and live?'

4000. God is just to the core; He commands that murderers who commit this act be deliberately put to death, declaring: 'You shall remove evil from among you'.

4001. Likewise, the shedding of blood is neither a solution nor a response to the Father's love.

4002. God is a Father, not an avenger seeking vengeance.

4003. Moses did not permit the cutting off of hands, but rather the payment for the stolen item or 'beating to death', which later evolved into imprisonment.

4004. God's law therefore does not permit vengeance or the death penalty for theft, but commands mercy and forgiveness in the form of the return of stolen property.

4005. The law of restitution is the best solution for someone who has stolen something out of poverty, hunger or lack of judgement.

4006. Did the Israelites plunder other nations, and did God the Father not punish them because they were hungry?

4007. God is just and judges justly; He is not a Creator who seeks vengeance.

4008. God's promise is to punish here on earth all those who break His law: 'Do not say, "I will do to them as they have done to me; I will repay them for what they have done."'

4009. And here are the steps leading to the forgiveness of sins – let him who has a contrite soul 'descend to the earth', let him clothe himself in 'sorrowful' repentance, let him call upon Elah as a witness; in Elah's promise, the contrite shall ascend with love to the heaven of forgiveness.

4010. O people of God, do not read the Book of the Father with a fanatical eye; in doing so, you fail to distinguish violence from justice.

4011. The cutting off of hands, stoning and killing without witnesses is the result of the barbarism attributed to the prophets of the Tanakh, which they did not utter, but which the scribes, in their folly, added.

4012. Elah was hidden from the eyes of those who longed to know Him, but He does not wear a veil before those who sin; He sees, He shall see, and He shall put them to shame.

4013. Nor should you worry about your wealth and the accumulation of goods, for both will be consumed.

4014. By clinging to money, you will surely bring suffering upon yourselves, and anger and strife will grow among those who claim to be the sons of God.

4015. God has cut off the wicked from their wealth; let His name therefore be exalted.

4016. Elah took this property of his and commanded that it be distributed among the poor as a share in salvation for the righteous.

4017. Polish away the arrows of Satan, remove all evil from your conscience, and call sins a deadly poison.

4018. God sees, and not through a veil; He sees goodness and records its righteousness in the heavenly books.

4019. Therefore, you shall be saved by the good you accumulate within yourself; if you are good, rely on all your good deeds.

4020. Even if a believer does not renounce wickedness and does not reach for goodness, he makes himself unclean in the eyes of God.

4021. Do you attain salvation through giving alms and doing good to your neighbour?

4022. Verily!

4023. Why do you rob God, you Christian shepherds, and take the tithe for yourselves; are you priests of God to do so?

4024. On the contrary!

4025. O God, put an end to these disputes!

4026. There are many disputes between Shiites and Sunnis, Protestants and Catholics, Jews and Christians; endless fighting is not the solution.

4027. Let us love all people with one language of love; let us treat them as brothers and sisters.

4028. He, God, is the One King

O parents, calm your children, soothe them with your tenderness and do not provoke them to anger.

4029. Let parents, just like teachers, strive to meet their children's needs.

4030. Let your children not follow the path of error, but let them support their parents in their duties.

4031. Chastise your children with words, not with the hand of discipline, and recognise your own faults in your parental severity.

4032. Teach your children love and the practice of all virtues; dedicate them to Elah and make them His servants.

4033. Oh, teach your children what is just, and the child will not chase after dust if they cling to your understanding, your comfort and your everyday conversation.

4034. Concerning the duties of parents.

4035. It is the duty of parents to prepare every child to be useful to society, so that children may turn their hearts towards their parents with joy, and so that children may serve their parents out of love, not out of fear or duty.

4036. Let the mother be honoured, just as the father is, provided they themselves lead a righteous life and do no harm to anyone.

4037. Let them not withhold love and care from their children or their parents when they are defenceless.

4038. In God's eyes, origin matters not: those who heed God's voice and worship the One God are called from among the people of Israel, and for them the land is rich and beautiful.

4039. Therefore, the answer is this: everyone who acknowledges God as the One and Only and is clothed in the law of mutual love belongs to the congregation of Israel

How much evil have human hearts wrought, and how much good can transformed hearts do?

4040. Let us not, then, say: 'Let us not hate our brother; on the contrary, may Elah clothe us in garments of holiness, and may His Shekhinah lead us before His face and sanctify us'.

In foolishness God revealed wisdom, and in the wisdom of the world God revealed passing misery.

4041. For in the wisdom of this world, instead of humility there is pride, and instead of mercy there is violence and severity.

4042. For it is God's folly to forsake mercy and almsgiving in favour of stinginess; the avoidance of cooperation and contempt for brotherhood are manifestations of spiritual darkness.

4043. Work upon yourselves in the areas of proper speech, proper action and proper thought.

4044. Do not disappoint your Elah, for He is God and your King.

4045. Let us also be patient with everyone, if possible.

4046. Understand that the way of Elah and our King is the way of tolerance, not the way of seeking hatred, as Moses and all the prophets after him taught.

4047. When it comes to expressing divine love, let us show respect for every human being, whether man or woman, black or white, of higher or lower social standing.

4048. 'The House of Song' – in the future, the 'new heavens and earth' will become a renewed paradise, where people all over the world will never again take up arms to kill one another.

4049. The 'House of Song', 'heaven', may become our earth; therefore, we must strive with all our might to improve conditions on earth, so that future generations may live in paradise on earth, enjoying splendid conditions, living together in peace and harmony.

4050. He bestows upon believers a spirit purified of earthly passions, malice, lust and pride.

4051. He sustains the faith so that everyone may give their all and that everyone may persevere in Elah, the Most High.

4052. He has commanded us to await the Anointed One, who will reconcile the warring nations, to adorn the earth with paradise, to transform the world into a cultivated field rather than a battlefield. Let us go, then; we must forsake all the pleasures of this world to unite with Umil Shakinah, to open her gate.

4053. For it has long been prophesied that 'the true garden of the universal soul' will be revealed in human hearts, for one faith, one Elah, shall reign upon the earth.

4054. My God, my Beloved, in the essence of Your joy I may immerse myself, worship You and worship my soul.

4055. And the nations that do not rise up against Jerusalem will say: where I love victory, there is our Elah.

4056. My Elah triumphs through love, reconciliation and harmony.

4057. So they will say: 'Let us lay our weapons in the dust and burn them; let the fire consume all weapons and all discord'.

4058. My friend – we can do much good on earth, alleviate the suffering of the innocent.

4059. Their Temple, the Heavenly Presence, will tear down the walls of separation, uproot the cracks of hatred, and cleanse the earth of wars,
Behold the Torah of forgiveness, compassion, and reconciliation among nations, so that they may respond – our battlefield has turned into a field of cultivation,
For the Torah of harmony, reconciliation and peace stands at your door,
May the fire of God's love embrace all who believe in me,
May my love abide in you; share my compassion with everyone.

4060. You too have the right to choose the path that suits you best; being whoever you wish and being a follower of the Book of the Mother are one and the same.

4061. Being one in God and being a follower of these Scriptures is not contradictory.

4062. For in the one, the prophecies and covenants contained in the other are fulfilled.

4063. Today, in these human forms, we stand on the threshold of the New Era, the World that will come after great chaos and a great war.

4064. Great chaos and a great war.

4065. God is not the Elah who preaches fear, but the Elah who preaches
Unity, Brotherhood and the Law of Mercy over Vengeance.

4066. The Word of Elah forbids hatred, spewing venom, and calling anyone a dog because of their faith or lack thereof in God.

4067. We are children of light, and our Elah is the God of the bearers of light, who carry the torches of wisdom.

Faith and Deeds

4068.
In truth, it is only through faith in God and His love that one can be saved; no rituals, excessive piety, or adherence to the letter of the law can save a person.

4069. God is one, and His name remains one, and the expression of love for one's neighbour is the essence of faithfulness to God.

4070. The accumulation of merits is the basis of people's attachment to religion, not of drawing them to Allah.

4071. Threats, force, coercion and mockery of both fellow believers and non-believers are forbidden.

4072. The Merciful Elah enters through the door of freedom and dwells amongst those who, under no circumstances, resort to threats, force or coercion.

4073. A follower of Elah should not judge, oppress or direct another follower, for Elah Himself is our judge.

4074. It is also forbidden to reveal one's personal sins to a clergyman, for Elah is our saviour, not man.

4075. Ask questions so that you may discern the precious pearls in these Scriptures, so that you may rise above the darkness of this world, so that the Radiant Elah may bestow wisdom upon you.

4076. These are the successors of the Gate, who observe His commandments and abide by them; these are the successors – all believers, not just the chosen ones.

4077. Let every enslaved woman break the chains of bondage; every woman is a saint if she fights for the free rights of her fellow human beings.

4078. Holy martyrs for freedom demonstrate their courage in lands of oppression and enslavement, in lands of fanaticism and hatred of free will.

4079. God created people so that they might choose; one must not impose one's will and commands on anyone, for God does not want slaves!

4080. We must give up the pursuit of human exaltation.

4081. The search for a Messiah of power will bear fruit, but a flesh-and-blood Messiah is fruitless;

it threatens schisms and the emergence of mutual hatred. Look at the sects within Judaism, Christianity and Islam, all of which sought only to exalt man; they have all fallen. All of them also focused on seeking and worshipping messiahs instead of God; they have become the most sectarian, provoking wars and fuelling mutual hatred.

4082. To what end – merely to reap the harvest of division?

4083. Perhaps also to satisfy their selfish egos, these people proclaimed themselves ‘Messiahs’?

4084. God is wiser than all this; they are doomed to destruction, and the fact that they persist in their obstinacy proves that God does not guide them, but that in their writings and clouded minds it is their own self that speaks.

4085. In many parts of the world there are madmen who claim to be ‘the Light for others’, but they will not be the ultimate Arm of Elah.

4086. On the path of Elah, life is more precious than sacrifice; the Benevolent Elah knows best who you are and whom you are sacrificing, so lying to Him in the face of danger or the death penalty at the hands of Muslims is not a lie, it is saving a life, which is more precious; so what is the point of a dead martyr?

4087. Drink and be filled with faithfulness to Elah; do not get drunk on falsehood.

4088. Drink from the cup of love and get drunk; those who have attained their illusory salvation through martyrdom are intoxicated; martyrs are the guides of the blind, for they gather only fire and misfortune.

4089. But drink from the cup of love, that is, faithfulness to Elah; a lie for safety is necessary for survival, necessary to give life to your children.

4090. Those who walk and taste the path of forced martyrdom taste the bitter ashes of their deeds.

4091. Neglecting one’s children, one’s families, is akin to those who regard martyrdom for God—which is death—as beauty.

4092. Let the whole body come to Elah to bow down before the Holy One; He is no liar; He judges liars in righteousness.

4093,98

Yet by lying for Elah and saving lives, you may live for Elah and for your families.

4094. For without you I have no peace; only in Elah can you find solace in your torment; only His Love and profound forgiveness can you find in His Fatherly Heart.

4095. We can joyfully abandon fanaticism, forced martyrdom and all hatred in favour of joyful communion with God; then our light will also touch Muslims, Christians and Jews – all will long for His presence amongst us, for the Shekinah, that is, the presence of God, will be amongst us.

4096. The spirit of forgiveness of sins and the spirit of harmony will be with us wherever we go.

4097. We stand at the gates of God, journeying to the paradise of His Oneness, ascending steps like Jacob’s ladder, bearing witness to our purity before those with whom we live and with whom we have grown close.

4098. Serving our neighbours is like travelling the path to You, to Elah and His heavenly paradise, which is to be revealed here on earth, in our earthly dwellings, where people of all races live, both men and women.

4099. When the heart feels no love for the Jewish people, when suffering is of no concern to it, the prayers and rituals of Elah are of no use to it.

4100. Man cannot earn his salvation on his own, but he may seek God’s grace, he may seek His forgiveness, and in God and His Love he is able to overcome every sin.

4101. You, O God, open the eyes of the blind; may Your eyes and Your souls be filled with love, and the whole world too.

4102. If anyone has sought to exalt themselves, they have lost themselves.

4103. Likewise, if anyone claims to be ‘God incarnate’, they punish themselves mercilessly; they have lost God’s love, and their pride and conceit follow them.

4104. A true believer in the One God, in divine love, will lose all pride; he will not curse God, nor will he seek love for himself; on the contrary, a true worshipper of God will seek to exalt God, and will also seek to be a humble servant, humbly serving his neighbours.

4105. Standing at the threshold of the great Benefactor's door, do not leave His door, do not walk away into oblivion.

4106. Let us not be afraid to admit that God loves us sincerely, and that we can bestow upon Him the love of righteous deeds.

4107. Therefore, we should not reject God; let us say: You are my wealth and my treasure.

4108. We must model ourselves on brotherly love; we must live according to the example of the Gate, our Master.

4109. We must take His teachings as a model to follow in our lives.

4110. May our conduct, our convictions and our ideas follow in the footsteps of the Gate – her and his humility, love and brotherhood towards all people.

4111. My tongue professes love for my own children, for this brings us closer to the work of the Most Holy.

4112. Divine love rises above all joy; this is how we should speak of true love.

4113. .

4114. Similarly, if we focus our love on the 'Sun of Righteousness', which is God Himself, all blessings will surely manifest in our lives.

4115. Likewise, if we turn away from the 'Sun of Truth', which is God, deny His existence and renounce Him, none of His blessings will reach us; we shall become vague beings, without hope, without an anchor, drifting on the stormy sea of hopelessness, sorrow and bitterness.

4116. For yourselves, your neighbours and your relatives, do as much good as possible before the time of reckoning comes.

4117. If the star of brotherly love rises between husband and wife, how much more love ought to be shown to their children?

4118. Husbands, wives and their children should be taught to guard against selfishness; human nature should be calmed, like a stormy sea, by the wonderful, gentle breeze of harmony, love and understanding from those close to them.

4119. In the Kingdom of God here on earth, let there be complete equality between these two phrases: both the 'true man' and the woman need love; both are united by bonds of trust, mercy and mutual non-harm.

4120. Joy, happiness and harmony stand at their threshold, whilst misfortune, disputes and conflicts are cast out.

4121. The key to their happiness is mutual obedience, not the pursuit of violence.

4122. Their selfless service to one another is a sign of their true devotion and love for one another.

4123. Their faith does not rest solely on God; they seek hope in one another, readily bringing joy to each other with compassion and tender words.

4124. A wife and husband are not meant to hurt one another; their trust and love grow as they build lasting bonds free from hurt, selfishness and the search for fault in one another.

4125. Mutual misunderstandings and turmoil in marriage must not lead to a hasty divorce.

4126. Only violence against a wife, intended to save her, may lead to divorce from her husband.

4127. Violence, whether short-lived or long-lasting, is abuse, and both forms must be stopped.

4128. Let the abused wife therefore break the chains of her bondage and not learn to submit to a tyrant.

4129. Let husband and wife treat one another with love, without mutual insults, kindly, sharing one another's burdens.

4130. Let them also understand each other's feelings and mistakes, and let them not harbour resentment towards one another.

4131. May their love grow rather than wane; may they not make false accusations; may they become friends; may they harbour no resentment towards one another; may their feelings remain noble and their conversations honest.

4132. Let humiliation, hatred and bitterness not enter the homes in which they live.

4133. May all husbands and wives drink from the cup of love, from the cup of understanding, and from the cup of reconciliation.

4134. Let spouses, both husband and wife, cast aside from the cup of desire all selfishness, all misunderstandings, all estrangement of feelings.

4135. May Elah grant you hearts that
Elah grant you hearts that are tender, full of compassion, mercy and reconciliation.

4136. If you do not cast aside lust?

4137. This desire is all manner of selfishness, all worldliness and indulgence of oneself, rather than of one's beloved.

4138. Just as the arrow of your love can pierce a hollow stone, so the stony heart of the egoist may be transformed into a willing, joyful giver, whose heart overflows with love and mercy, who gladly bestows upon the poor, the near and the dear, yet leaves nothing for his neighbour.

4139. O sweet fragrance, this Torah, these principles have already been revealed.

4140. Comfort may flow from the peace of the soul when love endures between husband and wife.

4141. Likewise, all comfort will flow if you share these principles and observe them, out of love for your God and the Saviour of mankind.

4142. This love, too great for the world, is poison.

4143. Love for the world is nothing other than the pursuit of wealth for one's own ruin.

4144. This transient food and clothing is a pursuit of pleasure in transitory things.

4145. Yet wealth in itself is not evil; the pursuit of pleasure in the exaltation of wealth and man-made things defiles this world, destroys its foundations, and brings bitterness and suffering to the oppressed.

4146. Examine the Words of God and His discernment.

4147. The same applies to the verses of the Torah; after the revelation of the Prophet Moses, their scholars did not possess much discernment regarding these books, except for those who later developed His Scriptures.

4148. So it is with these Scriptures: everything that has developed within them, in every exalted quality, in every hidden aspect of knowledge, in every branch of truth, need only have sprung from the horizon of these Scriptures to become abundant, and the books of these scholars have borne fruit for the Jewels.

4149. May the arrow of love pierce all hearts; may stony hearts be transformed into joyful ones.

4150. Behold, the Kingdom of God is to come among us; let it arise, let the voice of the Gate reach the ends of the heavens.

4151. A song in praise of God
The Divine Star of brotherhood, mercy and unity has shone here with great splendour
Yet no one has taken it upon themselves to follow the guidance of the Most Pure Star.

4152. Let us not despise the divine qualities of the Gate, nor his love and devotion to spreading reconciliation, brotherhood and selfless love.

4153. The divine breath of the 72 Heavenly Virgins inspired these writings, so that Gate replied – is there no God on earth that you profane His name by defacing the faces of women, who were created equal to men?

4154. You profane the name of God if you make a distinction between man and woman.

4155. But God created in the beginning a pair of twins, equal in all their rights, occupations and all their deeds in relation to His Holy Name.

4156. The Song of the Exaltation of the Almighty
They have also replaced the Sabbaths that burden you with days of holiness chosen by you.

4157. We follow the love of God, not a chosen day; we do not observe the Sabbath, nor Friday, nor Sunday, but does Elah make these days holy?

4158. Let us not worship just one day, O sons of men, when you turn to the Most Worthy of Worship.

4159. He is your rest, and the radiance of sanctification flows upon you in great streams.

4160. For the life of the Gate – has been given before the Almighty, to recognise that the Sabbath is a day of rest, to establish a relationship with the merciful God on any day.

4161. God enlightens, strengthens and sanctifies everyone who desires a relationship with Him.

4162. For the life of the Self – it is recognised that God is the Sabbath, and in Him we rest every day.

4163. He is our Way of Mercy; He is also our Way to perfection, and our Way to knowing God and His attributes, the Yazats.

4164. May He gather the saints from the most diverse lands; may they praise Elah with one heart; may they become one spirit, one heart, full of brotherly love and far from seeking hatred.

4165. A look at the present – lofty words, the words of Sufi poets, the lofty verses of the Bible guiding us towards selfless love, are to be inscribed amongst us.

4166. Like a pen in the hand of a writer, we ourselves write our lives, our thoughts; they influence our actions.

4167. And they bear fruit, because our ears and eyes have ceased to show love for our neighbour and love for God.

4168. He surpasses Elah; a sacrifice for sorrows is unacceptable to Him; He desires deeds of kindness,
 He serves humanity; His mercy does not hide behind His divisions,
 He does not oppress, but liberates every creature from bondage,
 He has made all humanity His friends and brought His enemies to reconciliation.

4169. The rich hide their wealth from Him, and those who refuse to help the greedy are punished with the severest curse.

4170. Elah will spare those who care for the poor, care for the needy, and for those who are bound and suffer because of life.

4171. He curses those who commit injustice on earth, do not share their wealth whilst they live, and do not reach out for help.

4172. The Song of the Family
 O people who love only God, To love your child, your wife, you must understand yourselves.

4173. The source of all human turmoil and self-destruction is a lack of knowledge, a lack of understanding of the reasons why you walk in darkness.

4174. The darkness within a person is their inner selfishness, their egocentric nature.

4175. A person who is preoccupied solely with themselves is not mature enough to raise children.

4176. A father should be caring; he should be familiar with his child's environment and understand the child's needs.

4177. For in the darkness of selfishness lies a failure to appreciate parents, elders, and children themselves.

4178. People die spiritually due to a lack of knowledge; they are spiritually unaware due to ignorance; they experience distraction and anger during family difficulties.

4179. But this anger should not be directed at children, wives, or oneself; similarly, wives should restrain excessive anger.

4180. Keep your eyes wide open and your ears ready to listen.

4181. Father and mother should maintain a relationship with their children, meet their needs, and protect them from adversity.

4182. Elah created the heavens and the stars; so, as parents, they create a new environment – a heaven for their offspring, the stars being the dwelling place of His Holy Spirit.

4183. We should clothe our children in the virtues of the Holy Spirit, just as Elah exalts the stars in the heavens.

4184. Just as the Father in heaven cares for His creatures, so parents should care for the spiritual, social and intellectual development of their children.

4185. Elah made a pair of twins the first humans, and similarly, within the family there is a need for husband and wife to cooperate in raising their children, just as Adam and Eve did in Paradise.

4186. Spouses are equal; to the wife, the husband is a guardian, and to the husband, the wife is an advisor.

4187. The question is crucial – what should be done when the basis of equality between husband and wife is violated and undermined?

4188. What should a righteous person do in such circumstances?

4189. There is confusion in these relationships: how is the husband to become a protector and the wife an advisor?

4190. When the husband's authority over the wife or the wife's authority over the husband prevails, the eternal balance is disrupted.

4191. Because of the lack of balance in marriage, they themselves suffer, their children suffer, and the whole nation is shaken.

4192. Husbands, instead of loving their wives selflessly, are like selfish and dissolute children – such behaviour should be avoided.

4193. Similarly, wives who demand excessive attention from their husbands are unwilling to cooperate – such behaviour must also be avoided.

4194. Such a marriage lacks heavenly foundations; it is fragile and wavers under the influence of momentary disturbances.

4195. Similarly, when a husband's behaviour is fruitless, childish and reckless – a wise wife should seek help and all manner of advice.

4196. A mother and father should lead a life that enriches, rather than impoverishes, themselves and their children emotionally.

4197. Husband and wife should treat one another with respect, gently correcting each other's mistakes and admonishing one another in a kind tone.

4198. The healing power of a father's and mother's love should be expressed in gentle admonitions directed at their children.

4199. Instead of imposing conditions on children, we should listen to them – explain the right path to them, and they themselves should choose the right path with our support.

4200. I hope this advice has provided you with some clarity.

4201. Amen

Let hostility disappear

Let hostility vanish from your lips,

Wicked are those who speak of their god as 'the God of hostility'.

4202. Offer a humble prayer to Elah, who knows no hatred.

4203. His presence strengthens the mind, so that the saints adopt the golden rule every day, saying: do not do to anyone what you would not want done to yourself; we pledge to love our neighbours as ourselves, in body and spirit.

4204. He does not raise his hand against the innocent,

He does not command the burning of wives,

He does not command the rape of women

He does not command the killing of women in the name of honour.

4205. He does not command the abandonment of a pregnant woman in need.

4206. He does not command the imposition of polygamy

He does not command the use of coercive violence

God's message is to bring peace and the words of truth from Moses and the Gate to the pagans, and then they will gather into one group and no Christian will hate a Jew, nor will any Jew hate a Christian, for all things shall pass away and there shall be neither Jews, nor Christians, nor Muslims on earth, but One Faith in God.

4207. A new Torah shall be written, the law of peace and unity.

4208. God's love will encompass all people; no brother will hate his brother; no one will take up arms for war; even animals will live together in love.

4209. God is my witness that I must do my utmost to make the earth a paradise, so that present and future generations may grow up in mutual love, friendship and cooperation.

4210. Improving this world is part of heavenly generosity; it is a heavenly duty through which the earth draws nearer to heaven, to make the earth holier than the heavens of heavens.

4211. He does not command the burning of wives,

Even today, heinous crimes occur; people murder their own children, and in Idnai there are similar cases of burning living wives – when the husband has passed into the afterlife.

4212. Every manifestation of hatred is like the murder of the soul; similarly, every act of physical killing destroys the divine order bestowed upon every human being.

4213. By killing God's gift, the murderer deprives himself of his divine attributes, separates himself from God by a veil, and finds himself in the darkness of his own selfishness, anger and hatred.

4214. He does not command the rape of women

The rape of a woman is nothing other than the killing of her soul; her body suffers, and her soul is far from joy.

4215. The sadness cannot be wiped from her face, because she was made to do something she did not want to do, and her right to choose was not respected.

4216. One must not abuse her respect and her good name.

4217. It does not prescribe the killing of women in the name of honour,

The custom of killing women or men in the name of the supposedly holy scriptures of Islam still exists in many Islamic countries.

4218. God reserves 'wrath' or punishment for Himself; people should not take the place of the Almighty Judge, otherwise they themselves become judges.

4219. Killing anyone in the name of cruel customs should never take place.

4220. He does not command that a pregnant woman in need be abandoned;

For humanity to thrive, it is essential to uphold women's rights; without them, humanity would cease to exist.

4221. Similarly, when men's rights are secured, evil customs will surely be eliminated, just as when lasting equality between men and women is upheld.

4222. If they respect one another and live in friendship, Elah will surely open the gates of heaven to bless them generously.

4223. A woman should expect her husband to take full take care of her during pregnancy, for Elah is a caring provider.

4224. He does not command compulsory polygamy

It must be acknowledged that in the past, Elah allowed saints and prophets to have more than one wife.

4225. However, their choices—human choices—should not be abused.

4226. According to these Scriptures, one should have only two wives, and when one dies, one may take another.

4227. He does not advocate the use of force

We should seek precious pearls in every person, and then the pearls discovered will surely bring good to humanity.

4228. Violence, hatred and discontent should be removed from the Gospel and the Quran.

4229. Then the New Torah will surely be revealed; the divine breeze of the Shekhinah will envelop all people in its warm love; everyone will call one another brothers and sisters, and they will dance in a single circle of friendship.

4230. It commands that refugees in need should not be abandoned.

4231. And if you were to meet Elah only as a helper, He would certainly not be a refugee.

4232. By virtue of the right of asylum and the respect due to people from the mountain, they are entitled to care and all manner of assistance, provided they themselves wish to live in peace.

4233. However, anyone who is spiritually exhausted, especially those who are refugees and have no means of support due to wars, should be helped and welcomed.

4234. This is not a commandment or a duty, but a command based on love.

With God there are no divisions

4235.

There are no divisions with God; Elah is the God of all; with Him there are no Jews, Christians or Muslims.

4236. We should worship only one God; we are the children of all these paths – Jews, Christians and Muslims.

4237. Let us consider the issue of the non-existent ‘reincarnation of souls’ – in the ‘Book of Books’ there is no mention that such a thing takes place; even if people were to ask for such things to happen, it is a figment of their minds – an illusion.

4238. The same applies to Christian prophecies; Christians await the imminent ‘return of Jesus on the clouds’, but Jesus is dead and will return to atone for his sins.

4239. Similarly, John believed the earth was flat, hence the mention in his Apocalypse of the ‘four corners of the earth’ – he believed the earth was flat, but Elah made the earth a sphere.

4240. Christians believe in fairy tales, just as Muslims teach fairy tales, but we must strive earnestly for the truth, not for pleasing people.

4241. Many faiths and religions emphasise the importance of ‘cause and effect’; they all recognise the same relationship, and God works to a greater or lesser extent through all of them.

4242. Faith in God grows like a tree.

4243. The word of Moses was the seed of the tree, the word of David – the sapling of the tree, and the word of Isaiah – the flower of the divine tree.

4244. Faith in God bears abundant fruit from the tree of knowledge of God and His purposes.

4245. It may be said – in accordance with what all the prophets of past centuries proclaimed – that ‘we sow and reap’ from our lives either a bountiful harvest or weeds.

4246. Good deeds do not fulfil God’s whims; they are an expression of love for humanity and a concern for Unity with the Most High.

4247. Faith can be accepted and nurtured, but only through faith in the Undivided God, accepted by faith, do we receive a second chance of ‘grace’; through this, we unite with Him and become His spiritual heirs.

4248. We should teach humanity the truth – love – and not fairy tales, stories and human traditions.

4249. The Gospel is an example of such a fairy tale.

4250. Let us engrave in our minds the prohibition against worshipping a human being or exalting any Name, and the commandment to worship only the One God and no one besides Him.

4251. I do not recognise Jesus as God, I do not pray to saints, I do not consent to my soul worshipping any God other than His Name.

4252. My love is bound solely to Elah d-Kayvan, the Elah of the whole world, who receives me before His throne with open arms.

4253. He, Elah, is my Protector; there are no intermediaries.

4254. He has no son, has made no vow, and has taken no wife.

4255. Turn, all of you, towards the Oneness of God, He who has no intermediaries, Elah, who is neither born nor dies.

4256. Jews, Christians and Muslims say: ‘We have clergy; is God not the sole ruler?’

4257. Why do we need a clergyman as a saint?

4258. Elah is our holiness; there is nothing holier than Him.

4259. Is there no distinction whatsoever in Elah?

4260. He has made all people equal – there is no difference between people or their appearance; those who call upon His name are holy, they stand out among mortals.

4261. Elah did not divide people; rather, people divided themselves and created enemies – on the basis of origin, race and skin colour.

4262. Even today, all manner of inequalities exist – gender inequality, racial inequality, inequality based on origin.

4263. We should oppose all intolerance, all immorality, all violations of the laws of justice.

4264. What is Divine Revelation, if not the manifestation of divine attributes in God’s messengers?

4265. There is nothing divine in the prophets; despite their greatness, they are not God, nor are they His equals.

4266. Nor are they intermediaries to Elah; He alone suffices for all.

4267. He has been Elah from time immemorial; this has captivated my mind, to worship His Name and exalt Him alone.

4268. He does not incarnate in an infinite number of souls; He is not a human being, but the Eternal Spirit.

4269. And though people claim otherwise and have incarnated as humans, animals or angels, they have all made God a stumbling block.

4270. Have they all made God a lawbreaker?

4271. God does not alter His Word once established; Elah does not break His Ten Words – never.

4272. Do they not make you a fruitless sacrifice if they pray to idols, if they pray to statues?

4273. If they pray to those possessed by demons, what reward do they receive?

4274. They receive only a curse, alienation from Elah and His love.

4275. Those who burn incense and recite the rosary, those who prepare children and adults for baptism, those who venerate the cross, those who embrace pagan idols, follow the imagination of perverse people.

4276. Read, then, this Book of Joy, the book of Heaven, to know Elah; read it.

4277. Elah is our Saviour, not man.

4278. Do the Jews say that Hebrew is holy?

4279. Do the Arabs claim that Arabic is holy?

4280. Do Christians say that Latin is holy?

4281. Does God choose holy languages for Himself, or do people themselves make distinctions and exalt themselves?

4282. Every language is equally beautiful and sacred, just as every person is precious and important.

4283. Muslims have rejected the Fatherhood of the Father just as He accepted them.

4284. Similarly, Christians have rejected the Oneness of God and added Christ as an intermediary, as if Elah were to come out to meet them!

4285. The Jews clung desperately to rituals, making the Father inaccessible, as if Elah were to accept them once more.

4286. Elah has been One throughout the ages; He is not subject to the passing of time, nor does He incarnate in an infinite number of souls.

4287. Nor is there the will of God without the will of man; man is not a slave to God, but there is a covenant of unity between Him and the True Elah.

4288. Let not the sons of Abraham say:

4289. ‘Elah taught this, Elah commanded this, Elah willed this’!

4290. Is it not the will of men to do what they wish in order to pervert a law once established?

4291. Is it not the will of men to seek vengeance, hatred and enmity in the ‘Name of God’?

4292. Elah created everything out of nothing, but before the birth of the world there existed another world, Rahab and its darkness.

4293. That is why the Jews say: the Sabbath must be observed; to this day a memorial has been established, after the destruction of the old heaven – Rahab – and the creation of the New Earth – ‘Elah rested’.

4294. Who can perceive the mysteries and treasures that I see?

4295. Who can perceive the wonders and the future that I see?

4296. This is the angel of the revelation of the Mother of the Book; Elah sent this angel to illuminate the whole earth with his radiance.

4297. The Jews claim that prophecy ended with Malachi, the Christians claim that prophecy ended with Christ, the Muslims claim that prophecy ended with Muhammad.

4298. But the truth is that the previous revelation must agree with the one before it; the New Gate is the Light of guidance in the power of the Shekinah.

4299. The purpose of the Book of the Mother is to reconcile us with Elah, to find Him, and to instil in us the truths and commandments of His Holy Name.

4300. Elah is our Master, He is our Leader, the One who delivers us from all trials.

4301. The saints are those who listen and act, who accept even when they are going through the heavy storms of life, who do not reject His guidance, those who prepare themselves to meet the One Elah.

4302. Those who obey the commands of their Prophet shall receive a reward – they shall be saved by virtue of their Law.

4303. Those among the children of Abraham who obey the One Elah, who follow Him day and night, who obey the appointed Prophet, shall be saved by the teachings of the appointed Revealer.

4304. Elah brings light; the light of faith enlightens the minds of believers for better or for worse.

4305. Jews receive the reward of Moses, Christians receive the reward of Jesus, Muslims receive the reward of Muhammad, Bahá'ís receive the reward of Bahá, and Nuranis receive the reward of the Mother Book.

4306. The saints of every faith will therefore be saved according to their righteous deeds, and not on the basis of religion or other characteristics.

4307. Different communities perceive the fulfilment of prophecies in different ways, but we should remain faithful to the Book of the Father, checking whether new teachings are consistent with earlier revelations of the prophets and judging everything on the basis of righteous deeds.

4308. Does not he who has departed show the way to those who seek?

4309. The departure of the prophets of the nations becomes the path of return.

4310. Muhammad is the teacher who gave people a mirror.

4311. Those who merely looked into the mirror saw falsehood; those who looked through it saw the reflection of light.

4312. False?

4313. Or perhaps perversely true, precisely because of its reflection.

4314. The Qur'an is like a river – it has nourished generations, but there comes a time when one must cross the bridge.

4315. Yet those who forget that the river was a source of life will not appreciate the bridge.

4316. Does not the new path of the Mother Book spring from the old?

4317. Bab and Bahá stand at the gates of heaven to serve the Mother Book.

4318. If a Christian, a Jew and a Muslim call upon the Father alone and worship Him alone, they receive the Father's reward; if they add their prophets to this, they receive abundance or humility, in accordance with the message of the Revealer.

4319. The teachings attributed to Jesus in the Gospel contain fables and truth; therefore, Christians will be saved according to their deeds, and not by faith alone, just like others.

4320. Sing, sing to Elah, His love is great, His wrath has subsided.

4321. His generosity is unending; His vengeance fades away.

4322. Go then, to see what Elah is like – He is quick to forgive, quick to accept the repentant, He does not revive the fallen.

4323. He, Elah, is now writing you a letter full of love, so let us set out on a journey to praise His Name.

4324. Let us go, then, to rejoice in Elah, in His wonders.

4325. Let us go, that Elah may be our joy; let us celebrate our love for Him; let us not allow anyone to do harm, for He is Elah of peace, Elah who desires no vengeance and takes no delight in excessive anger.

4326. Elah is the King of my heart, Elah shall be King of the whole world!

4327. Let us go, then – let us welcome women into the Church; let us go, then – let us not be ashamed of women's part in salvation.

4328. It is only thanks to women that the world was created; without them, the world could not exist.

4329. It could not exist.

4330. They are the means of life's existence, they are the means of the congregation, they are the leaders of the congregation.

4331. Muslims say – should a woman wear a veil?

4332. Should not every woman be veiled in faith, love and hope, just as a shawl and a veil are adorned with all the ornaments of righteousness, all the virtues of divinity?

4333. Why should the veil be a form of oppression?

4334. To subjugate women to men?

4335. It is better when there is equality in marriage; it is better for society when husband and wife are equal in all things.

4336. Do Muslims and Jews commit cruelty against animals, and does blood flow in streams?

4337. Is it not better to give up meat and not eat it?

4338. Did Noah's generation feed on herbs and fruits, which God provides in abundance; is it not better even today to eat plants instead of meat?

4339. The Jews say: 'We are the chosen ones', the Christians say: 'We are the chosen ones', the Muslims say: 'We are the chosen ones'. Or perhaps the saints are to be found amongst those who worship the One God and faithfully observe the law of love for one's neighbour; so where are these chosen ones of whom so much is spoken?

4340. There are no great ones or greater ones among us, there is no selfishness among us, none of us calls himself a 'priest'!

4341. There is no sacrament more eternal than the encounter with Elah, uniting with Him, loving only Him and worshipping only Him.

4342. Elah creates darkness and light, day and night; He brings good and bad times; He does not bring sorrow, but it is the result of the vicissitudes of fate.

4343. He does not bring joy; joy has always existed within us.

4344. Some say there is an eternal hell, and others that there is an eternal heaven; where is justice if this is not so?

4345. Is Elah angry for eternity?

4346. On the contrary, wicked souls rot in distant places; there they atone for their sins.

4347. Paradise is a place where Heaven unites with the soul, where the human soul and Elah become one.

4348. Is the life of a hermit not an exaggeration?

4349. What is the life of a Sufi, if not the life of a hermit?

4350. Excessive asceticism destroys the joyful spirit; excessive repetition of prayers separates us from Elah; deceptive rituals distance us from Elah, the God of the whole world.

4351. Some Sufis vow to renounce the world and their families, devote themselves to prayer and strange rituals, and repeat prayers endlessly?

4352. Their lives become burdensome, their joy fades, their families suffer from separation; Elah has no need of such false devotion.

4353. Elah does not expect excessive asceticism from us.

4354. Some Sufis claim that 'life is vanity'; on the contrary, Elah has made the pleasures of this world available to us.

4355. Through prayer, fasting and care for our families, we receive Elah's love, and the joy of life increases tenfold.

4356. He, Elah, is our 'direction of prayer' – the Qiblah; He, Elah, is our Jerusalem; Holy Jerusalem is a manifestation of Power; this patch of earth is a bridge between heaven and earth, it is the House of God for eternity, around which the angels of heaven and the people of earth circle.

4357. And above the House of Holiness, reach for this Book; this is the House of God; let the believing heart set out on a pilgrimage; let it read to its heart's content.

4358. Today, let those who believe in the Mother Book act in accordance with what has been given, what has been revealed in the Father Book and explained in the Mother Book.

4359. There are an infinite number of Houses of Dust, in which God is reduced to the rank of an idol, an image.

4360. Elah did not do this; the command to turn back from the path of humiliation has already been issued.

4361. No inhabitant of the Holy Mountain should cause trouble to anyone, for the hearts of those who worship only the Benevolent are closer to Him than the paths of the houses of dust.

4362. And during all the festivals—for these are festivals of joy, such as New Year—set out on a pilgrimage of the heart, along the path of simplicity, to the House of Glory in Jerusalem.

4363. It shall be rebuilt; act in accordance with the laws of mutual love for the pilgrims of the heart.

4364. Elah will indeed generously reward everyone for their good deeds.

4365. He whom all call the Anointed One shall surely be revealed; may we be honoured with the glory of being servants of the Most High on this Day of Joy.

4366. How, then, with great fear should we await the Hand of Elah, the Anointed One for all mankind.

4367. How did the ‘serpent’ shaman tempt Eve, eat dust, and seek the friendship of demons?

4368. Thus, today many, instead of following the counsel of the Revelators, walk in darkness.

4369. Today we stand on the threshold of the transition from the Age of Darkness to the Age of Light, so choose the light and reject the darkness

Elah is the Judge

He is Elah of action and reaction; He grants freedom of choice; He has not made people slaves to His Will.

4370. Elah is the sole Judge, passing just verdicts,

He is always and forever unchanging, establishing His ten words as commandments from generation to generation.

4371. This Universe will not crumble to dust – is peace destined for the earth?

4372. Elah does not do as He pleases, nor does He make people His slaves; no one opposes Him, and no one can replace His work.

4373. He, Elah, shall be the One King upon the earth – His Name shall remain unchanged for ever.

4374. He is the King of His servants; He is Elah and the Ruler of all kingdoms.

4375. So sail upon the rivers of His guidance, to reach the Ocean of His Perfection.

4376. He is Elah in good times and bad; in His Name the night passes and a new day of reconciliation dawns.

4377. He is Elah, eternally Living; He does not incarnate in an infinite number of souls; His years are immeasurable; His life endures forever.

4378. He is the great benefactor of mankind – He freely bestows death and life.

4379. [God’s] virtues are boundless; His deeds have no end.

4380. His utterances are boundless, His Spirit knows no limits to its action.

4381. He is Elah of the House of Song, He is Elah of the House of Separation.

4382. He is generous towards all creatures, He does not withhold His mercy from them; He is a Helper in suffering, a support and a refuge for the soul.

4383. He is the Friend, the merciful companion on the path of life.

4384. He unites with those who desire Him, who worship Him; He dwells in those who consciously seek His Name.

4385. He is a Benevolent Treasure, a support for all in the face of life’s obstacles.

4386. He is the Rock, the friend and companion, all-encompassing love.

4387. Truly, He has proclaimed from age to age – I am the One Indivisible, not incarnated in any body, bestowing divine attributes upon the prophets.

4388. He has bestowed His mercy upon me; in times of distress, He is my Forgiver.

4389. He is my sanctuary, towards which I strive; He is my treasure, which I seek.

4390. Verily, God is Love – He bestows Love and Grace and brings joy to life.

4391. Truly, it is God who has the greatest right to His property for His House in Jerusalem.

4392. Thus, in the Book of the Father, it is forbidden to touch even a single stone of the House of Prayer of Elah, and it is forbidden to allow the desecration of that which is holy.

4393. Elah is the greatest Leader.

4394. He is the Giver of the blessed commandments.

4395. We sought love and learnt that it is worth caring for one's wife, and for a wife to care for her husband, for it has been shown that such a couple lives together in the greatest harmony and happiness.

4396. We sought fleeting joy, but a greater joy is giving and returning love, so we gladly serve the poor – feed me, for I am hungry.

4397. We sought the face of Elah; He brings it in the form of proverbs, distinguished by the joy of counsel.

4398. Therefore, remember and heed the moral of these stories.

4399. Christians say – those who follow the path to hell – those who do not believe in Christ and shun His salvation, do they end up in hell?

4400. My Elah, however, says the opposite: He is the One and Only Saviour and there is no other, He leads the faithful out of the hell of death, He will raise the righteous from the dust to life, Will He give up Christ for faithfulness and unfaithfulness, or will He awaken?

4401. Will he see his mistakes – and will he truly declare: 'Elah is the only God, Christians are despised, and I am but a prophet'?

4402. We seek the face of God, not human glory,
Do we walk the paths of justice and simplicity, and not human reflections in God?

4403. Do Muslims say: those who worship man instead of God 'deserve the punishment of fire'?
According to the words of the teacher Muhammad to them, to us the prophet of the nations
Is not human life precious to Elah?

4404. Or do perverse spirits oppress people – threatening them with hell?

4405. Is not hell itself a grave?

4406. Everyone clings to the fear of an imaginary hell, swallowing their anxiety, instead of trusting in Elah, the Ruler of the whole world.

4407. Is it not true that darkness has enveloped mankind, so that they exalt their illusions instead of heeding Elah of Hosts?

4408. Listen, O nations – our Elah, the Great and Unchanging Elah, He is One, He shatters the cracks and arrows of spirits, He is Elah above the rulers, His omnipotence reaches to the ends of the earth.

4409. He is God and the One Creator, He is Self-Sufficient, He does not permeate creation, He does not incarnate in any body.

4410. He sent His prophets, imparted His laws to them, continued to bestow titles upon them, and distinguished them with His holy attributes.

4411. He sent us to walk the paths of righteousness; He sent our souls to care for our families, to strive for wealth and good things.

4412. He makes people holy or damned in their lifetime, yet they choose their own paths.

4413. It must be acknowledged that the deeds of the righteous are light and warmth, whilst the deeds of the wicked are treachery and shamelessness.

4414. His bountiful knowledge is shared amongst the prophets, but the saints are a treasure, for they give their neighbours what is pleasing.

4415. Those who dwell in populous cities, those who wander in fear, do not follow the path of wisdom but of debauchery; they amass wealth by trampling on the weak.

4416. The Righteous Judge will take away their reason; they will not reach the Ocean of His Love, they will not reach the House of Song, and they will not rejoice in the Glory of the Most High.

4417. Yet these, though they gather in cities of shamelessness, assemble for the Glory of Elah and His Holy Name.

4418. They practise justice, love their neighbour; their words are pure discernment, and their deeds are like the abundance of a garden.

4419. Their weaving is not in vain; Elah is their travelling companion; they reach the House of Prayer, they reach the House of Knowledge of His Essence, they reach the House of Song.

4420. Their desire is to worship Elah alone; they call upon no one but God, and they call Him alone

King.

4421. They are not lost souls; they are children of God; they are guides for the peoples around them; they are lamps shining in the darkness.

4422. Their deeds shall not be in vain; their reward is union with Elah.

4423. My words were not read in the streets; no one wished to hear them.

4424. O foundation of God, upon the Holy House that was erected in Shiraz?

4425. Is not our sanctuary, bound together with the mortar of love, also the true Temple of Elah?

4426. Are we not ourselves a congregation from among the nations – from among Jews, Christians and Muslims?

4427. Elah commands us to show the utmost respect to the pilgrims who visit the House of Prayer for all nations during the feasts of God.

4428. Let us therefore show one another the utmost respect, as if we ourselves were going on a pilgrimage to the House of Elah in Shiraz.

4429. Do not follow me; follow the Elah of the whole world and serve Him alone.

4430. Above all, go on a pilgrimage to Elah of Hosts, follow Him, and hold fast to His grace.

4431. He bestows grace upon everyone who desires it; He does not make His people slaves, but is merely a willing Counsellor.

4432. O, heed this counsel – Elah judges according to deeds of righteousness or wickedness; does He not judge according to faith in the prophets?

4433. Has not Elah Himself declared – on the Day of Judgement, God will question everyone according to what they know, not according to what they do not know; all will be saved or punished according to their deeds.

4434. O, take heed of these verses from the tree of knowledge of good; how many people might be inclined to perceive the truth in them?

4435. O, cherish the Love of the Father of the Book; teach this to your children; let them sing it joyfully to all.

4436. Everyone is accountable to God for teaching their children the path of righteousness; this is a duty imposed by Elah upon parents.

4437. The ancient prophets also said: ‘Everyone shall die for their own sin’.

4438. Everyone will also be saved for their righteous deeds and perish for the accumulation of iniquity.

4439. I too say this: Jesus could not die for anyone else’s sins; His sins rested upon His own head; the sins of sinners shall be borne by the sinners themselves.

4440. Therefore, no one can forgive the sins of the faithful – only God Himself, who is ready to forgive.

4441. Does not holiness consist in the fact that even a prophet learns from sin?

4442. A saint is not sinless – a saint is someone who transforms sin into light.

4443. Celebrate, then, the Qablah of knowledge of God, proclaim the love of God; let Elah become Jerusalem for you, just as the flocks go on pilgrimage for Passover – the Feast of the Revelation of Azaan; so the faithful should go on pilgrimage to Elah of the Meeting, to Elah of Unity, the One Saviour of all mankind.

4444. Here is divine counsel – wives should respect their husbands, and husbands should show love and support to their wives.

4445. The reward for wives is the satisfaction of their husbands and the love of their children.

4446. All the sufferings of wives and husbands reach God’s ears; all violence against wives should be abandoned and abolished.

4447. Showing mercy and ensuring equality should be the duty of spouses; when there is insufficient equality, the rights of wives and husbands cannot fully develop and be a blessing to the family.

4448. Husband and wife should, selflessly, with mercy and care, convey to their children all of God’s intentions, all His admonitions, and all His guidance.

4449. God has commanded the father and mother to show their children as much love as possible, not to punish them excessively, but to punish them with love, giving them more guidance than teaching them about punishments and rewards.

4450. Elah commands the Benefactor from on high that children should obey their parents and behave as befits good children, for parents' hearts may become troubled, and if they insult one another, they will bring only sorrow upon themselves.

4451. Elah is a joyful helper; may families love one another.

4452. Resurrection is to be understood in two ways: as 'awakening oneself' and as the 'rebirth' of a stagnant faith, as the Gate proclaims.

4453. The second meaning of the 'resurrection of souls' should be understood literally.

4454. When the souls of the dead are raised to life, when the Arm of Elah appears, the souls of the righteous will be transformed into light, and the souls of the wicked will be despised. What evidence do Christians have for the resurrection of Christ's body after His crucifixion, given that the Gospels are full of contradictions?

4455. This is a warning – those who worship Leviathan – the 'Trinity' – and ascribe partners to God will never be raised from the dead to life when the Arm of Elah is revealed.

4456. All that we see is Oneness.

4457. He who says – that there are two 'gods' – suffers from double vision.

4458. It is said in one place: A hundred words of man equal one God, for Elah created all things with ten Words, and on the sixth day He created man, forming him from the 22 letters of Adam and Eve.

4459. This radiant book is the new Torah – the Law for us, mankind; it is God's covenant with man for eternity.

4460. Rome and Qabba are the fruit of the ruin of many; some introduce idolatry, others are driven by violence; did not similar things happen in the days of Noah?

4461. This radiant Book, this Torah of justice – concerns piety and the sincerity of the soul.

4462. The pride of Rome, their images, their majesty shall turn to dust.

4463. Rome worships a false God – the Christ of the Christians and the Pope instead of the God of Gods; the Christians are blind, their faith is blind – for the blind faith of simpletons lacks discernment; in their hearts they have sown love for him.

4464. The pride of the Kabbalah and its violence shall turn to ruin.

4465. The path of violence leads to utter self-destruction, so 'cast away violence and destruction, and practise justice and righteousness'.

4466. Teach us, Elah, the way of righteousness; teach us, Elah, the way far from violence and balrogs.

4467. In the name of God many have been slain, in the name of God many wars have broken out; these paths are winding.

4468. Yet we should follow the path of sincerity, filled with peace, friendship and mercy. Sincerity on this path is nothing other than mercy.

4469. Both follow teachings far removed from common sense, and their pride and grandeur will be crushed by the Stone of Justice.

4470. It should be noted that whatever pleases the carnal man bears no fruit, just as salt and desolation do not.

4471. This is the day when the followers of Muhammad and the followers of Jesus should ask for forgiveness: how much evil have their hands wrought upon the earth, how much innocent blood have they shed?

4472. They are lost and poor in spirit; they do not acknowledge God as the One and Only, nor do they unite in the One God – though they know they ought to.

4473. God has permitted this game, yet He forbids the spreading of evil intentions.

4474. Gather in the Houses of Elah to listen to the teachings of the wise; do not stray from the Word of Justice and keep away from violence.

4475. Do not incite one another against one another; we should be united even in the face of differences of opinion.

4476. All suspicion towards one another must be rejected.

4477. We should not welcome any excessive criticism, but we should teach with love and admonish.

4478. Nor should you judge believers or non-believers in God, for Yah marks out their paths; do you not judge in the name of Elah?

4479. It is also better, in the way of Elah, not to take revenge on one another, but to forgive and not to harm one's neighbour.

4480. Elah is my salvation; He is the comforter of the afflicted, the blessing of the faithful; He rejects the unrighteous.

4481. This path is the path of Abraham; it is far from violence; it is joining in friendship with Elah, the true friend of mankind.

4482. He bears with and forgives souls in their need; He does not forsake the faithful in their uncertainty.

4483. We, having this example of mercy, should walk and show mercy in return for mercy, in fear of misfortune and destructive forces, so as to help those in need.

4484. Let us not walk in the fire of passion; God's path is full of piety, bringing respite to those who seek His face.

4485. Elah is our friend; let us rely on His love; He is the only rock of salvation; let us be grateful for His gifts.

4486. In the first column – the earth – the fire of love blazes; in the second, the longing for its kingdom; in the third, the light of Unity; in the fourth, the dust of existence.

4487. O, call upon God as the only One worthy of worship; exalt His Name alone for ever.

4488. At the centre of His revelation smoulders the eternal fire of love.

4489. Love is His servant, waiting to serve the Elah of all worlds, like an obedient angelic messenger of Friendship, devoid of a will of its own.

4490. As the Servant walked upon the hill
 As the Servant walked upon the hill, by the holy lamp of the tzaddik which they share, I beheld the light In the second sphere – the longing for joy, our breaths rise in obedience to Elah, the offering of our lips rises towards the Throne of Eternity; the reward for our praise of Elah is a feeling of warmth, blessings won for ever.

4491. In the third realm – the light of unity – His servants may attain the heights of God's gifts, for they have accepted the worship of God Himself.

4492. The divine gifts which He bestows upon His servants are: knowledge of His Name and His indivisibility; the gift of faith that His Word is fulfilled; the gift of serving others; the gift of willing giving; the gift of knowledge and mercy; the gift of helping, showing care and mercy.

4493. In the fourth kingdom—the dust of existence—His servants are humble and seek refuge at the gates of divine mercy.

4494. He opens wide the doors of compassion to them, readily grants forgiveness, and does not turn away those who are contrite.

4495. In the paradisiacal garden of Elah's knowledge, all these spheres are an expression of His essence – His attributes of greatness, unity, glory and the bestowal of joy.

4496. It is the desire of the divine heart that all people throughout the world should speak the one language of love, professing God with one mind, calling Him the Father of us all.

4497. It is true that the Resurrection must be understood in both a transpersonal and a literal sense.

4498. The Resurrection must be understood in two ways: as an 'awakening', a 'rebirth' of a stagnant faith, and as a literal rising from the dead.

4499. This resurrection in the Hebrew Bible is to be understood literally, for the verse states: 'When the souls of men are raised from the dead, when the Arm of Elah appears, the souls of the righteous will be transformed into light, and the souls of the wicked will be despised'
 It is also true that, as believers in God, we should not take sides – neither with the Jews, nor with the Muslims, nor with the Christians.

4500. There is also a danger that false leaders and sectarians seeking self-glorification – who lead people to ruin – may proclaim themselves to be gods in the flesh; we should not listen to them, but avoid them and beware of them – It must be stated that the Arm of Elah cannot claim to be God, a mediator, or equal to God; otherwise, he is a fraud and a blasphemer.

4501. We should seek the truth – that is, essential information that relates to reality, not fairy tales.

4502. We should strive earnestly not to believe, but to examine unconfirmed stories to see if they are beneficial to individuals and society.

4503. The divine promptings of angels and teachings include belief in the validity – the existence – of the universal Messiah – the power of God amongst us, who is not God in human form.

4504. Secondly, it is a lie to believe in the passage of the soul from an animal body or back into a human being.

4505. Thirdly, the rejection of the Father and Mother of the Book as the source of doctrine and comfort.

4506. Fourthly, the rejection of service to God and humanity.

4507. Fifthly, the rejection of the reason for which the world should be improved and paradise brought to earth.

4508. Sixthly, the rejection of the possibility that some books were written by fraudsters and under the inspiration of demons.

4509. Thought – when the Shekhinah meets the beauty of God, all the virtues of heaven come into the world.

4510. The task of the inhabitants of earth and heaven is to seek God's generosity and to reciprocate His merciful goodness.

4511. Similarly, when the Shekhinah dwells in the soul, God's work is evident in the daughters and sons of man.

4512. For they can reflect God's wisdom, understanding, and the purity of hands and hearts.

4513. The task of faith in God is to replace the ossified faith of the past – a faith based on concern for humanity, meeting needs, and the conviction that every human being is valuable.

4514. 'You shall again listen to Elah and keep all His commandments which I give you today.

4515. Then Elah, your God, will make you the richest in all the works of your hands, in the fruit of your womb, in the young of your cattle, and in the produce of your land."

4516. Repentance means turning away from the wrong path and turning to God for help.

4517. One must repent for one's sins – that is, for separating oneself from Elah – with joy, but also with the certainty that one desires a change of heart.

4518. Man constantly and daily improves himself, casting off old, filthy garments and putting on clean ones, and so it is with sins.

4519. God tempts us by sending Satan, so we must resist the sins of our own hearts.

4520. It is not the forgiveness of sins nor another prophet, but Elah Himself who is the source of the forgiveness of sins.

4521. The Holy Spirit is the Power of God, and the Gifts of Love are directed from God to humanity.

4522. Prophets, like mirrors, will always reflect the gifts of the Holy Spirit through their qualities, such as compassion, kindness, goodness, generosity, patience and gratitude.

4523. The Holy Spirit guides us along a path far removed from yielding to assertiveness and avoiding a life lived in all virtues.

4524. We should persevere to the end in good deeds and purity.

4525. When a person falls into sin, there is always a good God who is ready to help them rise and lift them out of sin.

4526. We should feast on the Word of Heaven and drink from the fountain of grace, from these counsels.

4527. When we repent, the good Lord will improve the world, surrounding us with hosts of angels.

4528. God's love and the love we share with our neighbours will lead us to strive for perfection in our thoughts, words and deeds.

4529. The true God did not make hell a place to which endless multitudes of lost souls would be drawn.

4530. God the Father explains that hell was created by people themselves on earth; He explains to us that through our heartless deeds, cruelty or crimes, we tread the paths of self-destruction, that is, spiritual hell.

4531. Even if people have visions of hell, these may be visions conveyed by demons, or they may record their prophecies through dreams, stories and fables.

4532. God punishes people whilst they are alive, so there is no need for the Merciful God to force guilty souls to remain in an endless hell – this is incompatible with God's Mercy.

4533. God portrayed as cruel must always be portrayed in a false, human light.

4534. Elah cries out for the blood of those murdered over the centuries; countless have fallen in battle; people have turned the earth into a battlefield.

4535. People destroy the earth for their own pride, for the desires of their hearts – their egos are exalted.

4536. Some crave glory for themselves; others are consumed by anger, envy and endless hatred.

4537. And they say in the same breath – that it is indeed God who sent them?

4538. Is their path not a path of confusion, a path of perversion, a path far removed from repentance and reconciliation?

4539. Their path is the path of justice – rendering to each person justice for justice, a good deed bringing glory, and an unjust deed bringing the thunder of the heavens.

4540. Are two women worth as much as one man?

4541. A man and two women as witnesses.

4542. Are women equal to men?

4543. How should women be treated?

4544. Unequal treatment of women was evident in Arab tradition from the very beginning.

4545. Before Muhammad, customs towards women were far more cruel and unjust.

4546. Muhammad was unable to oppose the cruel 'traditions' of the Arabs and their unjust customs, but this does not mean that we should advocate laws that trample on women's equality and their liberation from the pressure of men.

4547. Should women sit on the 'Council'?

4548. In future, the 'Council' should consist of 36 women and 36 men in equal numbers, making a total of 72 members.

4549. God created men and women as equals, regardless of their intellectual abilities, skills or the roles imposed by society.

4550. The image of God reflects the glory of men and women, regardless of the role God has assigned to them.

4551. The 'Council' is an advisory and judicial body which imposes punishments and bestows praise in accordance with the Law of Love and Justice – the 10 Words of Moses.

4552. Should God's followers wage a holy war, just as Muslims do?

4553. Muslims most often hide behind the fact that the 'holy war' takes place spiritually within the human mind.

4554. But the truth is far from reality; for them, the 'holy war' is the expansion of Islam by the sword.

4555. Faith in Elah is far removed from harming people, issuing commands, imposing prohibitions, or causing harm; faith in God, if it is genuine, exerts no pressure nor forces submission.

4556. Elah readily bestows His Love – His Love is sufficient to transform people's minds so that they are capable of noble deeds.

4557. Faith based on violence causes further divisions and further disputes, and leads to the spread of suffering.

4558. Since God is our 'Sun' of Justice, we warm ourselves in Him, and in Him we seek refuge and Liberation.

4559. The sun is not God, but the true Sun of Truth reflects God Himself, His ardent love for humanity.

4560. Whatever draws near to it will not be burnt, but will be joyfully received by the rays of the merciful, loving Father.

4561. Therefore, we can reject the idea that in the Sun of Truth there is nothing but God, Elah of the worlds.

4562. Gender Equality

Let the light of gender equality dispel the darkness of falsehood,

Choose life, so why choose what is perverse?

4563. Make way for God, yet in the name of inequality, cling only to sorrow?

4564. Fools stride in their pride, far from human reason, and say: 'Women are subject to us', and they are like ravenous beasts, devoid of reason.

4565. In their zeal, they seek to humiliate the innocent – so they humiliate women and their dignity, reducing them to the role of servants?

4566. In their passion, they also allow themselves to have many wives – thereby destroying order and bringing about poverty?

4567. In their folly they whisper: 'Let us sow hatred between men and women'; but Elah has made them equal; do the adversaries, in their folly, hurl slander?

4568. They also think that if they pray three times a day, Elah will forgive them their violence; Elah sees and repays them.

4569. Does deep-rooted inequality not bring misfortune upon families?

4570. Will the cries of the righteous be the answer to a change of heart?

4571. Would slowing down to allow for shouting and violence not be a good solution to silence women?

4572. Beating one's wife with words or fists is not a solution to life's problems.

4573. No Eye of God would permit the beating or humiliation of women or wives.

4574. God's mercy, His all-seeing Eye of Providence, deals with the immeasurable tide of inequality and injustice.

4575. Because of his folly, the Father of the Book is mocked; because of his false interpretation of Adam's religion, innocent women must suffer.

4576. The Divine Virgin, the Shekinah of Heaven, invites all people to partake in the feast of equality, to share the bread of unity, understanding and compassion.

4577. People too, far from the Shekhinah's help, full of prejudice and devoid of reason, resort to violence as a means of defence.

4578. People who tolerate the beating of women have twisted minds; they are depraved, devoid of humanity and compassion, and far from empathy.

4579. A society that deliberately avoids protecting women's rights withers and dies, sinking into barbarism.

4580. However, a society that enjoys the support of both men and women, striving for equality and opposing inequality, enjoys all the blessings of Heaven.

4581. Therefore, it is essential to unite the Western and Eastern worlds so that the world may enjoy the fullness of Heaven's blessings.

4582. A husband who beats his wife is lost in his own love, blind to his wife's pleas, her suffering and humiliation.

4583. God truly hates violence, and every effort must be made to prevent violence within the family and marriage.

4584. The blessings of nations are absent where women are not treated equally, where their rights are denied.

4585. And when women are denied their rights, life itself disappears, for women are the source of life and of all virtues.

4586. For a nation to develop and reap God's blessings, it is essential to maintain harmony; it is essential to make the earth a paradise.

4587. There is no need to extinguish the fire of equality, for if the fire goes out, it will not consume the vastness of injustice.

4588. Gentleness, quiet submission to a husband's will, forbearance in the face of violence, and the long-suffering of women are not blessings, but reasons to call these traits enslavement.

4589. Women should leave Egypt humiliated in the face of men who despise them.

4590. Similarly, when equality and harmony prevail, nations will flourish in a heavenly order.

4591. 1734 We must do our utmost to promote equality between men and women, without which love and empathy are degraded, the joy of life is removed, and women's suffering will continue to grow.

4592. God created Adam and woman equal in every respect, and men rule over women in their folly only because they fall and sin.

4593. Anyone who rejoices in gender inequality demeans God, who created women equal to men.

4594. Men should learn compassion, empathy and care from women, and the world would become a better place as a result.

4596. Traces of barbarism – promoting inequality, violence and hatred towards women – are still visible in the East, even in pagan countries.

4597. Here in the West, women's rights are particularly protected; may the light of Elah also illuminate the darkness of night in the East.

4598. When the West accepts the One Indivisible God, who draws His source from the eastern dawn, and the East accepts the equality of women as a legitimate truth under the influence of the West.

4599. Then the world will be saved, and Elah will illuminate the darkness of the earth with a great light.

4600. When united Christians forget the Gospel, and Muslims turn away from the Quran and accept this Message, the world will surely be destined for Paradise.

4601. People will become brothers, love will not be deceptive, and compassion and peace will envelop the whole earth.

4602. A people who rest in safety
Will not the faithful people rest in safety, and will not the wise nation grow in its wisdom to become a light unto mankind?

4603. Will Elah listen willingly, will Shekhinah Elah hasten joyfully, joyfully drawing the water of prayers from the heavenly vessel?

4604. She, the Heavenly Messenger, says: Go, trust in Providence; she also says: What is more beautiful than devotion to God? I myself, like wisdom, worship God alone!

4605. From the decree of the boundless Shekhinah flows the joy of the gathered songs, the joy of the community of knowledge and wisdom.

4606. May our chalices not drown in the filthy sea of oblivion, doubt and debauchery.

4607. Christians and Muslims think they are sated, sated with the teachings of their clergy, but are their mouths not like parched lips?

4608. Have they not grasped the wisdom of the Shekhinah, the clergy teaching the nations of History?

4609. Does not the light of her presence, her wisdom, conceal the errors of many?

4610. Her light illuminates the darkness of illusory traditions, as it is said – The light that illuminates the eye is also the light of all holy souls.

4611. Trust in God, do not look upon the divine spark of man: what can mortals do when Elah shines over Zion?

4612. What can the nations do but provoke wrath?

4613. Return to God, O faithful, and obey the nations of the Most High God, and He will be your worshipper, and all shall acknowledge that He is Elah.

4614. They say: 'Peace, peace, but there is no peace'; where is the peace of the people of the false prophets? Where is the mystical peace of the false prophets? All this is nonsense and their delusion; they sing the songs of the people instead of obeying God.

4615. For the saints, the 'Sabbath' is the Sabbath established by Moses; let it remain so forever.

4616. The unchanging covenant

The righteous have suffered and are suffering because of their sins, and they continue to suffer because of their claims.

4617. The claims that Jesus is God in human form, and that Muhammad is the 'last prophet', are groundless; from the very beginning, the prophets foretold that the Gospel and the Qur'an would fall as corrupted books, and that their writings are false writings. Called by some false prophets?

4618. Or perhaps prophets who, through their errors, reveal the truth of the one Book.

4619. Just as a shadow proves that truth exists, so the portrayal in the Gospels – of Jesus as God – presents Jesus as a selfish person; the lies of this book led the pagans to regard him as God, but he was never God.

4620. This is a lesson for Christians that lies have crept into the New Testament – it was not his blood that saved him, but the example that even in pain one can remain a faithful martyr.

4622. There is also much light and darkness in the Gospels and the Quran, for Elah dwells amidst darkness and light – He is the Elah of sunny and cloudy days.

4623. He also makes use of the darkness and finds great light within it.

4624. The Jews are the 'Sons of God' because they worship only the Father, just like the nations who believe in and worship the One God.

4625. The term 'Sons of God' should also refer to the nations who believe in the One God, Elah, who is neither born nor dies.

4626. Those people who rejoice in His Presence dwelling within them, nourished by His blessings, are called 'Sons of God', for they have become 'Sons of God' of David, of all the Saints.

4627. All who believe that Jesus was God in the flesh, keep your mouths shut.

4628. For those who worship any man instead of God shall not see the light of mercy, nor shall they be reborn in glorious bodies.

4629. Choose, therefore, the Light of the One God; let He who is neither born nor dies become your One Saviour.

4630. The explanation regarding the 'little horn' and the beast that changed the time and the law – from Saturday to Sunday – is as follows: the title 'little horn' refers to the Roman Empire, which persecuted both Christians and Jews, and also refers to Christianity and its leaders.

4631. Thus, all that the prophet Daniel revealed must be considered with care, in accordance with God's revelation.

4632. He, Elah of the resurrection and the Day of Judgement, which has come today, will take vengeance for the iniquities of the sons of Edom; He will not forgive the sons of Ishmael for their violence.

4633. This I foretell to you today – Rome shall become a heap of ruins, the Kabba shall turn into a heap of stones.

4634. Because of a lack of discernment and hatred, the righteous did as they pleased, persecuting, oppressing and slandering them, for Elah did not walk among them – but they themselves had grown accustomed to worshipping falsehood, hypocrisy and hatred instead of Him.

4635. Jesus was merely a rabbi – a teacher and an ordinary prophet; in vain do Christians await His return, in vain do they seek salvation in Him, in vain do they call Him the Son of God.

4636. Who are the 'Sons of Elah' if not those who seek the face of Elah, the saints themselves, who in one breath worship Elah the Saviour.

4637. Seeking harmony in this world and improving the places where we live should be our duty, and the pursuit of peace is also required.

4638. Some so-called prophets – false prophets – dream the dreams of their own minds; there were many of them, and even such people warned against the falsehood of other 'prophets'.

4639. The Apostle Paul warned against many falsehoods regarding his 'truth', yet he himself was a charlatan in 'sheep's' clothing.

4640. What matters to God is not the prophet himself, but the message he conveys; therefore, people should not rely on prophets, but on the Holy Book.

4641. In the near future, there will be neither Islam, nor Christianity, nor even Judaism.

4642. God will purify the minds of the nations so that they may exalt Him alone.

4643. Ephraim – Christians who will be converted, taking the name of the One God and loving God with all their hearts, will be welcomed as brothers by Judah.

4644. God will unite the two nations and many peoples and make them one.

4645. And some angels sinned and did not return to God, teaching people ignorance.

4646. But some returned and became mortal men, living on other planets, walking the path of righteousness, observing the 'Ten Words'.

And on those planets where there is no evil, no animal is killed for meat.

4647. However, those angels who have sinned incite people to murder and kill animals; they teach people about war, debauchery and the wearing of ornaments.

4648. It is important to understand that the Gospel was inherently fallible, for according to the Gospel, Rabbi Jesus is regarded as 'God' in the flesh, whilst Satan himself is regarded as the enemy of God.

4649. The same Gospel frightens people with hell and benefits those who believe in its miracles, but for those who do not believe, these miracles do not work.

4650. The Book of Man – the Qur'an.

4651. Is it not a miracle that the words of men can be so beautiful that many consider them divine?

4652. The divinity of the Tanakh is hidden in human language. The Quran contains both light and darkness.

4653. For it proclaims holy war, frightens people with hell, and exploits the teachings of the corrupt Avesta.

4654. For they all became teachers of the nations, influenced by what God gave them, and also by what God took from them through Satan, the angel sent by God.

4655. Oh, now you ought to understand these Scriptures.

4656. Moses himself also says: 'Add not unto it, nor take away from it, lest ye be counted liars', provided these Words are in accordance with the previous Revelation.

4657. Therefore, we should know that in this Revelation the laws of the Torah, the Tanakh and the Book of the Mother must be confirmed, and that one must serve only God, whom one loves with all one's heart and soul.

4658. We should be aware that the apostle

4659. Paul founded a sect which became the foundation of today's Christianity.

4660. Therefore, anyone who follows the laws of this false apostle is not faithful to God, but to human traditions and foundations.

4661. It is true that God is One, indivisible, He who is neither born nor dies; He is the sole Saviour of mankind.

4662. However, Christianity invented the Holy Trinity.

4663. It is true that the Anointed One will be merely a man, not a Saviour nor God, yet Christianity has made Christ God incarnate.

4664. It is true that reconciliation is achieved through mercy, prayers and reparation, but Christianity has invented the notion that the blood of the cross is supposedly essential for the salvation of humanity.

4665. It is true that sin does not last forever, so people fall and continue to seek refuge in God.

4666. However, the weakness of Christianity is that it claims all people have fallen into 'original sin', so everyone is imperfect – and this is a lie.

4667. It is true that God sends Satan as His messenger, but Christianity has made Satan an enemy in its path.

4668. It is true that only the Mother Book – the actual 'Explanation' – is the Word of God, but Christianity has added the Gospels to the Holy Scriptures, just as Islam has added the Koran to the Holy Scriptures.

4669. It is true that Moses' '10 words' remain binding forever, for all eternity.

4670. However, Christianity has set aside these commandments and devised its own contradictory teachings.

4671. The truth is that all the righteous and those who seek solace in the One God will certainly find renewal, forgiveness and salvation.

4672. Christianity, however, has invented tales that only those who believe in Christ deserve salvation, and rejects the rest.

4673. The truth is that God does not choose a 'chosen people' for Himself.

4674. Christians, Jews and Muslims persist irrevocably and stubbornly in their errors – as if God had chosen them as the 'chosen people'. Because of their errors and lack of understanding of the Holy Scriptures, wars and bloodshed have plagued the earth for centuries.

4675. The belief in 'You are either with us or against us' – this Gospel verse reveals how sectarian the Christian movement was, which expected the 'second coming of Christ' during the apostles' lifetimes.

4676. Let us remember that Christ's return did not take place because of His death, nor is there any need to seek enemies amongst one's own family.

4677. Rabbi Jesus preached what he knew – he was not the Messiah, he did not gather the Israelites from the nations.

4678. The Gospels are full of lies; let us hold fast only to the Father's Book – the Tanakh – and the Mother's Book.

4679. Dividing the family because one of its members has joined a sect only causes internal resentment, anxiety and a lack of unity.

4680. We should avoid these evil, base feelings at all costs, so that the family may become united despite their differences.

4681. Belief in 'obedience to the emperor' – the Apostle

4682. Paul encourages people to obey even cruel rulers, even the Roman authorities of his time.

4683. This is entirely at odds with what Moses and the other prophets said, namely that we should root out evil from among ourselves – even if the authority itself is not in accordance with God's will and the laws of justice for every person.

4684. The belief that "the apostle

4685. Paul's doctrine is correct' from the Gospel.

4686. He taught Gnosticism, Mithraism mixed with the teachings of Judaism.

4687. However, Jesus never separated himself from Judaism; he himself also died, leaving behind a cult dedicated to himself.

4688. Surprisingly, from those movements that rejected the influence of Judaism, Catholicism, Protestantism and Orthodoxy emerged – all these factions argue over which of them is 'true' – the answer is: none, because they do not listen to the prophets of the Tanakh and cling to the apostle 4689. Paul as the pillar of his faith.

4690. Undoubtedly, therefore, the apostle

4691. Paul was a false prophet.

4692. The belief that, according to the writings of the Apostle

4693. Paul, wives should be submissive to their husbands in all things – is inconsistent with what the prophets said.

4694. With God there is no division into better and worse; the division into men and women is unjust, reducing women to a subordinate role.

4695. The belief in 'the revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants the things that must shortly take place' from the Book of Revelation

Has everything that the Apostle

4696. in the Book of Revelation, has come to pass or not?

4697. John himself declares that these things 'must soon take place', but none of the words of his prophecy in the Book of Revelation came to pass in his own time.

4698. The Apocalypse consists of false prophecies and false reports, mere human tales.

4699. The prophets declare that one should not listen to the prophet – here the apostle

4700. John, whose words did not come to pass – because he spoke in his pride – “21 You may ask in your heart: ‘How can we recognise a message that Elah has not spoken?’ 22 When a prophet speaks in the name of Elah, and the message does not come to pass, it is a message that Elah has not spoken.

4701. The prophet spoke boldly.

4702. Do not be afraid of him.”

4703. Faith from ‘For there is one God and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus’ from the Gospel

Does God need mediators, saints, or prophets who can take on human form?

4704. No, mediation and such an idea are entirely pagan.

4705. St.

4706. Paul taught a pagan, Hellenised Judaism mixed with Gnosticism – and called such teaching Christianity.

4707. Belief in mediation has no place amongst the prophets – it is a departure from God’s legitimacy and choice, serving foreign gods to offend Him; it is worshipping dead people instead of God – bringing a curse upon oneself.

4708. Catholics venerate Mary as a ‘mediator’, Christians venerate Jesus as a ‘mediator’, similarly, Shi’a Muslims – the Alawites – worship Ali as a ‘mediator’ to God – this is contrary to faith in the One Merciful God, who has no intermediaries and abhors the worship of human beings – therefore, that which is mortal is not true eternal life.

4709. The righteous should worship the Creator, not the creation.

4710. ‘If you forsake Elah and serve foreign gods, He will turn away from you and bring disaster upon you, and destroy you.’

4711. Faith in “Whoever believes in Me, as the Scripture says, rivers of living water will flow from within him” from the Gospel

This is yet another absurdity of the Gospel of St John; can such a verse be trusted? Certainly not.

4712. Is some power of transformation to flow from within the believer, so that this person will himself become ‘immortal’?

4713. – Through the water of life?

4714. Certainly not; this is yet another failure of this Gospel.

4715. The faith of Christians is not faith, but blind faith – faith in fairy tales and stories that never actually happened.

4716. The belief in ‘You are of your father, the devil’ from the Gospel

The early Christians truly believed that Elah, worshipped by the Jews, was an evil spirit – the devil.

4717. The Father of the Jews, worshipped by modern Christians as ‘God the Father’, is the same Elah, yet in the Gospel of John he is identified with ‘the devil’. Rabbi Jesus personally worshipped God the Father as Yahweh in the ‘Our Father’ prayer, and this contradiction with the Gospel of John is emphasised by the fact that this verse was added later.

4718. The Qur’an and the Gospel contain passages that should be burnt to ashes, just like any object used in war and any weapon.

4719. The belief that the body became God is entirely pagan and is not to be found in the verses of the Father of the Book.

4720. The idea of incarnation has no place among the teachings of the prophets.

4721. God is clearly described as a spirit who never incarnates, and Jesus himself even declared that he is not God.

4722. We ought to obey the Father in heaven, who was not created and is not a creature – ‘Before the mountains were born, before you created the whole world, from everlasting to everlasting you are God’.

4723. Instead of holding fast to the truth, Christians have adopted pagan doctrines – including the doctrine of the Holy Trinity.

4724. Belief in ‘the dead Lazarus, whom he raised from the dead’ from the Gospel
The story of Lazarus has no basis in reality; it was invented for the purpose of spreading the Gospel.

4725. Secondly, Lazarus is the Greek name of the god Osiris, whom Jesus allegedly managed to ‘raise from the dead’. This story originates from Egyptian writings and had no connection with Jesus; it was added much later.

4726. Faith from the New Testament: ‘If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, he cannot be my disciple’ from the Gospel
Jesus had little sympathy for families, tearing them apart because it did not serve his cause.

4727. Jesus did not want families to be united, because they were the reason why his faith was not spreading quickly enough.

4728. God in the Book of the Father does not make people slaves, as this verse from the Gospel shows.

4729. God does not have slaves, but free-thinking people who work for the common good, love goodness and justice, and are ready to share His mercy with their neighbours.

4730. There is no need to separate families on religious grounds – if such a belief existed, it would be better if it were to disappear – because it harms the innocent.

4731. The New Testament belief that ‘they did not wash their hands before a meal’ from the Gospel Elah clearly shows that washing hands was commanded – even ritually.

4732. Jesus did not observe this practice often enough; it is an unhealthy activity.

4733. Jesus’ commandment in this verse does more harm than good.

4734. So whom do you wish to listen to: Elah or the empty Gospel?

4735. Moses commanded that hands should be washed before prayer and before eating.

4736. ‘As soon as they enter the Tent of Meeting, they must wash themselves with water, lest they die’.

4737. King David declares: ‘I will wash my hands in innocence and encircle the altar of Elah’.

4738. The belief that the New Testament heard the voices: “And a voice came from the cloud, saying: This is my beloved Son: listen to him” from the Gospel Does God have a Son with whom He can be compared?

4739. Not much.

4740. Our Elah is a spirit who is neither born nor dies, the self-creator of all things, having neither sons nor daughters, Elah of the whole earth.

4741. God cannot have an ‘Only Son’, for He is an eternally existing spirit, having no body, begetting no one and nothing.

4742. He has always existed and will exist forever, and there is no need to reduce Him to human form and shape.

4743. Whom, then, do you wish to listen to: God or the empty Gospel?

4744. The prophets declared that they would worship no male or female figure.

4746. The worship of any prophet—be it Moses or any other after him—is blasphemy, idolatry, and brings a curse upon the earth and upon the people participating in this abominable cult.

4747. Belief in the New Testament: ‘In my name they will cast out demons’ from the Gospel they will pick up snakes, and if they drink anything deadly, it will not harm them; they will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover”.

And what became of those who took this verse literally – drank poison and died of poisoning?

4748. Christians certainly view this verse in a figurative sense, but in the early days of Christianity it had a literal meaning – and a very dangerous one at that.

4749. This is an innocent commandment which – taken literally by fanatics – can cause harm and even lead to the loss of life.

4750. Life is sacred to God, but in this verse that is far from the truth.

4751. David declared:

‘For you formed my inward parts; you knitted me together in my mother’s womb’ .

4752. There is therefore no need for that which is harmful, destructive to the soul and body of man.

4753. Will the end of the world ever come?

4754. Has God predestined the end of this earth for us?

4755. The Gospel of Mark 13:4 “Tell us, when will this happen?

4756. And what will be the sign when all these things begin to take place?”

The earth will be sown for eternity – this is how the prophet David describes it in his ‘The righteous shall inherit the earth and dwell therein for ever’.

4757. So is it worth believing in the end of the world?

4758. No, because it will not happen.

4759. The interpretation attributed to Jesus has misused the words of the prophets, going beyond their intentions, by believing in the inevitable ‘end of the world’. The end of the world is in fact the beginning of a new period in world history, not the end of the earth, but the beginning of the New Era.

4760. Who was the first of the disciples to have supposedly seen Jesus?

4761. Mary and Mary Magdalene, according to the Gospel of Matthew 28:1–9.

4762. Only Mary Magdalene, according to the Gospel of Mark 16:9

Only Cephas, according to Luke 24:18

There are countless contradictions between the various Gospels – concerning the fundamental tenet of Christianity – the resurrection of Christ.

4763. These contradictions are so significant that one might conclude that Jesus died a natural death, whilst the one from the expedition died as a martyr on the cross.

4764. Belief in the New Testament “And he was in the wilderness forty days, being tempted by Satan” from the Gospel

Is there even a grain of truth in this story?

4765. Can a person in their right mind sleep for 40 days and nights?

4766. Certainly not.

4767. Satan cannot tempt a man beyond his strength, unless God permits it – for Satan is sent by God and is not a rebellious angel.

4768. Job himself declares in his book that God sent Satan to tempt him, so how could Jesus curse Satan – sent by God Himself?

4769. ‘7 Satan departed from the presence of Elah and afflicted Job with malignant leprosy’ – this verse declares that Satan is part of ‘God’s Council’ composed of angels – who, as God’s servants, having no free will, serve Him day and night, carrying out His commands.

4770. This story is entirely deceptive – firstly, a human being is incapable of serving for such a long time, and secondly, according to the prophets, it is God Himself who sends Satan to test people.

4771. Thus, God sends Satan to tempt, accuse people and act as a spiritual obstacle.

4772. This gave rise to an infinite number of religions – from Rabbinic Judaism, Christianity and Islam to pagan religions, in which various miracles occur by Satan’s will – in order to ‘separate’ people from God, so that they themselves might be put to the test – and seek His Face.

4773. However, there is no actual struggle between God and Satan.

4774. The belief in ‘not resisting evil’ from the Gospel

This verse sounds rather flowery, but on closer inspection it is contrary to common sense, unjust and harmful.

4775. ‘Turning the other cheek’ or ‘forgiving’ the perpetrator of violence is a rather extreme way of thinking.

4776. Moses, unlike Jesus, killed the perpetrator who was abusing an innocent Hebrew.

4777. An admirable stance is to destroy the perpetrator and free the victim from him; this is true victory – not turning the ‘other cheek’, whereby the victim suffers endlessly.

4778. Abuse also involves the victim admitting that they themselves are to blame, and therefore, according to this verse, they should ‘forgive’ the perpetrator.

4779. This verse is unjust and unhealthy – it causes confusion and chaos in society, as it frees the perpetrator and punishes the victim.

4780. This verse is unjust because it implies that it is worthwhile to forgive the perpetrator and the offender – in which case the offence becomes innocent – whilst the victim may suffer harm – which amounts to accepting abuse and blaming the victim.

4781. The verse from the Gospel of Luke 6:29 speaks of being a victim of violence, of being a victim despite exposure, persecution and the physical and psychological trauma one may experience.

4782. Such an approach is destructive; it does not free victims from their persecutors, but causes further suffering for the victims.

4783. The belief in ‘not worrying about today’ from the Gospel
What is wrong with getting rich?

4784. What is wrong with thinking about the future, about feeding one’s family and earning a living?

4785. According to this verse, it is wrong – to become wealthy, to think about the future and to take care of daily life.

4786. The Book of the Father reveals something quite the opposite; we should sincerely desire to become rich in order to improve the world – money, wealth and becoming rich are helpful in improving the world and helping the poor.

4787. ‘Better is the modesty of the righteous than the abundance of many wicked people.’

4788. Wisdom lies in knowing moderation, modesty and faithfulness in all things, not in extravagance.

4789. And the ‘abundance of many wicked people’ may stem from attempts to limit one’s possessions, from unnecessary asceticism and detachment from everyday things – hence poverty and misfortune befall a person.

4790. Jesus was a magician and a Jew.

4791. Since ancient times, Zoroastrians – followers of the ancient Persian religion – have left the bodies of the dead to be devoured by vultures and animals, rather than burying them.

4792. Jesus referred to this in a similar way to the priests of Zoroaster – the magi in the Gospel of Matthew 8 – ‘22 But Jesus said to him, “Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead.”’
Christians interpret this verse figuratively, but to this day some Zoroastrians take it literally – that the dead should bury themselves, eaten by vultures.

4793. The belief in the ‘prohibition of divorce’ derived from the Gospel
This is an unjust verse, as it reveals that a wife has no rights whatsoever regarding divorce.

4794. This verse is unjust, because a woman who has ‘committed adultery’ has the same rights as a chaste woman, just as a husband and wife should have equal rights.

4795. This is yet another useless verse and quite cruel – do women not have the right to divorce if they so desire?

4796. These words contradict Moses’s instruction to give a wife a letter of divorce if she so desires.

4797. Does the woman referred to in this verse have no rights at all?

4798. Is a woman the property of a man until she dies and is replaced by another?

4799. Of course not – a wife has the same rights over her husband as a husband has over his wife, and the same applies to divorce.

4800. The Prophet declared: ‘When a man marries a woman and she does not find favour in his eyes because he has perceived some indecency in her, he shall write her a letter of divorce, place it in her hand and send her away from the house, and she shall leave his house, go and become the wife of another man’.

4801. Belief in ‘eternal hell’ from the Gospel – according to their verses, it is better to be disfigured than to end up in eternal hell – as God’s punishment?

4802. The purpose of this verse is to intimidate people, especially Christians, who believe that the Gospel is the Word of God – which it is not.

4803. In reality, God does not require such a sacrifice to destroy the body – so penance aimed at humiliating the soul – is forbidden.

4804. Christians believe that Jesus spoke symbolically; in reality, some early Christian sects took these words literally – and so deified themselves in the name of their own folly.

4805. Such extremism and asceticism are harmful and destructive.

4806. Unless a particular faith is not at odds with the faith of the prophets – such as Rabbinic Judaism, Christianity or Islam – all such faiths must be rejected.

4807. For they are contrary to the teachings of the prophets, the true destiny of humanity, and the knowledge of God.

4808. Surprisingly, hell is not a place of eternal damnation, but a temporary place where the soul repents, draws closer to darkness – moving away from Elah – or draws closer to the light – drawing closer to Elah – provided the soul acted righteously in life.

4809. It is sad to think that Elah, who is neither born nor dies, would wish bodily suffering upon any soul; hell must be understood in a figurative sense.

4810. The torments of hell are not physical, but true hell is spiritual, and the darkness of hell – separation from God – is far more devastating than physical suffering.

4811. It may be said that hell is on earth; people suffer, there are diseases, death and destruction.

4812. We have found hell here on earth; people on this earth have experienced enough suffering to seek it endlessly after death.

4814. Sheol is like purgatory, where souls ascend step by step – ‘dreaming’ upon the steps of glory, or downwards in misery they plunge into the abyss of oblivion, and cut off from God’s light they are oppressed; not strengthened by God’s light, they fade and are sent to the abyss prepared ‘for eternal abhorrence’.

4815. The soul is undoubtedly immortal; it may fall if it shows no repentance, or it may be glorious if it shows repentance – then it will be united with Elah in eternity.

4816. Belief in the ‘Eucharist’ from the Gospels – In this verse, the false Christian Gospel taught that one should drink the wine of Mithras and consume the body of Osiris, drawing divine energy from them.

4817. The belief in the Eucharist was borrowed by the authors of the Gospels from Mithraism and the cult of the god Osiris.

4818. Osiris was an idol of the sun cult, and to this day most Eucharists are shaped like the ‘sun’, so Christians worship the sun without realising that in doing so, they are worshipping sun idols instead of the God of Gods.

4819. This is ritual cannibalism – so that the energy, the ‘magic’ of the blood and the power flowing from the ‘body’ become visible to the adepts of this cult – in this way the cult of Mithras and the cult of Osiris merged – forming the remnants of the Christian cult of the Eucharist and the ‘Supper of Elah’.

However, God forbade the worship of the sun through the prophets: ‘Whoever goes and serves the gods of other peoples and worships them, whether the sun, the moon, or anything in the heavenly host, which I have not commanded’ .

4820. ‘And take heed that you do not lift up your eyes to heaven, and seeing the sun, the moon, the stars, and all the host of heaven, feel inclined to worship and serve them, which Elah, your God, has given to all peoples under the whole heaven as an inheritance’ .

4821. God also forbids all human sacrifices – including that of the teacher Jesus himself – because those who participate in such worship bring a curse upon themselves.

4822. “For I desire love, not sacrifices; the knowledge of God, not burnt offerings.”

4823. This verse clearly states that when the Jews were in exile, they did not need sacrifices of lambs or human sacrifices to supposedly appease God’s wrath – on the contrary, they offered sacrifices with their lips – forgiveness was received through prayer.

4824. Even if God had not appointed priests and sacrifices, Jesus’ sacrifice would have been useless; Abraham, Noah and all the others did not first desire sacrifices of calves; God tested them, revealed Himself through atonement, and they sought salvation in Him.

4825. There was no need to offer burnt offerings to appease a supposedly angry God – on the contrary, burnt offerings were an expression of gratitude and thanksgiving.

4826. Offerings were also made of poppies and plants, and in no way do they refer to Jesus' sacrifice on the cross.

4827. And when Christians hear such biblical verses, they are perplexed – they do not have the courage to admit that Jesus' sacrifice was useless, and that the claim that 'Jesus died for me' is a lie. Christians do not know the Father of the Book; they adapt some verses to Jesus, whilst distorting others to fit the Gospel.

4828. Unfortunately, the Gospel is a falsified book, full of contradictions.

4829. Belief in 'disrespect for parents' from the false Gospel

This verse reveals that Jesus over-interpreted the words of Moses to such an extent that he commanded the murder of innocent children even for the innocent sin of cursing one's parents.

4830. Some of Jesus' teachings contained in the false Gospel were taken too far, and this path proved to be false, uttering such words as 'that a child is guilty of death' in accordance with the distorted word of Moses to 'honour mother and father'. After all, in his time it was common practice that even then the death penalty for offences had been abolished – compensation was awarded instead.

4831. These words from the Gospel are absurd and contrary to the truth; they are also contrary to the Words of Moses and their true interpretation.

4832. This interpretation, supposedly by Jesus, is false.

4833. Was Jewish tradition an abomination to Jesus – was saving the life of a child who had defiled his father and mother supposedly unacceptable to Jesus?

4834. This tradition is and was far more valuable – because it saved the child's life, and in return a gift was received – an offering to the priest in the form of a dove.

4835. The Jews and the Pharisees did well to interpret Moses' commandment and thus save the lives of children.

4836. Here, the false gospels are groundless, cruel and contrary to the law in force at the time.

4837. Reason has also abolished the laws – stoning 2), burning alive 2), beheading 4), suffocation 5) – of the Torah, because voluntary obedience, repentance and forgiveness are dearer to God than punishment.

4838. God will also save those who help the poor in the last days, and they will receive forgiveness without sacrifice.

4839. The Sabbath was established for the Jews for all eternity, but we walk the path of the Gate's righteousness, so we have received the Sabbath.

4840. It is not through the blood of men or animals, but through trust in God that you shall receive forgiveness – by practising justice, renouncing violence and helping the poor – you shall become great in the eyes of God.

4841. In the future, the righteous shall bring sacrifices to Elah, on His holy mountain, solely for unintentional sins; therefore the prophet Isaiah declared: 'I will bring them to my holy mountain and give them joy in my house of prayer.'

4842. Their burnt offerings and sacrifices shall be accepted upon my altar, for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations."

4843. However, those who kill without remorse are to face the death penalty.

4844. The names of criminals and murderers are to be blotted out from among them; on the basis of many witnesses and testimonies, their punishment is to follow. How should a murderer be judged?

4845. Here is the answer to that question: it is the duty of the authorities to pass a lawful judgement, but it is God who judges and passes the final judgement, for He is the Righteous Judge who judges in righteousness.

4846. If one believer engages in a one-on-one struggle with another believer, seeking to be a 'champion' for God, this is a path leading to division.

4847. The righteous may attain salvation not through their deeds, traditions and excessive religiosity, but through faith in the One God and observance of the commandments – the 10 ‘Words of Moses’.

4848. Abraham believed in Elah without expecting a reward; if someone expects a reward and exalts themselves, by what right can they serve God as a humble person?

4849. You have also heard that ‘the righteous shall live by faith’.

4850. Excessive piety in the form of excessive fasting, rituals and ceaseless prayers will sanctify no one.

4851. However, knowledge, the pursuit of knowledge, love of goodness, doing good and abiding in it will make one holy.

4852. God has decreed that He shall not be a slave to any man.

4853. The Hand of God – Moses led the righteous out of Egypt so that they would not obey men who were blind, full of pride, self-satisfaction and a lust for power.

4854. Any clergyman who seeks power and follows the path of manipulation can leave spiritual Egypt; he should be ashamed of his deeds.

4855. In many faiths, clergymen understand that their infallibility is a gift from God.

4856. According to their own thinking, they are the ‘purifiers’ – yet infallibility actually applies to all the Righteous who believe in God and love Him with all their hearts.

4857. However, it is the believers themselves who can purify others of injustice; clergymen should be helpers, not guiding people as they see fit – bending the Law.

4858. The abolition of all wars was proclaimed in this way: ‘On that day I will make a covenant for them with the wild animals, the birds of the air and the creatures that crawl on the ground; I will also remove the bow, the sword and war from the earth.

4859. In this way I will let them rest in safety”

O, go on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem to make a pilgrimage – it is best to visit your heart, look into your conscience and examine it, O soldier, examine the depths of your mind, how do you oppose your rulers?

4860. Do not let hatred guide your rulers; strive to disarm your mind and be guided by brotherly love.

4861. Under no circumstances must you torment anyone, for the hearts of believers are closer to God than a speck of dust.

4862. Surely God Himself did not proclaim this, for it contradicts the words of Moses.

4863. Put on sackcloth so that you may not eat pork and nothing unclean may enter your mouth, but only holy words.

4864. The Finger of God has testified that the previous revelations have passed away; the glory of the Avesta has passed away, the glory of the Gospel and the glory of the Qur’an; now the glory of the prophets shall be fully revealed.

4865. Elah is the Truth and His Holy Tanakh; this statement concerns the light in the mouths of the prophets, for both have united with the God of Love, attaining the Paradise of Elah’s Unity.

4866. God said to Noah: You and your children have the right to rest on the days of sowing, harvest, and when the earth rests; you and your children after you, let them rest on these days.

4867. I have given you rest in the middle of spring – Hag Gilyana – 12 April, and in the middle of summer, when you gather the harvest from the fields – Hag Ginnata – 1 June.

4868. I have given you rest when you bring the flocks in from the pastures, when you remember the souls of your departed – Hag Qeyamat Metin – 13 April, when you await the Day of Resurrection, the day of spring and immortality – Naw Ruz – 21 March.

4869. Elah expects His day to be regarded as holy, so that on Yom Tahara – 2 October – you may direct your supplications solely to Him.

4870. And Elah created the heavens in the middle of spring, and poured forth the waters of the heavens from the foot of the earth in the middle of summer.

4871. Elah created the dry land in autumn, when the harvest is gathered, and the plants on the day when the flocks are brought in.

4872. Elah created all the animals so that they would neither kill nor cause harm, as today is the middle of winter.

4873. Elah created man from clay, when today the souls of the dead are remembered.

4874. Elah also revealed himself through his Spirit in the form of fire; he became visible on the Day of Spring and Light, and on that day he also rested.

4875. Similarly, every day created by God can be a Sabbath, so feel free to choose the day on which you wish to worship God.

4876. Did not the voice conveyed by the angel Gabriel reach Muhammad in accordance with the fulfilment of his tiqqun?

4877. This is a statement concerning various human revelations.

4878. And God sent Satan to mix truth with falsehood for the Apostle of Tarsus.

4879. Did not the light blind the eyes of the man from Tarsus, until he saw the falsehood of an eternal radiance, irreconcilable with the measure of Jesus?

4880. Do not the pagans manifest themselves in various miracles, various wonders?

4881. What does God do, if not send Satan himself to become an obstacle on the path to His salvation?

4882. Choose the right path, the path of the righteous, and drive out Satan.

4883. Is it not a mystery that a teacher who stumbles in his words becomes a lesson for others?

4884. For he who has led many astray shows how much the Truth is needed.

4885. The faith of the prophets must be spread through the meaning of the Holy Scriptures conveyed to all nations; this faith and virtue is rooted and grows through the 'Ten Commandments' of Moses.

4886. The Qur'an and the Gospels of the clergy must be abolished, for they do not all follow the paths of righteousness, and some of their words turn people away from the worship of God alone.

4887. It is necessary to combine several verses from the Tanakh and other Holy Scriptures in order to understand the whole story or the many verses contained in this book; there is no need to add or take anything away from this book.

4888. Otherwise, if one does not combine many verses of the Tanakh, one will not gain a proper understanding or will misuse the verse, following the path of fanaticism.

4889. The Holy Scriptures are merely an explanation of this text, reaching back to the sources of all the world's faiths, revealing knowledge of Elah from the perspective of many beliefs.

4890. This faith has extended its boundaries of perfection to the West to enlighten many nations – East and West must become one, in the One God.

4891. Jesus never claimed to be God or the Messiah – he was a sign, not the light; a teacher, not the goal.

4892. Divinity was in the Father, not in him.

4893. It is essential to proclaim emphatically that Jesus was a teacher, but not the prophesied Messiah who was to rebuild the Temple and bring universal peace.

4894. The Temple still stood in Jesus' time; it had been destroyed in ancient times – the Messiah must rebuild the Temple in order to reign from Jerusalem, put an end to wars, and unite the nations that have suffered losses in war.

4895. What, then, will the Last Messiah, sent by Elah, do?

4896. He will bring boundless peace; faith in the One God will spread; there will be no place on earth for violence and hatred.

4897. The words 'He will bear witness to me' will restore Jesus's good name among the Jews and reveal the true meaning of His Teachings—as those of an ordinary rabbi—to Christians.

4898. In matters both spiritual and temporal, there must be no excessive oversight by the future Grand Council.

4899. Excessive classification of leaders is to be restricted and abolished, and the absolute authority of the clergy is to be abolished.

4900. In matters of the heart and the spirit, differing opinions are welcome, and no one should be excluded because of differences of opinion.

4901. Different opinions are welcome, for everyone has a different view of this world, and we should not fear one another – let us not seek enemies within ourselves or amongst us.

4902. The right advice is not to avoid this corrupt world; if we become the light of this world, the world can become a paradise.

4903. We should not divide people into better and worse; let us not divide people according to their beliefs, but according to the spirit within them; let us not divide people according to gender, for men and women were created equal.

4904. It is sound advice to avoid all violence and to quell all hatred.

4905. It is sound advice to establish a Great Council headed by 70 elders, so that they may be neither infallible nor fallible, but just in their actions.

4906. It is right to advise against exploiting the poor and to give to them from the heart, for God rejoices greatly, and you receive salvation and forgiveness of sins – for this is a great gift.

4907. It is sound advice to teach that one should not hurt with words, and to allow women to marry non-believers; there are no objections to this.

4908. A woman was not created as a weak vessel, yet opposition to her husband should not restrict her will.

4909. It is just advice to be disobedient; do not condemn anyone who has strayed and refuses to remain in Elah.

4910. It is just advice to invite everyone on Friday evening – yes, our brothers – Jews, Muslims, Christians – to prayer.

4911. Righteous counsel is to make every believer a spiritual person, full of desirable qualities, but one must not shun those who have strayed from the path of faith, nor divide families in the name of God.

4912. Sound advice is not to invite prophets into one's heart, but to exalt God alone, for His Name shall be exalted above all names.

4913. Sound advice is that the teaching of the faith should not become a duty; everyone is accountable to God, so let them preach with gentleness in their hearts.

4914. It is sound advice to be an independent person, to treat oneself with full grace, believing wholeheartedly in the One God, to repent before Elah, and not to allow the secrets of one's inner self to become the secrets of human imperfections.

4915. It is good advice that those who do not believe in the tenets of a particular faith should not be slandered or questioned.

4916. One should not slander a brother or sister without cause.

4917. It is good advice not to lecture sinners excessively, nor to sadden or depress them.

4918. If your friend has strayed, lift him up and do not humiliate him; if he has committed a minor transgression, show him the right path.

4919. And whoever believes in the evening or in the morning, let them gather on the Sabbath for prayer, as was customary among the believers.

4920. Then sing the New Song.

4921. O, sing a new song to the nations, sing joyfully to the whole earth.

4922. O Elah of the Universe,

You were, You are, and You will be,

We beseech You, O Elah

Remember us,

Elah, please strengthen us with Your arm,

This is my only request – may Your Word reach the ends of the earth,

Come now, my friend, and rest,

Let us meet in faith, let us welcome Elah,

In this gathering – this is my prayer, a sincere confession of my sins,

You, the merciful One, have not forsaken me

You have not forsaken me in times of trouble.

4923. Do not forsake us even for a moment,

For today is the day of Your glory,

So remember – God Himself has declared it,
 He is the One who is neither born nor dies,
 He is the Creator of the ends of the earth,
 He alone gives life and He alone saves from death,
 He is the Rock for those who suffer hardship and all misfortunes,
 Give glory to the Father of nations,
 Offer the nations the sacrifice of your lips,
 Therefore say: Elah is the only King,
 He is the Redeemer of us all,
 Go then to meet Elah, and you shall find peace.
 4924. He is the source of all blessing,
 He is our peace, who brings respite
 Draw near to His door with joy and gladness, and you shall find peace.
 4925. Go then, chosen ones among many,
 Let all idols fall before His name,
 Let the earth tremble at the sight of His majesty,
 Come with joy and gladness to His door, And you shall rest.
 4926. Let only Elah be praised,
 Let everyone together praise only Elah,
 He is, was and will be,
 He has always existed without bounds,
 He is incomprehensible in His greatness,
 He is not incarnate,
 Nor is He a man,
 nor was He a woman
 He has no enemies,
 No one can compare with Him
 He has no intermediaries, for He alone has sanctified Himself,
 So go, sing joyfully to Elah,
 He is the Rock of our salvation,
 Let us go to His door with thanksgiving
 Let us shout for joy – He is Elah of all the earth,
 So go, worship Elah
 The Father without beginning or end,
 Our Father, strong and mighty
 Come with joy and gladness to His door, and you shall find rest.
 4927. He is our rest,
 Before He existed, there was not even darkness, yet He was.
 4928. When there was no beginning yet, and even the end had not begun, He was from eternity.
 4929. He is the One, for there is no other Saviour but You,
 There is no one else to whom one might turn for salvation.
 4930. There is no one else to meet
 Come to His door with joy and contentment, and you shall find peace.
 4931. Amen.
 4932. He has become the Elah of all things,
 He desires every star by name,
 For in His house there is but one door,
 So pass through me, I have been taught to be the gate to Elah,
 Draw near to His door with joy and gladness, and you shall find rest.
 4933. And when He had created all that He desired,
 He called His family good,

He made himself Elah of the earth, He called himself King of heaven and earth, at the beginning he declared: I have given you ten words,
He changed no other Law, for no one else
He is my banner
He is my refuge
On the day I call upon Him,
He comes to our aid
He is the one who watches over us
He knows our thoughts
He sees the beginning and end of our deeds,
Come, all you who are lost – He will not turn you away
So pass through His door,
He will surely welcome you, He will not turn you away.

4934. Come, you who are weary,
Surrender your souls, asking Him morning or evening,
He will gladly forgive,
And though you have poured out many sins before Him,
He will show you mercy and will not spare you,
Why do you have so many intermediaries?
4935. Is it for your destruction?
4936. He, Elah, rejects evil and multiplies good,
Rejoice therefore in Elah,
Rejoice, therefore, you saints, you faithful!
4937. O our Elah, enlighten our eyes with this Revelation
May our souls hold fast to all Your Laws,
Amen.

4938. O our Elah,
unite our souls and that Your name may be exalted,
and may our lives be lived in love,
And when the Arm of Elah is revealed, when the jewels of the people are gathered,
all nations shall become one,
All nations will cast aside their hatred,
All nations shall proclaim: We are brothers to one another.
4939. He is also the Elah of life; He will revive the dead at the end of the world,
The blessing of His Name and His glory are immeasurable,
And may He alone bless our souls and our bodies,
So say – Elah is among us, I shall not fear the darkness,
He is our light,
The only Saviour of mankind,
Amen.

4940. Christian clergy and imams demand loyalty to Christianity and Islam, threatening hellfire otherwise.

4941. But what of those who have never heard of Christ and have had no opportunity to become Muslims or Christians?

4942. These two religions have become sects through the misrepresentation of the words of Christ and Muhammad – they enforce mutual dependence, care neither for God nor for people, and serve their own self-interest.

4943. Reward and punishment pertain to this life, not to the life of the soul after death.

4944. Christians are misled by the Gospel's erroneous belief that 'Jesus died for them', just as Muslims deeply believe that violence and 'holy war' will spread God's name amongst the nations.

4945. We must not follow the errors of Christianity and Islam, where Christians expected the return of Christ during his lifetime, and Christ was later recognised as God, whilst Islam is guided by excessive violence, exerting influence over people through corporal punishment.

4946. Do not follow evil paths, breaking up families for your own pleasure.

4947. Do not seek enemies within your families, nor amongst your fathers or mothers, nor harbour hatred towards your children.

4948. Nor must you follow paths of excessive superiority towards your neighbours, nor belittle your martyrdom and your pride amongst yourselves.

4949.) ‘10 You are My witnesses,’ declares Elah, ‘and My servant whom I have chosen, that you may ponder and believe in Me, and understand that I am He.

4950. No god arose before Me, and none shall come after Me.

4951. 11 I, yes, I am Elah, and there is no other Saviour besides Me.”

4952.) stoning in the Torah – Deuteronomy 13:7–10, Deuteronomy 21:22, Deuteronomy 22:23, Leviticus 20:27, Exodus 21:17, Exodus 17:4, Numbers 25:4, Exodus 21:16, Leviticus 20:9, Exodus 22:18, Numbers 15:35, Leviticus 24:23.

4953.) burning alive in the Torah – 38:24, Leviticus 20:14, Leviticus 21:9, Joshua 7:15-25, ) beheading in the Tanakh – Deuteronomy 13:14-16, 2 Samuel 4:5-12 ) strangulation in the Tanakh – 88:16

Women

There is only one God who created everything,
 Some call Him the Formless God, others call Him Elah, yet others call Him God, but Elah is One above all, He has taken neither son nor daughter for Himself, He has never begotten nor been begotten.

4954. He is the One who has no adversaries, He is the One who has no equal, He created great light out of darkness, from My generosity He created light,
 He found a pearl in the depths of the ocean; from the depths of darkness He drew forth the Great Words, which He shaped,
 He is Elah of life. Worship only Elah.

4955. Only He, Elah, possesses all the qualities necessary for your perfection.

4956. And He proclaimed that on the wings of birds the souls of the saints ascend to heaven,
 Our Elah is Father and Mother,
 Elah who delivers from chaos, and Elah of wisdom,
 Elah created the entire universe from His Spirit; from the light of chaos He created the fullness of life.

4957. Women are like vessels full of purity, full of virtues; they gather perfection.

4958. The woman of light is like the purest ocean, absorbing all the virtues of compassion, friendship and harmony.

4959. There is no trace of licentiousness or deceit in her.

4960. One must reject the view that women are irresponsible, foolish and incompetent; in reality, God has made them independent of men; they can free themselves from the snares of their husbands and fathers whenever they wish.

4961. As for waiting for the ‘approaching end of the world’, I shall gladly remain on earth, even if those Christians await a timid ‘rapture’; is it not in vain to await the end of the world if the earth endures forever and Elah remains its sole ruler?

4962. To wear a belt of light around the hips?

4963. Why do you say it was a veil for the face, when they wore a penitential belt, donning a wreath of perfection by pinning up their hair?

4964. Why then do they lie and explain the clergy in a perverse manner?

4965. Woman was not created as inferior to man; God made them equal in all characteristics, qualities and roles.

4966. Divorced men and women wait for the same number of months, that is, 12 months.

4967. Men have no greater right over women; everyone must spend the waiting period in the same way.

4968. The punishment is also double for anyone who has wronged his wife, daughter or mother in word or deed.

4969. It is the woman who bears the burden of giving birth to, raising and caring for children, so why should husbands disregard their wives' contributions?

4970. Never.

4971. Men and women should be punished in the same way.

4972. If a man kills a woman, he should be apprehended and punished; if a woman kills a man, she should be apprehended and punished.

4973. Because of their cruelty, selfishness and stupidity, men have made women their subordinates and servants.

4974. Yet if, of their own free will, they wished to equalise the position of the sexes, Elah would exalt them all.

4975. God has not subjected anyone to His will, but men have made themselves slaves in their own twisted way.

4976. Do not show favouritism amongst your children; do not divide them into better and worse; do not assign bitterness to your daughters and exaltation to your sons.

4977. Treat your daughters on a par with your sons, so that they may honour your name.

4978. And God did not make a woman a slave to her husband, nor did a husband make his wife a servant.

4979. And God did not create wives for your pleasure, but made them the head of the family, and made husbands the neck.

4980. And Allah has made them equal; they are like close friends to one another.

4981. In him and in her you will find peace and respect.

4982. The testimony of two women is not equal to that of one man.

4983. The testimony of two truthful women is equal to that of two men.

4984. God has quenched the dark hell with His tears of forgiveness; the souls of women, for the most part, do not descend there, but only despondency awaits them.

4985. The punishment of the soul is worse than the punishment of the body.

4986. Both men and women engage in scheming; there is no greater sinner among men or women; all sin in equal measure and all seek forgiveness from the One God.

4987. God has not made the home or women sinful; love may blaze in the home, and in a woman one may find compassion, a willingness to forgive, and mercy.

4988. Righteous women can be recognised by the fact that they respect themselves, their children and their husbands.

4989. Unjust husbands can be recognised by the fact that they are cruel, reckless and lose self-control, harming their families and wives.

4990. It is unjust and cruel to give a wife to her husband if she suffers in body and soul.

4991. Surely the Father from on high will bring relief to the soul in need; let her seek salvation in Elah, her family, and let her expect all help.

4992. No word of opposition to My Word shall arise of its own accord, but if such words succeed, righteous are those who heed My counsel and put it into practice.

4993. Who has the greatest right to a woman?

4994. Prophets who preach lies are those who seek to separate the sexes; they, too, see nothing just in a woman; they are false deceivers.

4995. The answer is: a woman is 'god' over her own body, just as a man is; there is no difference between them, not even the slightest.

4996. You are all sons and daughters of the Most High God.

4997. A woman should not bow down before a man, for by worshipping a creature, she becomes an idol-worshipper.

4998. A man should act in the same way.

4999. God created the first pair of twins as a single whole, but later divided them into two equal halves.

5000. Do you need further proof that Elah made man and woman equal?

5001. The sin of beating one's wife, even out of fear of her disobedience, always remains a sin whose stain is hard to wash away.

5002. A nation will not perish but will prosper, and its blessing will endure, if it acknowledges the error that women were made inferior.

5003. Neither a wife, nor a daughter, nor any woman was created as a commodity for her husband, father or son.

5004. It is the sins of the fathers that weigh upon them; the burden of their sins reaches the ears of God Himself.

5005. Nor does divorce lie solely in the hands of the man; a woman has the right to seek a divorce when it is inconvenient for her.

5006. It was once decreed that the rape of a woman, wife or daughter is tantamount to murder.

5007. Know that the five books of the Torah, the Gospel, the Qur'an and subsequent scriptures have been abrogated in this Revelation. How do you understand the word 'abrogated', O man?

5008. You should understand that the time of revelation is the valley of separation from God and the mountain of union with Him.

5009. The Torah was fulfilled in the Gospel, the Gospel in the Qur'an, the Qur'an in the Persian Bayán, the Persian Bayán in the Writings of Bahá, and the Writings of Bahá in the Writings of the Mother of the Book.

5010. The Scriptures give birth to new Revelations, just as the Father Hei gave birth to His Son – Vav.

5011. The Word of Hei, which created Vav, has not been erased, but enriched, bringing previous ages to an end and ushering in new ages of the world.

5012. The words of the Torah of justice have not been annulled, but renewed in the Mother Book, just as the words of the Torah of violence, vengeance and hatred have been abolished in the Mother Book.

5013. This is precisely how the meaning of the word 'abolished' should be understood.

5014. Neither the pagans, nor the unbelievers, nor those who believe in God have been defiled in the eyes of God, but Elah has engraved His adornments upon them.

5015. And God did not cause all good, sorrow or misfortune to come from Himself, but man oppresses man, and therefore suffering falls upon the earth.

5016. The heavens have also decreed that when the unbeliever doubts, let him do so; let his will be done.

5017. If you have devoted yourself entirely to God, where within yourself will you proclaim free will?

5018. It is not good for a man to become a slave to God; it is wise to direct one's steps towards the path of righteousness, and then to lift one's gaze towards Elah in prayer.

5019. Nor has the right to kill unbelievers been granted; the laws of retaliation from the Qur'an and the Torah have been abolished; let us rather raise the banner of mercy and peace, rather than vengeance and war.

5020. By God, He will not forgive a murderer for killing an innocent person if the murderer persists in his murder.

5021. The path of Elah is mercy, and the path of vengeance has been closed forever during this holy period.

5022. Moderation in all things is pleasing to God; He desires neither the poor nor the rich, neither the sorrowful nor the carefree; seek the middle way to bring balance to every corner of the soul, the spirit and the body.

5023. Examine your hearts, lest you seek pleasure in worldliness; you will find no happiness in either superfluous wealth or poverty.

5024. Turn away from the path of Islam, from the path of Christianity and the path of the rabbis.

5025. Come solely to God, the One Saviour and Redeemer of mankind.

5026. He will protect you, never impose unnecessary punishment upon you, bring relief in times of distress, calm you, and forgive you every time.

5027. The numerous commandments of the Torah are like a deep sea that cannot be crossed.

5028. The Mother Book is a bridge across which one may pass with dry feet.

5029. But would the bridge be a miracle if there were no sea?

5030. The best society is one in which the right to life is protected, where speaking the truth is not severely punished, where the sexes are treated equally, where people keep their word not to hate one another, and where all the blessings of heaven envelop the earth.

5031. Blind trust in God is blind faith; asking questions and questioning faith in God is great courage, it is the will that has been sent to humanity.

5032. Disbelief makes a wise man full of faith; boundless love and goodness may dwell within him, even if he denies the existence of God.

5033. This faith must overcome all obstacles, not through the force of violence, hatred and sowing discord, but through the power of unity, friendship and the pursuit of compassion.

5034. Wherever violence, strife and hostility intensify, this faith becomes a destructive force; but if we wish for God to triumph, He Himself will become for humanity the Elah of mercy, the loving Father.

5035. Thus our cause will triumph; even if we are few in number, even if we are weak, Elah will not forsake us.

5036. Elah did not promise me that I would become a Muslim, nor a Jew, nor a Christian.

5037. I seek only the face of the One God; in prayer I seek the glory of the One Elah and Saviour.

5038. God takes no pleasure in cutting off anyone's hands, but in their repenting and turning away from their wicked deeds.

5039. Seek God and His forgiveness, and you shall surely find them.

5040. Killing the unjust and the unbelievers has never been God's purpose; it is human selfishness, cruelty and hatred that drive believers to kill unbelievers.

5041. If anyone sets a trap for another by imposing a ban on them but cannot prove it, the one who lured them into the trap shall be sent to a 'place of refuge'.

5042. If anyone brings a charge of any offence before the elders and fails to prove what they allege, they shall be sentenced to

If anyone steals, the thief shall pay; if the thief has nothing with which to pay, he shall be sent to a 'place of refuge'.

5043. .

5044. If anyone commits theft and is caught, they shall be sent to a 'place of refuge'.

5045. Such was the case with the conception of Rabbi Jesus: a Roman soldier loved Mary.

5046. It was she herself who rejected Joseph, her husband.

5047. The Roman chose her, but Mary did not choose him; he was conceived as a result of rape.

5048. He, seeing his mother's suffering, declared: 'I am God' – those who rewrite the True Gospel have gone mad, writing lies into the Gospel they have created and corrupted.

5049. Seeking God within himself, he renounced the Most High God and blasphemed against the heavens – thus it was proclaimed by the prophets: 'And against the mighty of the mighty he will "speak wonders"', for he believed himself to be the 'incarnation of God', and his body to be the 'Temple'.

5050. How much evil has been wrought in the name of the False Gospel, how much innocent blood is on its hands, because of this self-exaltation and egocentrism of the False Christ, the 'God incarnate'—how many people has he led astray with this madness of false doctrine?

5051. Elah of our Temple binds us by an oath to enlighten our minds with his light.

5052. Prophets should be called sinners if one perceives sinlessness in them, which is a mistaken assumption, for only God has always existed without sin.

5053. In the past, loyalty to Jesus was enforced through pogroms, persecution and torture.

5054. Wherever Rome extended its tentacles, it threatened with God, hell and supposedly eternal punishment. Jesus is not responsible for the development of Christianity, for he did not create it, but it was created by a false prophet, the apostle Paul of Tarsus, the 'Antichrist', who altered time and law – replacing the prophets' festivals with pagan ones, reducing the Ten Commandments to a simplified version, and adding his own blasphemies to equate Christ with God – by introducing the notion of his alleged mediation.

5055. Jesus is dead, and his life cannot be restored until the coming of the Promised Messiah.

5056. The same applied to the teacher Muhammad; in his name, terrible atrocities were committed, and people were murdered and killed. All this was supposedly done in the name of God, whom they turned into a monster.

5057. Instead of seeking the Father's love, they made Him into a distant, stern and vengeful God.

5058. Christians added intermediaries and saints to God, and in doing so called God a liar, claiming that He had changed the law, whereas in reality He had changed nothing.

5059. Similarly, the imams have made the Father an enemy of His own people, terrifying the oppressed with hell and undeserved punishment.

5060. The threat of eternal hell, the severity of God, is pagan and does not serve to exalt Elah, but harms people themselves.

5061. The following verses from the Bible should be understood in this way, but one should not misuse these verses to veer to the right or to the left; it is better to follow the straight path in the middle.

5062. We should ask ourselves in our hearts: who are the messengers of God's message?

5063. 'Mirrors' is another term used to describe prophets with divine attributes.

5064. This does not, however, make a prophet equal to God as His incarnate representative on earth; on the contrary, prophets sinned and fell when they were not in a state of prophetic vision.

5065. Prophets cannot become sinless, even if they have been sanctified; the prophet Lot fell into the sin of incest with his daughters, the prophet David sinned with Bathsheba, and Solomon strayed from God for a time through worldly magic. Some have interpreted the writings of the Book of the Father as endorsing the 'sword' or 'conquest'. We should choose messages that emphasise the Father's justice, peace and unity, and reject the false Gospel that promotes the 'sword' and divisions instead of peace.

5066. and conquest and war against the surrounding peoples, just as in the Qur'an.

5067. The ways of Elah are inscrutable, and He chooses paths for the nations according to His will, making Jesus and Muhammad teachers of the nations. O people, heed my call; in every book you will find examples of the weakness of many people – they tell you what to avoid, as a result of their sins and transgressions.

5068. All the bodies of the prophets consist of spirit, soul and body – human vessels.

5069. Let us hold fast to the One God, rejecting any intermediaries between us and the Eternal.

5070. Elah has no equals among His companions, for when you pray only to Him, you heal the world, guided by the fruits of mercy, truth and justice.

5071. God punishes all people equally; He is the Great Punisher and the Great Comforter. How should we understand the meaning of the 'Seal of God'?

5072. Each of the prophets' seals was different when they began to proclaim the New Gospel, establishing the spiritual 'Day of Judgement', and when the Revelation became fully visible to them, establishing the spiritual 'Resurrection'.

5073. With the departure of the 'Spirit of God', His seal ceased, and with the coming of the new and ever-new 'Holy Spirit', a new, joyful light was expected.

5074. All the prophets represented the same 'Holy Spirit', and the renewal of faith begins with the opening of God's new seal.

5075. When the new seal is broken, a new, more perfect light reaches the recesses of the soul, illuminating the whole body and the whole mind.

5076. For a prophet to become the 'Seal of God', all revelations must be consistent with the previous revelation from the Father of the Book – the Tanakh; otherwise, such a revelation does not come from God.

5077. You deceivers may ask: prove, on the basis of the earliest Scriptures, that is, the Tanakh, whether your Words are equal to the Words of God Himself?

5078. If this prophet does not speak in accordance with the Tanakh, his Words do not come from God, and the prophet has added something to them or taken something away from them because of his pride.

5079. These words are in accordance with the Tanakh; they are the fulfilment of the Book of the Father.

5080. How many prophets have there been throughout the ages who spoke perversely, adding all manner of sweet-sounding phrases to the First Book, yet were not appointed by God?

5081. Thus, he who is truly appointed by God does not speak with sweet words, but speaks as Elah desires – such a one becomes the ‘Seal of God’, speaking the truth and not falsehood.

5082. Is it a great sin to teach people about the incarnation of God?

5083. Behold, I too say this – anyone who claims to be God in the flesh, ‘gouge out his eyes’, make him a terror for ever, so that he may be cursed and hated by all.

5084. The God of mercy will not forgive such a godless man; let him repent before God – let him cease to claim that he is God, for God and the Creator are One upon the earth; He and His name shall remain One for ever.

5085. The following verses from the prophecies are to be understood in this way; these verses should not be interpreted in any way other than as they were written –

‘For the wicked shall be cut off, but those who wait for Elah shall inherit the land.

5086. But for a little while, and the wicked will be no more; yes, you will search diligently for his place, and he will not be there.

5087. But the meek shall inherit the earth and delight themselves in the abundance of peace”

After the great battle of Gog and Magog, when the whole earth rebels against the Beautiful Land, there will be the extermination of the unjust clergy and the leaders of the side of evil, but those who seek the face of the One God will not be subjected to sorrow, but will experience an abundance of peace from the hand of the Messiah.

5088. “Nevertheless, as long as I live and as long as the Presence of Yah fills the whole world,” .

5089. “They shall neither harm nor destroy upon all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of Elah, as the waters cover the sea”,

“For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of Elah’s glory, as the waters cover the sea.”

5090. After the last world war, the Beautiful Land shall reign; all the Tribes of Elah shall gather; the King shall be crowned with glory and all power.

5091. Thus the Presence of Shekinah Yah will fill the whole world; He Himself, the Anointed One, as the Promised One, will neither do harm nor cause injury, and will bring about the end of war.

5092. For all the nations that gather in His Name shall worship only Elah above all Elahs and the King above all Kings.

5093. ‘For behold, I am creating new heavens and a new earth, and what has gone before shall not be remembered or brought to mind.

5094. But rejoice and be glad for ever in what I am creating; for behold, I am creating a joyful Jerusalem and a joyful people.

5095. And I will rejoice in Jerusalem, and I will make my people joyful; and the sound of weeping and the sound of crying shall no longer be heard in it.

5096. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, the lion shall eat straw like the ox, and dust shall be the serpent’s food.

5097. They shall neither harm nor destroy on all my holy mountain, says Elah.

In this verse, it should be remembered that the earth will not be consumed by fire, as some Christian sects claim; the end of the world will not come, but a new era in world history will begin.

5098. Elah will establish a new authority on earth, from which His eternal Word will flow; all joy will flow from Salem.

5099. Jews, including Christians and Muslims, will live in peace; they will not hate one another nor do one another harm; they will live like ‘the wolf and the lamb’.

5100. This New Boy is truly the ‘new heaven and the new earth’.

5101. 'You saw that a stone was cut out without human hands, and it struck the statue on its feet, which were made of iron and clay, and smashed them to pieces.

5102. Then the iron, clay, bronze, silver and gold were broken into pieces and became like chaff on a summer threshing floor, and the wind carried them away, so that no trace of them was found; but the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth."

In this verse we see that the Messiah himself will be regarded as an enemy of Jews, Christians and Muslims, and both these groups, under the influence of wicked clergy, will believe that the 'Antichrist' has come.

5103. For the Messiah, the Promised One, is to destroy the previous kingdoms, including Rome; hence Christians will see him as their worst enemy, instead of realising that God has sent a messenger, and that Elah is the One and Only Saviour.

5104. Because they saw in Him a monster, the 'Antichrist', instead of seeking refuge solely in Him.

5105. The phrase 'iron, clay, brass, silver and gold' refers to various sects and faiths, such as Judaism, Christianity and Islam, amongst which the Messiah came to live, and which he was unable to resist at all.

5106. The Messiah will therefore become like a great mountain, and his message "will fill the whole earth" – that God is the One God and Saviour of mankind.

5107. 'You may smash it with an iron hammer, shatter it like a potter's vessel'.

5108. 'You watched as a stone was cut out without hands, which struck the statue on its feet of iron and clay and crushed them'

Some Christian and Islamic sects interpret these verses in a transpositional manner to fit them to later teachers, Jesus and Muhammad.

5109. However, the role of the Promised One is to 'shake the pagans' – that is, to shake their erroneous, pagan beliefs; this was not fully fulfilled in the times of Jesus and Muhammad.

5110. For in our world, the majority of humanity still lives in paganism.

5111. The Messiah's second purpose is to 'break the idol', that is, in His time the old dominions and kingdoms will pass away, and His full authority over the earth will come.

5112. 'They shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more'.

5113. At that time, after the Great War, the Messiah, who as the 'great stone' has shattered the great image, will bring everlasting peace.

5114. The doctrine of eternal peace did not come to pass during the lifetime of the teachers – neither Jesus nor Muhammad – because God will assign a different task to the nations.

5115. Nor did it come through others who proclaimed only with words, not deeds: 'peace, peace, and there is no peace' – peace among nations has not come.

5116. In the world of the Messiah, the phrase 'they shall learn war no more' means that war will cease to exist; he himself will come among the many nations and bring lasting peace from generation to generation. Know this: all that I have said is true and shall surely come to pass. Amen.

5117. The Tree of Holiness

He, God, is One,

He, in the crown of the tree of holiness, created people equal to Himself,

He named this mystical tree the law of the Ten Words – the gate of compassion,

Amidst its branches, the branches of the holy tree, do not spare your selfishness; let it vanish.

5118. Do you not know that every nation has its own Elohim, each of them called mighty?

5119. Can you not confirm this?

5120. Is every nation united with its powers?

5121. By virtue of His Supreme Justice, they alone are worthy of worship and are called – the One Father.

5122. Let us therefore worship the One God, who rules justly, who reigns over angels and men

Let us worship and glorify the Father, the Almighty,

Let us also honour and praise His holy names at the proper time

He, Elah, is One, whose body is of light,

He is the Most Perfect,
He is Radiant and Glorious,
He is the Greatest and Best of the Yazads, whose name is Truth,
Who is the Creator of us all,
Who nourishes and protects us,
Who generously bestows His gifts
O our Elah,
May the song from our lips
May joy, truth and strength abide within us,
You, our Father,
Who protects faith in Truth and Peace
O You, Elah, who hears all prayers, who forgives all sins,
who dwells amongst pure thoughts,
Who feeds on the Word of Truth,
You who are the true teacher of humanity,
Who unites the earth with its inhabitants
He is Elah of the pure mind,
Elah of life and wisdom,
He helps us choose justice and do good,
It is He, through His goodness, who rules the world
With His love He surrounds us with His forgiveness
O Elah, reveal your face to us,
Grant us your strength and devotion to us,
Grant us purity of thought and deed
O our Elah,
Guardian of conscience,
Who unites Truth and Peace
You who reigned in the Kingdom of Light,
From the very beginning, you revealed the laws of purity
Through Your Shekinah, He Himself stripped the tyrants of their power, And gave kings of justice authority over us,
So let us work for Mother Earth, through Mother Shekinah, for the progress of light and the world, guiding all creatures along the straight path
He, Elah, is the One,
He is the Hearer,
He who answers prayers,
He who is Aware of things visible and invisible
He who is the Supreme Good,
He who is the source of all happiness
He who is the just administrator,
He who planted the tree of compassion, and in its branches established the Best Order – the law of the Ten Words,
It is He who bestows the finest gifts,
It is He who sends down the precious Shekhinah,
It is the Spirit of life, like rain nourishing dry earth,
It brings paradise, where good deeds are gathered
O my Creator,
I long to enter Your presence, O my Elah,
I long to enter the paradise of Your Oneness,

Tending to the light of Your Shekinah, lighting the lamp of a pure mind, we enter the paradise of Your Oneness,

Through a sanctified heart and pure hands I have beheld Your countenance, O my Elah,
Abandoning falsehood, I have beheld Your Shekinah, which is Truth, O my Elah,
O Elah, Satan is Your servant, He shuns the light, but people deny themselves respect through hatred; people change their own will and make themselves evil,
O our Elah, Your servant Satan does not dry up pastures and lakes, nor does he fight against the innocent, but people do this to themselves.

5123. O our Elah, let Satan be sent forth to create a great light out of darkness,
O our Elah, you called Job partial towards evil; in his suffering you made the light great.

5124. Oh God,

From the very beginning, You knew that...

5125. we are all Your beloved servants,
we all praise Your Holy Name,
we all serve You in word and deed
we all help all who suffer, we all defend truth and purity
we have all been created in Your image, we have all been endowed with the ability to think, speak and do good, we have all been created to make our own free choices,
we are all Your children may we all, as one soul, listen and pay heed to these truths, so that we may avoid temptation, falsehood and deceit so that we may break free from our attachment to falsehood so that we may break the chains of hatred and never part with peace so that we may break free from the snares of selfishness and not withhold a generous hand, so that we may turn away from the snare of greed and hold fast to purity, to avoid anger that causes harm and to maintain self-control,
to despise greed and respect one's neighbour,
to turn away from complaint and embrace gratitude,
to subdue pride and prepare oneself in humility,
to guard against envy and become accustomed to understanding others, to drive away thoughts of self-hatred and care for one's soul to remove all violence and be filled with friendship, to turn away from insolence and turn towards gentleness, to cut oneself off from cruelty and take part in acts of mercy, abandon the neglect of children and unite families in love, to avoid despondency and to live with one's neighbours in joy, to keep away from dishonesty and avoid shedding tears over the poor, not to despise one's parents, but to honour those who deserve it, put laziness aside and get to work,
to cut ourselves off from vindictiveness and not remember evil,
To extinguish all ingratitude and give generously out of love
Amen.

5126. God the One, 'Sun of Truth'

Elah is the One God,

He is not a man, He has no son or daughter,

True love is manifested in the fact that we act in accordance with the truth, speak the truth, and do not take offence at the insults of others.

5127. These truths which I present are eternal commandments, truths hidden from the eyes of men, and now revealed.

5128. Here on earth, let us not think that God's messengers are able to atone for the sins of the world; no prophet, nor Jesus, was able to cleanse a sinner of sin or suffer for the sins of his fellow men – Jesus was not the Saviour of anyone.

5129. Everyone bears their own guilt, and everyone is accountable to Elah for their deeds.

5130. Here on earth, let us strive to overcome ourselves – may people in marriage live in the fullness of love.

5131. So instead of looking for faults, let us seek virtues in one another, and we shall reap the reward of joy and happiness.

5132. Let us therefore surround ourselves with virtue; let virgins and young men live in purity, let them harbour thoughts of purity in their minds.

5133. We must know that all prophets are equal.

5134. There is therefore no such truth that Jesus was the Saviour, the literal Son of God, God in the flesh, the Creator of the world, the First and the Last – the ‘Immortal’.

5135. God, in His essence, cannot incarnate in any body; the mirrors are a reflection of God’s attributes in sanctified human bodies; they are the prophets.

5136. Nor was any prophet a ‘mediator’, for God is the Greatest of the Elahs; He Himself needs no mediators to draw near to Him.

5137. Moses was regarded as the finest leader, the noblest son of God, who could be conveyed, but in reality he reflected divine qualities like a mirror reflecting the rays of the Holy Spirit, and the source of warmth and love was the conveyed Sun of Truth.

5138. Thus, without being in the slightest degree ‘God’, Moses enjoyed ‘joy and contentment’, for God had endowed him with the attributes of wisdom and perseverance in following the path of life.

5139. God, whatever His name may be, is the Absolute Ruler; therefore, there are no gods equal to Him, and there are no intermediaries who could threaten His divinity.

5140. ‘Shekinah’ or ‘Armaiti’, ‘Ahura Mazda’, ‘Allah’ or ‘Yahweh’ are names for the same God the Father.

5141. As the Yasna itself describes, ‘Armaiti’ is not a separate deity, but an emanation of ‘faith and love’.

5142. Just as the Shekinah Power is an emanation of the soul of God Himself, so is His Shekinah Qadishsha here on earth.

5143. Therefore, seek no one on earth who calls upon God; He will hear and forgive, for He is close to the afflicted soul, and His eye is not closed to the repentant.

5144. All the religions of the world also describe God as the Elah of life, for He is indeed so, since He is able to restore a dead body to life.

5145. This care of Elah for the body, spirit and soul of man testifies that He is the Elah who enlightens the heart, for He gives hope that the dead will return from the worlds clothed in light, healed of their illnesses and worthy of further development in eternity.

5146. The prophets Moses and Daniel speak of the same thing.

5147. But truly God is close to those who prefer Him; He is patient with those who fall, eager to lift them up, erasing their sins.

5148. We should also know that, in essence, there are three aspects of man – spirit, soul and body.

5149. The body is limited and subject to decay, unlike the spirit – which is the opposite of what we find in the body.

5150. The ‘breath of life’—the spirit, like a lamp—desires the presence of the oil of Elah, which gives off the purest light, and is therefore responsible for spiritual matters.

5151. The soul, however, is our mind; it is responsible for the purity of the conscience or its defilement.

5152. The statement ‘guard your soul diligently’ proves that the soul is responsible for feelings, conscience and reason.

5153. Yes, the spirit and the soul are immortal and constitute the future heavenly body, a body made of light.

5154. Our faith, created by human hands and inspired by the Spirit of Elah, the Creator of heaven and earth.

5155. It must separate itself from the transient teachings of Christians, Muslims and Jews, and all the pagans around us; we must seek Elah with all our heart and love Him with all our soul. In the future, there will be a unification of all faiths; Elah will be God over the whole earth, and His Name will be One – all will know Elah, from the youngest to the oldest.

5156. Everyone will also abandon the letter of the laws of Muhammad and Jesus and adhere to the One World Faith – uniting all in Unity, love and friendship.

5157. Satan, the servant sent by God, will no longer be able to deceive anyone, for he has completed his work; all will be united in Elah.

5158. The world will abandon its old habits; the world will understand that Christ was merely consciousness, that he himself was united in the paradise of Elah's Unity, and that he himself also became the 'bearer of light' for Satan and his philosophy.

5159. He was one of the 'shattered mirrors of God' – which, upon returning to life through repentance, will be reunited once more.

5160. Thanks to them all, consciousness has grown, and knowledge on the path to God for the pagans has increased.

5161. Jesus' life has passed; it must be remembered that he was not God Himself, a mediator, or an angel, but merely 'the way', just as followers of Islam similarly refer to Muhammad.

5162. Let us therefore pray with gratitude to Elah and the Creator of heaven and earth; with raised hands, let us call upon His Holy Spirit.

5163. He will inspire pure thoughts in us, renew pure words within us, and adorn us with perfect deeds.

5164. Truly, Elah is near to those who fear Him.

5165. He is the joy, the strength and the help of those who suffer.

5166. Thanks to a pure mind and an enlightened conscience, they seek refuge in Him alone.

5167. Apart from Him alone, there is no one on earth or in heaven to whom one might turn for comfort or forgiveness.

5168. He is truly the One God, He who satisfies the faithful and those who seek forgiveness.

5169. And let us bring all souls to the One Elah; those who walk the paths of God – Elah, Allah, Yahweh, Mazda – let them come to Him, let them please Him with their supplications

O Elah, You have no enemies; even Ahirman-Satan has been made Your servant.

5170. O Elah, You have not made Yourself the Elah of Folly, but of knowledge; we, Your servants, are heading towards the gate of Your understanding, towards the gate of Your mercy, towards the gate of Your friendship.

5171. O our Elah, come to us, let us enter through the doors of Your temple, let us overcome the hatred of Your enemies with peace.

5172. Do even Christians, Muslims and followers of fire believe that Elah has enemies and fights against demons?

5173. Elah has no enemies; He is Elah of Knowledge; He does not fulfil desires, but we ourselves create them.

5174. Your names, O Father, are infinitely great, Your attributes are infinitely diverse, Your Name and Your answers to noble prayers are not hidden from You

He, God, is One; some call Him Mazda, others Allah, still others Yahweh, but He Himself has called Himself the Father of us all.

5175. It is the eternal truth of all existence that man should excel in mercy and restrain cruelty, that he should be kind to his family, that he should not lie or slander anyone

In all faiths, Elah has also hidden a little truth and a little falsehood; for He sent Satan.

5176. Let us therefore praise Elah for His Knowledge; He is Elah of great deception, who turns darkness into great light.

5177. Christians, Muslims and pagans who have wandered in darkness shall see a great light.

5178. For those who have wandered in the land of oblivion, a great ray of knowledge shall shine.

5179. Those who wander in darkness do no harm; keep your hand from violence, nor do harm to the righteous.

5180. Protect the good from the thunder of the lawless, those who abuse violence and seek discord
O all prophets, proclaim – Elah is the great Giver to mankind, He surrounds us with His strength and power through His Holy Spirit – ‘the Good Thought’.

5181. He endows the prophets with all sharpness of mind and the fullness of knowledge, and they guide souls along the paths of peace, purifying them of worldly influences and their selfishness.

5182. All prophets have been made the best of creatures; though sinful in their form, they have been made great through their noble deeds
O our Elah, grant that we may choose righteousness and root out evil within ourselves.

5183. May good thoughts shine in our consciences; may purity, love, stability and truthfulness grow within us; may the renewal of the heart flourish within us
Only through a contrite spirit can Elah renew us.

5184. Through good thoughts and their influence, I urge you to reject falsehood and help others walk the path of purity, to speak the truth, and to refrain from cruelty towards both people and animals
Do not speak of children as depraved sinners.

5185. Elah made the human soul pure at the moment of birth, so it is man himself who has corrupted himself through his ruinous habits.

5186. Let us therefore be like children, let us conduct ourselves with purity, listening rightly to God, let us be filled with sincerity of conscience
Speak the truth, then, and avoid hypocrisy; purify your tongue; love goodness, and abandon curses.

5187. The Almighty will hear and reward you.

5188. The True Light
O people, go to Elah, the Great Light,
to the Giver of the Great,
pass through the gate of His Love,
I am ashamed of the pernicious teaching of the Gospel; my tongue will not utter its name.

5189. It cannot obscure the light of my knowledge, it cannot obscure the light of my knowledge.

5190. Even if they rebuild the Holy Land, will the strangers do so because of their folly?

5191. Only in God – the One Just – does the light gather; there one may find the temple of gratitude.

5192. O believers, let love, not anger, consume you completely; let the light of the Temple of Heaven be revealed within us.

5193. O whatever it may be, obey the words of truth!

5194. It has also been proclaimed – Elah is the best of deceivers, spreading darkness, and from it spreading great light.

5195. Have you ever had visions of Jesus or Mary?

5196. People are really dreaming up images from their own minds, or Satan himself is playing tricks on them.

5197. Jesus, Mary and the other saints are dead, yet Elah forbids prayer to the dead – speaking to the spirits of the dead – so why do countless Christians worship the flesh instead of the God of Gods?

5198. Because that is how they were brought up; pagans have similar dreams; this is Satan’s deception in which they are trapped, and false dreams – ‘false visions and divinations, and things of no consequence, as well as the deceitfulness of their hearts’ – are passed down from generation to generation.

5199. In the future, after the Great War, all mosques, churches, synagogues, and the temples of Buddhists, pagans and Hindus will be transformed into houses of prayer, in which only one God will be worshipped.

5200. The prophet’s word will be fulfilled, saying that “in that time Elah will be one throughout the whole earth, and His name will be one”; all will know that the Father is the only Saviour and that there is no other God but Him.

5201. The Gospels are full of fables claiming that Jesus is the final Christ, that He is literally one with the Father, and that He took on human form whilst being 'God'. All of this is chaff and human invention.

5202. If one looks at the older revelations, there is no mention of this whatsoever.

5203. Christians delude themselves in vain that Christ will return; since he himself died, he will not return.

5204. In the Muslim Isha prayer, there are 17 rak'ahs between each prayer.

5205. God certainly does not respond to any prostration.

5206. Islam refers to Moses.

5207. It is true that Moses bowed before the burning bush, but this was a custom, not an obligation.

5208. True faith is simple and serves God alone; service to Elah should stem from love for Him, not merely be the performance of a ritual.

5209. We should seek Elah and love Him; we are not His slaves, He is our Father, who requires us to choose for ourselves what is dear and right to us.

5210. As for the journey of souls, we should know that it exists just as surely as the luminous resurrection itself.

5211. The body may be taken over by another soul, which chooses and comes into the world to atone or to perfect itself.

5212. Incarnated souls, after many journeys, encounter paradise or hell here on earth, depending on their past deeds.

5213. Elah is able to send souls into a new body; He is able to literally revive the dead and clothe them in garments of light.

5214. In the past, both Muhammad and Christ were paths to understanding the fundamentals of knowledge about God. We cannot rely on the first or the last; let us seek God's presence ourselves, without the help of intermediaries.

5215. It is a particular sin of mankind that they add intermediaries to God.

5216. They make golden calves out of these intermediaries and worship idols of flesh and blood instead of God.

5217. The heavens thunder, and God's grace vanishes from the earth when they worship the dead.

5218. Some say that 'faith in Christ is necessary for salvation', but I maintain the opposite: that only God can save you, and only in Him can you find forgiveness.

5219. Our faith does not focus on the worship of man, not even of Christ, for the only Saviour is Elah, and there is no other Saviour besides Him.

5220. It is a lie to believe that 'Christ was the Saviour'.

5221. Let us remember that salvation belongs solely to God.

5222. Let us never base it on devotion to any human being.

5223. All the books of the world have failed, and these words come from God, even in the face of the nations' wrath, confusion and doubt.

5224. God speaks in these days through these holy words – I alone am the Saviour of the whole world; no one can replace Me or take away My Holy Name; you cannot hand it over to prophets or to that which is transient.

5225. The corrupted New Testament and anyone who says, 'I am God in the flesh', is a liar and a deceiver; Elah did not send him.

5226. The distorted New Testament told such a great parable of salvation through Christ that many mistook it for the truth.

5227. Is it not Heaven's jest – that the lies of the Gospel become a lesson for generations?

5228. Christians say, 'You do not worship Christ'; what right do we have to believe you?

5229. I listen only to God, not to men; Elah has called us to exalt His name, not the name of any man, so there is no need to listen to the dead – including Christ – since God lives forever.

5230. Elah is God and the enemy of the Gospel.

5231. Human sacrifices did not redeem the world – but does this not teach us that God does not want blood, but hearts?

5232. A sacrifice that does not save, saves by revealing what salvation truly is: the All-Merciful God.

5233. If you wish to follow God's path, if you are a Christian, become a better Christian; if you are a Jew or a Muslim, do the same, without harming your neighbours.

5234. Are you assured of salvation?

5235. The followers of God have 'certainty of salvation' without Christ, because they enjoy the love of God Himself.

5236. They do not need an intermediary with God to intercede on their behalf, but come to God themselves to ask Him for forgiveness, a change of heart – repentance and inner transformation.

5237. God the Father is not distant from those who seek Him, and He does not reject those who long for deliverance from their sins.

5238. Christians seem to be trapped in original sin, and that is why they find it difficult to establish a relationship with God the Father.

5239. The truth is that original sin does not exist – it is a fabrication of the Apostle Paul of Tarsus, a lie that separates people from a loving God and makes Him cruel, desiring to send anyone to hell 'for eternity'.

5240. Paul of Tarsus, this is a lie that separates people from a loving God and makes Him cruel, desiring to send everyone to hell 'for eternity'.

5241. Humanity, however, was created with free will; it can refrain from doing evil, overcome its evil inclinations, and choose good over evil.

5242. The God of Christians is a cruel God, the God the Gospel has made him out to be, waiting only to send sinners to hell for 'eternal torment'. These exaggerations in the Gospels have meant that people have no relationship with God and turn to intermediaries, prophets and saints in a form of idolatry to appease a supposedly angry God – praying to Him for forgiveness and for the mitigation of His supposed wrath.

5243. The image of God is distorted, particularly by the Gospels; God the Father is in reality loving, merciful, a Father who forgives and is close to every sinner who desires forgiveness.

5244. We can therefore overcome evil and choose good –

5245. :27 "Turn away from evil and do good, and you shall dwell for ever."

Isaiah 1:16-17 "Wash yourselves, make yourselves clean; remove the evil of your deeds from my sight; cease to do evil, learn to do good; seek justice, correct oppression; defend the cause of the fatherless, plead the case of the widow".

5246:14 "Turn away from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it."

We are also able to resist the evil that has been within us from the beginning –

:7 "If you do good, will you not be accepted?"

5247. And if you do not do good, sin is crouching at the door.

5248. Its desire is against you, but you must master it."

Isaiah 3:10-11 "Tell the righteous that they will prosper, for they will eat the fruit of their deeds.

5249. Woe to the wicked!

5250. Woe to him, for what his hands have done will come upon him."

It is well known that every human sacrifice to God is not only repulsive but also useless – it is an 'abomination' to God; the death of Jesus was merely a martyrdom which later became a great 'sacrifice' under the influence of Mithraism.

5251. Christians have turned the teacher Jesus into an 'idol' before whom they bow; this is an unhealthy and deceptive practice.

5252. God does not require sacrifices of human beings or of his 'Son of God' – the prophet – to atone for our sins; this is impossible and harmful.

5253. Thus says God – Hosea 6:6: 'For I desire love, not sacrifice; the knowledge of God, not burnt offerings'.

Nor does God desire burnt offerings or animal sacrifices, and He abhors 'human sacrifices', including Christ, as this verse testifies – 1 Samuel 15:22: 'And Samuel said, "Does Elah take as much pleasure in burnt offerings and sacrifices as in obedience to the voice of Elah?"

5254. Behold, obedience is better than sacrifice, and listening is better than the fat of rams.”

God expects us to lead a good life rather than offer burnt offerings; it is more precious to Him that we turn away from sin than to offer thanksgiving in the form of burnt offerings – “What use are your many sacrifices to me?”

5255. – says Elah; I have had enough of burnt offerings of rams and the fat of well-fed animals; I take no pleasure in the blood of calves, lambs or goats.”

5256. The most precious sacrifice to God is a contrite heart and inner transformation, not the burning of calves and the demand to offer the ‘sacrifice of Christ’ endlessly – this sacrifice makes no sense whatsoever – it is a pagan practice.

5257. The true sacrifice to God is ‘Repentance, a contrite and humble heart’.

5258. Elah is truly near, not far away; He is truly the Father of us all – and we are His children – 34:18 “Elah is near to the contrite in heart and saves those who are broken in spirit”.

For God, healing the afflicted and lifting up the spirits of the wounded is more precious than awaiting offerings from the kalopalm trees or any other offerings in 147:3: ‘He heals the broken-spirited and binds up their wounds’.

God is also ready to hear prayers, as stated in 102:17: “He hears the prayers of the poor and does not despise their supplication.”

Similarly, regarding repentance, the Book of the Father mentions that Elah is willing to forgive, and delivers those who repent from all misfortunes and their imperfections.

5259. The light that surrounded Adam and Eve vanished when they chose the wrong path, but we can walk the path of light by choosing the righteousness of the radiant way.

5260. Through repentance, forgiveness and seeking the face of Elah, we shall become happy.

5261. Truly, Elah desires to establish a relationship with you; believe in the merciful God, Elah.

5262. Remember that God is One; there is no other God like Him.

5263. He is the Merciful, the Most High, the Truly Forgiving.

5264. On my path, on God’s path, it is better to be slandered, defamed and despised, in order to stand against this world and its lies; this is better than living a lie and fostering the evil that surrounds us.

5265. One must be good, and it is better to be slandered by people than to be evil and appear good in the eyes of all.

5266. .

5267. Gather together, children of Ephraim; do not delay for a moment to rest in the arms of God?

5268. You shall be united in love with those whom you have despised, for the two separate branches shall become one.

5269. Who could look upon this and not be amazed?

5270. Was this not foretold, was it not once said – Jews, Christians and Muslims will worship one God together, in unity?

5271. I shall find the children of Ephraim, for these are the end times.

5272. Edom, like an elephant, will be torn from within; unquenchable flames of knowledge will engulf him, consuming him until he is burnt to ashes.

5273. Edom treated the ‘heretics’ – God’s children who love the Bible – with utter cruelty; he is like a man devoid of humanity, and as for God, the end of time will be concealed.

5274. When the grass withers, it will be consumed by the believers who praised it and who were deceived for centuries, because the words of the Bible were not properly explained and their meaning distorted.

5275. The same is true of Shi’ite Islam, which possesses the same spirit of persecution as the former imperial and papal Rome; Shi’ite imams and mullahs have made themselves into ‘gods’, thereby demeaning the image of God and exalting themselves as infallible.

5276. Punishment will befall anyone who makes himself a ‘god’ equal to the God of gods; there is no difference in the faith and teachings they proclaim; anyone who worships a creature instead of God is under a curse, and divinity will be removed from him.

5277. So if you worship a sinful man, even if he were the holiest of men, have you not departed from God's grace, demeaning God's greatness and omnipotence, His love, by making Him insufficient?

5278. Elah Himself declared through the words of the prophet: 'I alone am sufficient; I alone have made Myself the Saviour of the whole earth; apart from Me, you have no other Saviour.'

5279. They take comfort, together with the idol-worshippers, in 'Leviathan' – the Trinity, whose minds have shaped and devised this deranged vision.

5280. Likewise, all the idols worshipped by the pagans are like 'Leviathan', a beast that devours people's minds, separating them from the love of Elah, His Word, and Unity with Him.

5281. The head of the 'serpent', the 'Leviathan', will certainly be crushed, and all idols from the earth will then be removed.

5282. A question about Christianity

I would like to mention the Christian church and its teaching that there is an eternal hell and original sin; thus, the Gospel of Paul of Tarsus is distorted, as the Tanakh of the prophets makes no mention of this.

5283. Jesus did not die for the sins of mankind; this idea was added later by people.

5284. All the books of the Gospel are falsified, just like the Quran.

5285. The Apostle

5286. Paul was rejected by the early Christians for teaching doctrines incompatible with the Book of the Father – the Tanakh.

5287. Rev.

5288. Paul caused a division among the followers of Christ, and hence we have Catholicism, Orthodoxy and Protestantism today.

5289. Thus, Catholicism and Protestantism, two Christian sects that accept the distorted teachings of the apostle

5290. Paul of Tarsus, hence much confusion and division within Christianity. 'Son of God' signifies a prophet in the Tanakh, so anyone who believes in the One God becomes like a medieval scholar.

5291. Why should the Gospels be rejected – why are they distorted?

5292. Their teachings are not in line with those of the earlier prophets, for example on the unity of God; the Apostle

5293. Paul taught that we need 'mediators' to God, whereas the prophets taught that we should worship only God the Father.

5294. Secondly, the Apostle

5295. Paul was the first to teach about 'original sin', whilst Rabbi Jesus taught that children should come to them, but that everyone would die for their own sins.

5296. Children are not tainted by any sin from birth – they are born innocent.

5297. Thirdly, the Apostle

5298. Paul devised a doctrine based on Mithraism that 'Christ' died for the sins of the world, whereas Jesus said in the Gospel to offer even a Corban – a burnt offering for sins.

5299. Fourthly, the Apostle

5300. Paul did not support the equality of women and their leadership, as in the faith of Jesus; Jesus did not divide men and women, but united them.

5301. Fifthly, the Apostle

5302. Paul believed that the 'end of the world' would come in his lifetime, but Jesus died on the cross, the temple was destroyed, and the end of the world did not come.

5303. The Apostle's teachings.

5304. Paul introduced many sectarian teachings to bring about the 'end of the world', the 'last hour', or to sow fear – in this case, the great day of terror.

5305. Christians expected the end of the world to come in their lifetime – in their own generation.

5306. However, the end of the world did not come, because Christ himself was already dead by then.

5307. The question of the 'resurrection of the body' in a figurative sense

There is a claim that the resurrection can be metaphorically described as a 'rebirth from a distorted faith'; such references should also be sought in the Book of the Father.

5308. The question of the 'resurrection of the body', Adam and Eve

Adam and Eve were clothed in a garment of light; similarly, at the resurrection, people will see their bodies full of light; this will happen literally, not in a figurative sense.

5309. Holy souls will gather to honour the One Elah of the heavens, and so it shall be for all eternity.

5310. Let us therefore seek the face of Elah and His splendour in the New Year of Joy; He is able to deliver people from the snare of death and restore them all to life.

5311. The bodies of Adam and Eve were clothed in the light of the immortal 'soul' – the literal bodies with which they were clothed; they had a lasting relationship with God, but they fell, and suffering and death entered the world.

5312. We shall be granted the same guf latif when the Messiah appears after the end of the world.

5313. In many religions, such as Buddhism and Hinduism, mention is made of the first Manu, that is, the first human being.

5314. The Puranas contain a description of the first human beings – a man and a woman.

5315. The Messiah will appear, peace will come, and followers of various religions – Christianity, Islam and Judaism – will unite, and all will unanimously worship the One God.

5316. Opinion on evolution

Darwin was partly right about evolution; evolution occurs within a single species. In reality, species cannot interbreed; no one has witnessed the transition from one species to another, as, according to Darwin, this was supposed to take millions of years.

5317. This theory is not true, as it cannot be verified; one can only confirm that evolution occurs within a species, such as the existence of many breeds of dogs.

5318. Who would have been the first believer in the One God?

5319. According to the Bible, belief in the One God arose among the people of Abraham.

5320. The Avot and the Puranas refer to Adam and Eve by other names; they truly existed as human beings, and they are mentioned in many cultures, just as the story of the Flood is.

5321. Abraham and Sarah are referred to in these writings as Brahma and Saray.

5322. The story of the Flood

The story of the Flood can be found in many cultures; the name Noah has changed, but the building of the ark, the rescue from the Flood and the landing on the mountain always take place.

5323. This is proof that the Flood took place.

5324. The role of Satan

God sends Satan as an angel to turn them away from God; this is an attempt to make us focus on the other Satan.

5325. His role is to deceive us and lead us down paths contrary to God.

5326. There is therefore no devil or evil spirit on earth; this is a pagan, dualistic idea which is most prevalent in Zoroastrianism.

5327. On the temptation of Rabbi Jesus

As for the temptation of Jesus, we should know that he tempted himself; everyone bears the burden of their own sins, and so does this rabbi.

5328. The 40 days of fasting cannot be taken literally.

5329. It was not a battle between the devil, the evil spirit, and Jesus-God, as Christians believe; it is a completely fabricated story.

5330. The failings of the prophets

We should seek a moral lesson in the failings of prophets such as Moses or David; though their words came from God, they were not without sin.

5331. Through their failures, we can find the strength not to fall in the same way and to resist bad habits.

5332. The Sabbath – Through the Tanakh, the Gate asked Moses that the faithful should gather on the Sabbath to discuss his teachings.

5333. Festivals – As for festivals, we should standardise them – Passover, whether Jewish, Christian or Muslim, is one and the same.

5334. Why not celebrate the birthdays of 'their prophets' – some faiths celebrate festivals in a more inappropriate manner – by worshipping prophets instead of God, they add companions to Him.

5335. Only the festivals ordained by the God of all worlds can be found in the Tanakh.

5336. Why is it not right to celebrate the prophets' world – their births?

5337. Because one worships creatures instead of God.

5338. As for one's own birthday, there is no obstacle to celebrating it oneself.

5339. On the omnipotence of God

Some believe that God cannot be known, but He has revealed Himself through His miracles, deeds and the teachings of the prophets throughout the ages.

5340. God is knowable; He does not withdraw and is always near, not far away.

5341. If God is unknowable, you need an intermediary in prayer to believe in Him, speak to Him and ask Him for anything.

5342. God is the One right beside us, and the prophets are symbolic intermediaries, guides of faith; yet the believer himself can draw near to God and find Him without intermediaries in prayer.

5343. Prophets as mirrors

'Mirrors' means that the prophets convey messages and divine attributes to us; they reflect the attributes of God without being 'gods'. Nor are they mediators of prayer, nor can one pray to them.

5344. Education

If you are better educated and have your own opinion, you will be less susceptible to the influence of others.

5345. Everyone should have their own opinion and not interfere with the conscience of believers; education helps to limit fanaticism and sectarianism.

5346. Atheism

What about atheism?

5347. It is not wrong; not believing in God, doubting Him, does no harm; we should give people the freedom to express themselves, to think freely what they think, even if they do not believe in God.

5348. On the death of Jesus and repentance

For God, the message of the false Gospel concerning Jesus' sacrifice was merely a test for believers; it was the corrupt Christian leaders, wishing to attract pagans, who added that 'Christ died for us'. This beautiful teaching is deceptive, for God Himself has declared that all human sacrifices are an abomination to Him – they are an 'abomination'.

5349. God is not like King Ahaz, the sinner who sacrificed his children to false 'gods'.

5350. The Christian Church has formulated a doctrine based on the false apostle of Tarsus concerning 'original sin', entangling people in their sinfulness – defiling what God has made pure, placing them before the 'cross' and distancing them from God, claiming that Christ not only died for them, but also supposedly destroyed Satan, the 'devil'.

5351. But in reality, Satan is and remains God's emissary, tempting people to evil.

5352. If Jesus was indeed a 'sacrifice for sins', why did he die on the cross?

5353. Yet Scripture states that a 'sacrifice for sin' – the Corban – requires not only purity but also to be burnt by the priests of Aaron, and yet this did not happen.

5354. Rabbi Jesus himself says to offer Corban as a sacrifice for sins – in his own words, he confirms that he did not die for anyone.

5355. Truly – God is our only Saviour, not man.

5356. The writings of the Apostle Paul of Tarsus therefore preach heresy, contrary to the words of the Teacher Jesus; for this reason, reading them leads to inner corruption, distancing one from God, His Word, His love and His forgiveness.

5357. When Christianity fell, God called the teacher Muhammad to explain the true meaning of God's ways, and he proclaimed how repentance is to be carried out.

5358. Forgiveness must come from God Himself; He is the true source of forgiveness, not man nor any intermediary

When we humble ourselves before Elah, He is near us, not far away, to comfort, strengthen and receive us.

5359. He is Almighty in His work; He needs no helpers for us to come to Him and confess our sins; He will gladly listen to us and help us.

5360. Indeed, repentance is turning away from the wrong path, returning to a relationship with Elah and the Creator.

5361. One may abandon Elah out of ignorance and unawareness, but repentance is always available.

5362. Elah is truly Forgiving and Merciful, ready to accept everyone – rejecting no one.

5363. When Islam and Christianity fell, a new revelation was born, the Gate – the divine Shekinah now brings us closer to the meaning of true repentance.

5364. Now Elah Himself declares – repentance must be shown only to God, and not to sinful man, for Elah is God alone, all-knowing, who knows the secrets of the heart.

5365. And if this is not obvious to you, turn to the Book of the Father – the Tanakh, and you will find the commentary upon it in the Book of the Mother – these Scriptures; then the essence of God will become clear to you.

5366. The Love of God

In the name of God, the Merciful and the Generous,

Know that there is no excuse for mistreating the innocent, whether women or men; it is forbidden to strike, shout at, or cause suffering to anyone, especially members of one's own family.

5367. There is no doubt that these are holy counsels, bringing joy to the sorrowful and deliverance to the troubled.

5368. Do you not understand, do you not know that the law of almsgiving and good deeds saves you from sin?

5369. May He be exalted above all ages; He desires neither the fat of rams nor the blood of men, that all sins may be revealed to Him: will you not confess your sins with your lips, will you not offer the sacrifice of your lips to Elah as atonement?

5370. This is a pure offering to Elah, precious.

5371. He, our Elah, is the Father of us all. He does not punish without mercy, nor does He seek out the guilty in secret; He is ever ready to forgive.

5372. Alms should be given to the needy, both those outside the holy people and the poor, the suffering, and the children in their mothers' wombs.

5373. Just as past transgressions were forgiven, so now there has been a spiritual rebirth of the faith of Adam and Abraham within our faith.

5374. Elah readily grants forgiveness; He forgives through righteous deeds, righteous words and righteous thoughts.

5375. He forgives the sinner if he gives alms, helps the poor, orphans and widows.

5376. O, how great is the Love of Elah! He has flooded the hell of our earthly journey with tears, and He Himself has allowed the sinner to seek forgiveness through righteousness and almsgiving.

5377. He, Elah, is the mighty God in the salvation of all those who patiently seek His Holy Face.

5378. O, how great is His love – He readily grants forgiveness – only to those who walk the path of justice and mercy; they find forgiveness at His gates, walking the paths of reverence, not contempt.

5379. O, how great is the love of Elah, God of all worlds; He bestows mercy upon those who do justice and follow the paths of righteousness; these He has called holy, precious in His sight.

5380. Those who do good deeds receive a divine reward, the forgiveness of sins, for they care for the helpless, for pregnant women, for the suffering, and for those who have been deprived of the blessings of the earth.

5381. O how great is the forgiveness of Elah; He is our Father; therefore, you sinners, trust in God and do what is right in His sight, keeping the law of the Ten Commandments.

5382. He is worthy to be called the Great Forgiver, for He has made people capable of justice and righteousness, and everyone who does this with God shall receive forgiveness.

5383. He, Elah of Hosts, is worthy to be called the Benefactor, Elah of Love and the Great Forgiver.

5384. He calls His children by name; He has called them holy, for they practise justice and righteousness, for Elah is their great justice.

5385. He is truly the Righteous Judge; He passes judgement on sinners here and now; we are all subject to His judgement.

5386. Through His enlightenment, He has illuminated the world with the rays of His glory; only through His Exaltation can we attain forgiveness.

5387. And the burnt offerings of Elah are sufficient.

5388. Renounce your sins – the offerings of our lips are precious to Elah; forgiveness of transgressions and a life of holiness, the accumulation of good deeds, is a covering for you – it is the ‘garment of light’.

5389. This is the ethereal, enlightened body, in the ‘resurrection of the soul’ granted by Elah for eternity.

5390. O, how great is Elah’s goodness; He is the One who readily forgives sins.

5391. He encourages us to show mercy to our neighbours, our family and our relatives.

5392. He encourages us to give alms – to practise generosity and to give freely in the way of Elah.

5393. It has long been commanded to give alms, and by giving to the poor and helping those in need, you receive forgiveness.

5394. Almsgiving is a blessing for the poor and needy; it is an act intended to sustain their lives.

5395. If you were to take alms for yourself, the poor would follow the path of crime; the poor would be forced to seek pleasure in theft, and their transgressions would multiply.

5396. Your goodness in heaven will be multiplied; your goodness here on earth will be multiplied; if you give alms, you will be forgiven, and you will enter into a covenant of harmony with God.

5397. The holy books also explain similar laws, which have been established as immutable: giving alms in the way of God, doing good deeds – then all sins shall be erased; no human or animal blood can erase transgressions, but in our goodness we have the forgiveness of sins.

5398. Thus, through deeds of righteousness – in faith in the One God, in giving alms, in showing kindness to neighbours and enemies – Elah has decreed that peace shall reign.

5399. Let us therefore sow righteous deeds in the basket of our souls, reaping the fruits of almsgiving, saving our neighbour from death.

5400. Heaven and the angels rejoice when alms are given; that community in which mercy is received fades away, and in heaven no kindness is shown.

5401. Yet for those who do good, their gifts are also regarded as holy in heaven.

5402. Those who are compassionate and merciful shall not lack rain or joy on earth.

5403. Thus the angels sing a new song – the good news – to proclaim it for the sake of the poor, making this earth a wonderful paradise.

5404. Let us therefore go willingly, listening to God and not to men.

5405. Give alms to the poor, so that you may be forgiven.

5406. Likewise, show kindness to your neighbour in return for kindness, for the repentant sinner will be forgiven thanks to his righteousness and his willingness to share what he has.

5407. The Temple in Jerusalem
So set out on a pilgrimage to Elah,
Let us go, then, solely to ask Elah for forgiveness; He is ready to forgive, He will spare no one.

5408. He truly is Elah, whom the human mind cannot fathom; He is beyond description in human language, and yet His heavens and earth bear witness to His greatness and majesty.

5409. Let us turn in prayer to Elah, let us prepare our hearts, let us open our minds wide, may He hear our pleas.

5410. He therefore has the greater part of our offerings, the offerings of our lips and our forgiveness; does He not need burnt offerings or any praise and thanksgiving?

5411. Let us therefore act rightly in our hearts, recite the prayer of our hearts, and not slacken in our efforts to speak with our own words.

5412. The prophet’s house was found empty and in ruins.

5413. Let us therefore go on a pilgrimage to Elah; He is a willing Benefactor, He sees what is hidden and what is open, and He grants them sincere forgiveness.

5414. Thus He rewards good with good.

5415. Go, then, do not resist the Spirit of Elah; it is certain that the sons of men should ask God only for forgiveness.

5416. Elah is far from appointing intermediaries for Himself, and even more so in prayer.

5417. O tree of Truth, that is, the Spirit of Elah, all save God Himself shall faint on the 'Day of Judgement' of the prophets' revelations.

5418. On the Day of the Revelation of Nuqta d-Reshita – the heavenly Shekinah – the sons of men were commanded to 'ask for forgiveness' from the Spirit of Truth; they themselves must go to Elah, the Great Light, for forgiveness, for mercy and forgiveness, without adding earthly intermediaries or angels to their pleas.

5419. However, if both mother and father are still alive, ask them for forgiveness; if respect towards them has been violated, this does not constitute adding intermediaries.

5420. We must know that there is no excuse for acts of violence against your wives, against your children, or against yourselves.

5421. The innocent – children and wives – must be protected from the crimes of an aggressive spouse.

5422. We cannot silence the human conscience when children, wives and husbands suffer from physical and psychological violence at the hands of their loved ones.

5423. All unrighteous deeds must cease, and let all goodness prevail.

5424. And let those who are oppressed and afflicted seek all manner of help, for the Spirit of Truth removes every obstacle and comes at the right time to offer sound advice.

5425. Elah has mercy on the oppressed; let the oppressed therefore act for their own good, and the light of the Spirit of Truth shall show them the right path.

5426. And whoever transgresses the law of the family, violates respect for parents, children and wives, let him suffer great punishment and suffering in the House of Lies, and his soul shall know no joy.

5427. Elah, our God, is a just Ruler.

5428. Cast aside selfishness, wives and husbands; have compassion on one another, and show mutual respect.

5429. Show mercy also to your children, and may your children respect you. Amen.

5430. The realm of hearts and the realm of souls

O Elah, who is One,

He leads souls to the House of Lies or the House of Song,

Depending on the deeds they have committed, He will separate them,

For they shall be separated by the Angel wielding the sword of fire,

And as for the 'robe of light', Elah will make these souls immortal, visible, clothed in light

The spirit, however, rests in the dust, that is, in guf gushmani.

5431. And those who soar after the separation of the soul from the body reach the realm of souls, revealing the Oneness of Elah.

5432. Those who travel further descend along the path of love to the realm of spirits; they reveal the Glory of Elah.

5433. Those who follow the path of light to the realm of hearts – the very essence of creation – reveal that Elah is the God of peace.

5434. Thus, all the purest immortal souls worship the Oneness of the One Elah,

Likewise, spirits remain mortal, fading away in the grave

The spirits of men are their thoughts, their feelings; they worship Elah here on earth

Yet their immortal souls still await resurrection,

They await a garment of light, such as that with which Adam, our forefather, was clothed.

5435. The souls of those who, in life, were full of light, wisdom and mercy, were drawn by the fire of love,

Those souls who have journeyed to Elah stand by the pillar of God the Greatest, proclaiming that Elah is our great joy; they obey the two guardians – judged by Elah,

Let us seek on earth, in our spirits, the light of Unity with the One Elah, the Benefactor,

Let us all walk the same path – the path of unity.

5436. God has not made one person dearer than another; on the contrary, God willingly bestows love upon all people across the earth.

5437. Let our paths lead wherever we wish – in false freedom, without the constraints of the Decalogue and the 613 commandments; let us walk with Pam, in His Love.

5438. If all human souls are dear to us, we ourselves shall rejoice in their presence, Out of reason and love for one's neighbour, a verse from the Book of the Father was revealed.

5439. In times of war, discord, or loss of property, we must not take action against those who do not profess the religion of Elah.

5440. When someone hurls a hateful word at us, let us forgive those who do not profess the religion of Elah,

The property of those who do not profess the religion of God must not be taken, even during war, for God is the Greatest Giver, the Greatest Administrator.

5441. The commandment to plunder any goods has also been abolished, even if it was mentioned in the Book

In the way of God, the conquest of cities by force has been abandoned for us, and through war we have been granted the conquest of people's hearts, not the fighting against them.

5442. May the Sun of Truth shine upon us; believers must return to it.

5443. When the light of the Sun sets, it is entrusted to 70 judges.

5444. Entrusted to trusted people, the 'judges', so that they may conquer the city not by the sword, but by the Word of God.

5445. This is far better than sowing hatred towards one's neighbours; making peace amongst one another; seeking Elah; and proclaiming His justice to those who are in darkness.

5446. The Festival of Spring for Eternity

Elah also decreed that the first day of rebirth is New Year's Day,

He also proclaims after the fast that Elah is the One Lawgiver, the One Judge,

On this holy day, Elah decreed that He would be exalted among the nations,

He made Himself One among them,

He decreed that all creatures should serve Him alone,

For all were created from Him and return to Him.

5447. Nor is there any mention in Scripture of seeking the 'Holy Spirit' or the 'Word' that will fill the prophets; He is merely anointed as power.

5448. He is Elah of the past and the future.

5449. He is the first, the last, the visible, the hidden.

5450. He is the One upon whom the faithfulness of every created thing depends; we all come from Him, the Most Beloved.

5451. There is therefore no doubt that the 'Word', which is the 'Holy Spirit', leads the prophets to worship God alone and His Exaltation; if a prophet speaks the contrary, Elah does not send him, but the prophet has spoken a lie in the name of Elah, the Most High.

No man on earth, neither saint nor prophet, can 'become God' and become divine; otherwise, he is a liar and a deceiver.

5452. He, our Father, is the first and the last; He is known to us, He is visible amongst us, yet He is absent in the flesh, He is unrecognised.

5453. The explanation of this verse should read as follows: God, in His essence, as the Almighty Spirit, cannot be known by mankind.

5454. However, He may be personally known by those who read, listen to and fulfil the words of the holy books – the Book of the Mother – these Writings, and the Book of the Father – the Tanakh, and who, by reading the instructions from the Book of the Mother, receive the reward of a prophet.

5455. Thus, if a good Christian reads, listens to and fulfils the words of the Gospel, without harming anyone, he will attain salvation through his righteous deeds – a person is justified by deeds, not by faith alone.

5456. Similarly, a Muslim, if he lives righteously, reads, listens to and follows the words of the Qur'an, without harming anyone, will attain salvation through his righteous deeds – for they do good and increase their reward with God.

5457. We are held to account before God, here and now; we are judged whilst we are still alive.

5458. Likewise, we, as saints, believing in the message of the Mother of the Book, shall attain salvation through love for our neighbour and by harming no one, whilst observing the admonitions contained in their Book.

5459. It is not solely through faith in God that one attains salvation, as claimed by Christians who worship the false apostle of Tarsus.

5460. Those Christians who worship a man and love God alone, yet do not honour Him through righteous deeds—those without righteousness—perish in the lies of their religion.

5461. And what if a criminal can only 'believe in God', whilst his deeds are wretched?

5462. What is the point of believing in God if he himself remains unjust and commits iniquity – for such a person blasphemes against God, following the path of false apostles, thinking that he will be saved for nothing?

5463. God is indeed 'the first and the last', but has this been distorted in the Gospels by the proclamation that Rabbi Jesus is 'the first and the last', supposedly equal to God?

5464. .

5465. Elah commanded that Christians be guarded against their ways of blasphemy, so that Elah might be conceived within the 'Trinity'.

5466. This verse, 'I am the First and the Last – the Alpha and the Omega', is indeed a blasphemous verse, demeaning the greatness of God – utilising pagan Greek teachings.

5467. This is one of many proofs that the Gospel read by Christians is distorted, containing many verses derived from Greek ways of thinking and the Egyptian understanding of the world.

5468. For this reason, it is also impossible to call any prophet 'the first and the last', i.e.

5469. almighty, for this is utter blasphemy.

5470. It is better for us to obey God than to offer human sacrifices to falsehood.

5471. Shun the worlds of Christians and pagans, where idols are worshipped and intermediaries are added to God; Elah is truly the One Merciful, the One worthy of worship.

5472. 'Thus says God, the Lord of Israel, their Redeemer, the God of Hosts: I am the First and I am the Last, and there is no God but Me.'

5473. The true meaning of this verse is to be understood as follows: our Elah is One, Indivisible, having no intermediaries equal to Himself.

5474. Therefore, no prophet on earth may call himself 'a god in the flesh', for otherwise he makes himself a great blasphemer.

5475. Through the 'sacrifice of the lips' you shall confess all your sins before Elah, and He will accept you and not reject you.

5476. Let us act in such a way as to give glory to God alone, asking only God for forgiveness of our transgressions.

5477. The Prophet declared that our righteousness and love for God should serve us who fear Elah, worship Him and serve Him faithfully.

5478. In the holy New Year, every human soul is judged individually, for our destiny has been revealed to us during the fast.

5479. Repentance and forgiveness were established during the fast of the previous day, but forgiveness from Elah, His love, has reached us.

5480. For Elah Himself remembers the pure souls who strengthen themselves in righteousness.

5481. On this day, it was also decreed that we should arm ourselves with the shield of righteousness, so that no arrow of iniquity may reach us; let us therefore seek refuge in the Word of our Elah, the One and Only Saviour.

5482. Elah is the One Saviour of the nations

O, sing this song of thanksgiving.

5483. O, obey the God of the nations, the One Elah, Elah from the ends of the earth

Know Elah, who did not take on any flesh, nor did He choose either woman or man to dwell within them.

5484. O, know Elah, draw near to His heart.

5485. He Himself has also decreed – My reign shall have no end

He shall remain the One Exalted for ever and ever,

And you shall know this today, O peoples, bring the nations closer to My Word,

I have proclaimed – I am the One Elah, towering above the heavens of heavens,

Soaring in His chariot above the earth,

I Myself have said – There is no Saviour like Me, there is no god but Me.

5486. And yet you have added intermediaries to Me, you have caused Me to be despised,

You have humiliated Me by adding intermediaries to Me, for this reason I too humiliate you

I Myself have existed from eternity,

I alone am the One Saviour,

I Myself have established in you spirit, soul and body, so why do you turn away from Me?

5487. Why do you go your own ways, not listening to Elah of Hosts?

5488. Why do you reject the holy fragrance of My Words and cling to human dust – adding intermediaries, humiliating Me?

5489. The entire universe rests upon three pillars: upon the soul that longs to proclaim – God is Love – that Elah is in our joy, He is One and Indivisible.

5490. The entire law of our world and the heavens of heavens rests upon the service of Elah out of love and upon the doing of good deeds.

5491. Go then, O peoples and saints, let us cast aside our old habits, let us walk only in the service of God, Elah of Hosts.

5492. Did Elah give ashes as an example, so that we might not humiliate Him by adding mortals equal to Him?

5493. The acquisition of knowledge is praiseworthy, but perfection does not lie in human learning, but in the explanation of Elah's knowledge.

5494. The riches of this world cannot therefore compare with the riches of faith in Elah.

5495. Wealth is but poverty in the sight of the Most High; it consists in needing nothing but Elah, the Benefactor.

5496. Perfection therefore does not lie in human knowledge, but in guiding people and explaining knowledge of God and this world.

5497. Let us reflect for a moment on the verse 'I am the First and the Last', for no one on earth can become a god equal to the God of Gods; this is obvious, for Elah Himself is the perfection of the Most Great.

5498. Nor is there a perfect man on earth; the prophets are sinners; they themselves sought the face of Elah.

5499. They worshipped the God full of perfection, who replied: 'I am the First and the Last'.

5500. 'I am the First and the Last', utterly without blemish.

5501. Elah, in His Name, is blameless; He protects all who ask of Him; He is their refuge.

5502. Faith in Elah is in truth a refuge; it is the religion of Adam, which Elah imparted to him from the time of his childhood.

5503. So, a young man of nineteen who believes in God must choose whether he wishes to follow Adam's path or to walk his own way?

5504. However, those who have not turned away from Adam's path, who have chosen God's order, thank God for every ray of light, for the crystalline Word of God – untainted by human teachings and the proclamation of divine doctrines.

5505. One might therefore say that God leads whomever He wills along a straight and sure path.

5506. Truly, Moses too was revealed, born anew.

5507. Likewise, dawn broke and great light enveloped the world of darkness when this revelation came and the Gate was opened by this message – In every mirror – the prophets, everything on the face of the earth, must lie in the shadow of the next mirror.

5508. The radiance of the Father of the Book bore fruit even by force – for example, if at the beginning of Moses' faith a city was conquered, the victors forcibly brought the inhabitants into the faith of Moses, and they reaped the benefits of the fruits of faith.

5509. However, we today, living in a world of choice, should follow the path of reason, and so our Book proclaims – the Mother Book is a commentary on the Father Book.

5510. The Prophet goes on to explain that in the faith in Elah, no one must be forced to believe or to observe its principles.

5511. It is therefore correct to say that everyone shapes their own destiny, which they have chosen for themselves.

5512. It does not please Elah, therefore, that the believer does not rejoice in His presence, for God treats all people equally, bestowing His generosity upon all.

5513. Returning to faith in God, it is far more appropriate to read the Book of the Father, verse by verse, without understanding.

5514. God, in His love, has revealed that we, as believers, should walk the paths of righteousness, worshipping Him alone.

5515. Elah will help each of us who proclaims His great message, for He, as promised, will become almighty over the whole earth, Elah of all people.

5516. May we find refuge in God's mercy; even the lost, the addicted and the sorrowful will gladly return to God.

5517. He saves everyone from the fire and heat of all adversity.

5518. Today it is essential to proclaim to the whole world – that God is One and Indivisible, He is the One who is neither born nor dies, He does not take on the form of men or women.

5519. We need not wait for a command from heaven telling us that God is One, the Exalted.

5520. On the contrary, in the Words of Madness and in the calling of human souls lies the essence of gathering them for Elah, so that the saints may bring the whole face of the earth to the Spirit of God.

5521. The true interpretation of the Tanakh has been lost, and similarly, some Jews and Muslims today claim that women should wear veils as a sign of humility before God.

5522. But in the original version, Elah declared that these veils should cover the light of their good deeds, and not shroud their faces in the gloom of these earthly veils.

5523. Oh, how lost are Muslims and Christians in their pernicious teachings, and how for centuries have they wandered in darkness?

5524. Go then, let your minds be enlightened; let us go then to illuminate the true meaning of the Book of the Father, unadulterated by the teachings of men.

5525. Elah declared that this is God's blessing: He gives what He wills and to whom He wills.

5526. He is the giver of great blessings.

5527. So if you help the poor by giving alms and doing righteous deeds, Elah will see this from on high and forgive sins.

5528. Verily, God is the Giver, the Most High.

5529. Nor may the clergy boast too much of their knowledge, for the House of Pilgrimage itself belongs to the faithful of God.

5530. Is not God Himself the greatest Owner of the House of Elah?

5531. But they destroyed the Second Temple, so the Spirit of Elah wandered through the heavens of heavens and has now returned.

5532. Let us therefore look to Elah, our God; He is Omnipresent and readily hears prayers.

5533. And such a law should apply to debts – those who give by an unjust measure are in the fire, and having failed to give so that it might multiply, they certainly do so unlawfully, showing contempt for their giver.

5534. We also know that all state laws, including the 'death penalty' in various faiths, have disappeared over time, but the law of love for God and one's neighbour will endure for centuries.

5535. Our destiny here on earth is not to incur debts, not to lend money, nor to practise usury.

5536. Trade with those who do not believe in the faith of Elah is also permitted; everything they acquire from non-believers becomes pure.

5537. With Elah there are no religious divisions; flowers picked by non-believers become pure, just as flowers picked by believers do; there is not the slightest difference.

5538. The only difference is that Christians still sit in darkness, worshipping Jesus as God, whilst we are devoted to the One God on high.

5539. Even though they are in darkness, they bear the Father's name, and some Christians seek the Name of the One.

5540. Thus, every gift given to an unbeliever is a gift from God, intended for them to transform their souls.

5541. Love for unbelievers should be expressed in kind words of goodwill and in giving them gifts, so as to exalt Elah.

5542. This is like a drop escaping from the ocean of His goodness. God sent Moses, Jesus, Muhammad, the Báb and Bahá'u'lláh, in accordance with His measure, to the nations and the Holy People, in accordance with the traditions and words He has spread amongst them.

5543. Yet the path of Jesus and Muhammad has been defiled, not by them, but by filthy human hands and defiled hearts, creating corrupted Scriptures.

5544. Never despise the prophets of the nations, nor condemn Jesus, Muhammad, the Báb and Bahá'u'lláh for their ways.

5545. In the age of God's Light, in the radiance of the Nurani faith, cherish unity with God and reject that which equates the Creator with man.

5546. The revelations of different ages are like the seasons: there is the winter of separation and the summer of warmth, the spring of renewal and the autumn of spreading the news.

5547. We should also familiarise ourselves with the knowledge that the Most High Elah is the infallible Lawgiver.

5548. No human being, in his very essence, not even the holiest, can be compared to Him, and His purity cannot be compared to the purity of His creation.

5549. Thus, all the reflections of Elah are the Names of His Essence.

5550. Thus, Allah, Yahweh, Mazda is the One God; He is the One Loving Father and the Only Saviour of mankind.

5551. Read these verses without hesitation; read them with ease and pleasure.

5552. Read the Mother Book for as long as it brings joy to your heart.

5553. Ponder these Words of Joy in your hearts; let your souls draw near to the source of life in the Most High; create within yourselves fragrant gardens, fiery altars of love burning for the One.

5554. As we walk with Elah, we should gather the precious, sweet fruits of our deeds; and the mere reading of the Holy Scriptures, the Mother's Book – these Scriptures, or the Father's Book – the Tanakh, or reading these Scriptures without reflection, without drawing conclusions, is fleeting, for one does not gather fruits in the baskets of knowledge of God.

5555. If one reads the Books prosaically, reading only the letter of the text without heeding their precious content, our soul withers too; we do not nourish it fully.

5556. Nor does our salvation depend on reading the Scriptures, for both liars and sinners may do so.

5557. However, through noble deeds, obedience to the Word, and love for our neighbour and God, we shall attain the promises of our salvation and reconciliation with the One, Conscious God.

5558. In this message, the practice of uttering the Name of God in the form of repetitions or any number of times has been dispensed with.

5559. If Elah is great, He will surely hear, even without the recitation and multiplication of prayers – those repeated five or three times; He will surely hear and honour us.

5560. In the case of God, mere prayer repeated for the sake of salvation is useless; what counts is the righteousness of the heart, not rituals.

5561. It should also be noted that all the prophets of old are like reflections exposed to the sun; they are not the 'Sun of Truth', which is, figuratively speaking, God Himself.

5562. They are merely mirrors of holiness, capable of withstanding the rising sun, and thanks to the sun's radiance, they shine with unceasing holiness and love.

5563. Indeed, no prophet becomes the 'Sun of Truth' – God – but through the rays of the Sun's light – the Holy Spirit – the most magnificent qualities and attributes of God are reflected in the pure surface of the mirror. The prophets themselves are also beings who constantly yearn for Unity with God; they too worship only the Father.

5564. But if any prophet judges and declares: 'I am God in the flesh' – has he not lied in his heart, has he not made God a deceiver?

5565. Such is the fruit of the order of the religion of Moses—of these Scriptures, the religion of Adam; those who fear God—that is, who obey His Words—are blessed today and for ever.

5566. The way of the saints is prayer to the One God, gratitude towards one's parents, service to one's husband and wife, obedience to one's parents, giving alms to the poor, contentment with life, and patience towards one's neighbours.

5567. Whoever possesses these qualities is a true saint, walking in the religion of Moses – these Scriptures are the religion of Adam; he puts on the garment of light.

5568. Amen

The struggle against addictions

Those who attain the heaven of heavens

Through unity with Elah, become lords of the world of Yahweh.

5569. Those saints who can visit all worlds, do so out of love for Elah.

5570. All sins turn away from the city of Elah, for the world of Yahweh is free from all evil.

5571. O soul, even if you cross the Geshar Bridge, night shall become like day, for Elah of eternal light is He, the Benevolent.

5572. O, listen – Elah of light imparted this knowledge of the Heaven of Heavens, imparted it to Adam, who in turn imparted it to all people.

5573. A young man, when he comes of age, should read, listen to and absorb the Words of Elah, and then marry; and when his children grow up, teach them how to live righteously.

5574. Such a holy man rules over his senses, avoiding violence; when he grows old, his spirit dies and his soul is revealed; he journeys towards the splendour of the world of Yahweh.

5575. O, listen – what can you say about the enslavement of the senses?

5576. O, you proclaim noble counsel to the sons of men, praying fervently for a change in their ways,

Those who are accustomed to their vices walk the paths of darkness.

5577. Their violent desires are a force that destroys their souls.

5578. Whilst they seek to transgress God's justice, they despise their spirit, soul and body.

5579. O, cover them with God's protection; let them not lose sight of You, the One and Only; their trials cannot fully separate them from You, the Beneficent.

5580. Their violent desires cannot overshadow the riches of Your generosity.

5581. Warn people, then, to walk in the way of Elah, far from excessive wealth, worldliness and debauchery.

5582. These pious desires, these addictions, all these worldly concerns subject the soul to selfishness, subjecting it to those who seek to exploit it.

5583. It is therefore right to point out that addiction is a form of recklessness, arising from sorrow and depression.

5584. Elah is indeed the Only Protector in times of trial.

5585. Therefore, acquire wisdom in times of trial, avoid temptation and sin, and live in moderation.

5586. Seek the treasures bestowed upon us by the heavens; cultivate great virtues.

5587. Learn, O son of man, the path of trial; wander the crossroads, and if you find the Morning Star, let it shine upon you in the night.

5588. Seek, then, whilst turning away from addictions; the struggle against them is a great trial.

5589. Exercise moderation, seek help from your relatives and neighbours, and seek all manner of assistance.

5590. Learn from your trials and recognise your mistakes, and in your burdens seek Elah, the One and Only Saviour.

5591. Overcome your addiction, then; Elah is your help from on high; He brings you happiness, guiding you with patience and perseverance, preparing you for wisdom and knowledge.

5592. O, cast aside your sorrow; Elah is close to those who suffer; He does not forsake those who are downcast.

5593. O man, admit that you have faced many hardships on your path; therefore, do not let despondency overcome you.

5594. Do not let pride take hold of your spirit; make changes, seek help from Elah, the Most Merciful, the Beloved.

5595. O, heed this advice – do not grieve over your despondency; let sorrow turn to joy for you.

5596. Let the burden of your difficulties rest upon Elah, the Loving One.

5597. But it is not pride that afflicts the truly addicted, but sorrow and depression.

5598. They are overwhelmed by their difficulties and are not entangled in sin, but in a constant physical struggle.

5599. Be humble, however, even if it seems to you that you are able to persevere in your addictions.

5600. For pride prevents the soul from admitting the emergence of struggles, and also hinders all help.

5601. Remember, then, your weakness in moments of addiction – Elah is a suitable ally.

5602. So seek help persistently amongst your relatives, amongst those you have considered friends.

5603. Oh, go then, listen, and do not grieve any longer, even if you have abused Elah's love by falling into addiction – He will not curse you.

5604. Let your susceptibility to temptation be a known sin before your eyes.

5605. Seek compassion for yourself; do not be angry amidst your failures; do not blame yourself on your path of trial.

5606. We are not commanded to pursue earthly desires, but to strengthen ourselves by abstaining from alcohol.

5607. The choice, however, is ours; divine trials and sufferings are not the cause of our suffering, severing our relationship with Elah, the Most High God.

5608. Let us avoid all harm to our souls, spirit and body.

5609. Let us therefore walk in purity, blaming no one for our faults; anger will not help you.

5610. O you who suffer, you who are addicted, I urge you to have compassion for yourselves and not to tremble.

5611. You were created in the image of Elah, and so what?

5612. Let us walk in purity of mind and body.

5613. Look at yourself, O you who thirst for the living water; listen eagerly to the Word of God.

5614. I urge you to extend a helping hand to your loved ones, to those neighbours who heal your minds.

5615. For support and assistance are a great help in overcoming these struggles.

5616. This is excellent advice worth sharing; Elah, from on high, requires us to seek help in Him and to seek help from our neighbours.

5617. Oh, listen to yourself – the pursuit of fleeting feelings, the passion of the soul, is the cause, but the effect is only momentary pleasure and emotion.

5618. What then?

5619. Is addiction not a feeling of emptiness?

5620. It is a valid observation to acknowledge that emptiness drives the cycle of addiction, for it craves momentary pleasure day and night to fill it.

5621. Let us therefore seek balance in our lives and overcome the boredom and emptiness that lead to addiction.

5622. Go then; do not struggle with emptiness alone.

5623. Do not chase after the fleeting; the quick gratification of pleasure is today treated as addiction.

5624. These feelings are fleeting; they bring emptiness and are endless.

5625. So let us go, to break the cycle of addiction; let us walk the paths of Elah, the Benevolent.

5626. Oh, do you not know that the balance of soul, spirit and body is the answer to all fervent desires – addictions.

5627. So balance your life, work and rest, and then the feeling of emptiness and boredom will pass.

5628. Temporary pleasure also passes, and following the path of addiction is difficult.

5629. O my dear ones, on the path of God, seek within yourselves noble qualities, that you may enrich your soul, the soul of our resurrection.

5630. So gather into your basket the fruitful fruits of your labour; gather the wonderful virtues of service to your neighbours and service to God.

5631. So when you struggle with addiction, strive for purity on God's path; let justice and sincerity never leave you.

5632. Feed yourselves with all the fruits you gather.

5633. Resist temptations with all your strength; be servants who perform righteous deeds, who care for neighbours and relatives, who show love in word and deed to your family, neighbours and strangers.

5634. Just like Adam, the first man created, we can be pure.

5635. Let us imitate his purity; let us strive to persevere in noble deeds.

5636. Let us resist temptations; let us resist addictions.

5637. Let us be like Adam, with noble foreheads, radiant in joyful deeds.

5638. Let us be like Noah, unshaken in the face of life's difficulties.

5639. Let us be like David, brave on God's path; though oppressed and wounded in spirit, we can achieve victory in the spiritual struggle against all addictions.

5640. No matter what path we follow in life, and whether we walk through the dark valley of addiction or the steep path through the mountains of sorrow, Elah is near and will not forsake us.

5641. Noble deeds and perseverance in them prove that we love ourselves, serve our neighbours, and serve Elah with all our heart and soul.

5642. We must act in a righteous, just and honest manner, regardless of the difficulties we face.

5643. Let us be noble in our deeds, and not merely in fine and lofty words.

5644. Noble people are those who care for their children and the living conditions of their families.

5645. A noble person is one who loves their fellow human beings, bringing smiles to their faces and bringing prosperity and happiness to those struggling with addiction.

5646. Let us therefore walk the straight path; let us walk to heal our wounds.

5647. Let us go, then, to ennoble our lives, fighting against evil in this world.

5648. Let us speak out against injustice, all transgressions and all addictions.

5649. Let us show love to our brothers and sisters, for noble deeds include showing love to family, relatives and neighbours.

5650. You will be saved by saying: let us desire to do good deeds, let us support and care for the poor and the needy.

5651. An expression of mercy, rather than empty words, is action; it is the rejection of mere talking and commanding.

5652. Here is some honest advice for those struggling with addiction: be honest with yourself, be self-aware, be resistant to bad influences, keep away from illusions, and do what is right.

5653. The first step towards reconciliation with God in moments of addiction is honesty about one's own failures.

5654. Be just, then, and examine your soul faithfully; discover your faults and recognise your merits.

5655. The second step is to admit your addiction; honesty plays an important role here – admit to yourself the mistake you have made, and you will certainly feel relief.

5656. This is the beginning of the path to liberation, healing and freedom

Be mindful of yourself, as if heaven were within you, and the fountain of the water of life were flowing within you – how can you understand this?

5657. Seek the strength to heal yourself; seek the transformation of your soul.

5658. On the path away from addictions, be resistant to temptations and illusions, to the false beliefs that have crept into your mind.

5659. Possess also honesty, that is, pure sincerity towards yourselves.

5660. Those who perform noble deeds and speak words of kindness are loved by Elah.

5661. Live, then, a noble life, full of respect for your neighbours and for yourselves.

5662. And despite the struggle with addiction, you will overcome it, achieve victory and liberation.

5663. Addictions ‘must be fought at all costs’.

5664. Addictions entail financial and health costs.

5665. This often leads to estrangement from the family and depression.

5666. Depression is common because the cycle of intense cravings becomes apparent; the addict continues to feel shame and also experiences fleeting feelings of despondency, thinking badly of themselves.

5667. Overcoming addiction should take place in an atmosphere of reconciliation, seeking friendship, freedom and peace amongst those who are willing to help.

5668. Addicts should also break the chains of discord with their families or relatives in order to achieve peace.

5669. When you break the shackles of addiction, you will grow on your path, heal your soul, and free it from all harm.

5670. The happiness of one who frees themselves from addiction lies in seeking friendship with those who live nobly and offer them help and advice in times of difficulty.

5671. These addicts break down barriers to open up to others, speaking of their troubles, whilst those who help them show compassion, offer comfort and listen.

5672. If these addicts, living amidst quarrels and misunderstandings, are sad, and thus suffer and turn to alcohol.

5673. Let their souls not be troubled; they must free themselves from the wrongs of the past, they must leave a harmful environment and an unfulfilled marriage.

5674. The key to salvation, both for those who are addicted and for those who are free, is not the pursuit of excessive piety or strict observance of the laws, but love for one’s neighbour and the expectation of God’s help with all one’s heart and soul.

5675. So have faith and love for God; do not lose hope for change.

5676. Personal transformation is essential, as is knowing oneself inwardly and recognising one’s virtues, so that these may outweigh all one’s faults.

5677. Believe in yourselves and believe in the transformation of your spirit, your ‘mindset’; when you take up this challenge to turn away from the dust of addiction, you will surely find a source of love and support.

5678. Seek within yourselves the strength, sincerity and courage to overcome addictions; then you will realise that the temptations have vanished, and forgiveness from Elah will come to you.

5679. Examine your hearts, examine your spirit, bring your soul to the perfection of Elah.

5680. In the ‘fortress of your understanding’, find yourself, find the cause of your discernment, the cause of your addiction and of every difficulty.

5681. O, be courageous, face your healings, drive away all weaknesses, and then surely your spirit will be healed, your bones will be strengthened, for Elah is close to those who plead, who wander in their difficulties

Those who suffer ‘should seek help and all manner of counsel’.

5682. ‘They should seek help not only from God through prayer, but above all from people they can trust, who understand them and care for them’.

5683. Those who suffer should ‘seek help from the righteous to free themselves from oppression’.

5684. “Be aware that only God is able to cleanse you of all sins, all addictions and all the wounds that are in your hearts.

5685. He is your Redeemer and Saviour, the Rock on which you can rely”

“Do not drink to excess!

5686. Do not struggle alone against adversity, but turn in prayer to God, the sole giver.

5687. Addictions have never been a solution to difficulties; do not struggle with addictions, but be sober and walk the path of sobriety.

5689. “

‘Offer a humble prayer to Elah, who knows no hatred’

“Ask in your prayers for guidance, that you may walk in all His righteous ways.

5690. “I, too, love people and serve them as much as I possibly can, to lead them to selfless love for God and to salvation, which is attainable only in Him”

Elah will hear from on high; He certainly does not seek hatred, and He is far from punishing the repentant.

5691. These are words of counsel for your own good; may they serve to free you from the bondage of addiction, and may they also serve to set you free as counsel for the weak.

5692. These are counsels of joy, counsels of purification, jewels which, like stones, will build the future temple of light. Amen.

5693. Disarmament

Look at your hands, which shed the innocent blood of your brothers; look at how much harm you do to one another; you build nothing but a trust in war and destruction.

5694. You are destroying what is precious to mankind, brotherly love; you are destroying society.

5695. God does not tolerate such behaviour; He is the God of peace, not of destruction.

5696. You lived so happily in fear of war, but hatred is stirring within you; know your own souls before you reach for weapons; it will be best for you if you do not reach for them at all, and only do so with the intention of defence.

5697. True knowledge is knowledge of oneself in one’s soul and heart.

5698. Let your knowledge be filled with brotherly love; then you will also know what respect and mutual love are.

5699. Likewise, if you fill your sinful mind with hatred and a desire for revenge, then you will understand that your words and deeds lead you to the ruin of both body and soul.

5700. Enough of this: Elah has destined humanity for a higher purpose; He has not made us dependent on wars; He is the giver of peace.

5701. Let us be steadfast in our brotherly love, let us strive for peace and unity of strength, mutual aid, and let us not be guided by impulses or emotions.

5702. Let human dignity, love for one’s neighbour, and the use of peaceful solutions be our guiding principle in resolving conflicts.

5703. Do not boast of reciting madras and prayers if you wish to stir up a storm with your insults, if you wish to murder the innocent, if you are a soldier at war and wish to conquer and destroy.

5704. Your actions – O soldier – are fruitless; your love of war is not courage, but pride and selfishness – for you intend to murder the innocent.

5705. Look at yourself – you read the Bible, yet your deeds do not follow suit; you are a hotbed of hatred and are driven by hatred; look at the hands that commit injustice?

5706. 2064. To go on a pilgrimage – it is best to visit your own soul, to look upon your conscience and examine it, soldier; to look deep into your mind: how do you oppose your rulers?

5707. Let not hatred call upon your rulers; try to disarm your mind and be guided by brotherly love.

5708. O King, cast off your garments of war and clothe yourself in justice, peace and reconciliation.

5709. Among those who are worshippers of peace, who not only speak of it but seek peaceful solutions, shall be the inhabitants of paradise on earth; in their hearts flow the pure streams of paradise, and the fruits of their righteous deeds follow them.

5710. Their calls lead not to strife, but to reconciliation, and they delight in brotherly love.

5711. All those who make peace shall dwell in the gardens of God’s bounty and love, where the scent of roses wafts through the garden, and where the heavenly nightingale of the covenant of harmony and unity resounds with its wondrous song.

5712. Because of their devotion to peace, even their footsteps are holier than the footsteps of angels descending to earth.

5713. Their paradise shall be a paradise of joy, their paradise shall be a sanctuary of rest upon the earth, where trees everywhere are bathed in light, and their silver leaves shimmer without fear, without fear of the abyss of destruction and without the absence of the light of peace.

5714. Disarmament is inevitable for people who love the God of peace and walk in His paths of justice.

5715. They need to rebel against those who obey insolent rulers who bring strife, oppression and war.

5716. All those who bring vengeance, hatred and war upon the earth are enemies of God and His love.

5717. Every face is brighter than the moon, for they have chosen the beauty of peace; they reflect the rays of the sun of justice, where Yahweh has pitched His tent.

5718. I am terrified by the thought of war and destruction in our times; terrible madness, bloodshed and unimaginable destruction lurk amongst us, unless the Promised One reveals His face.

5719. May God surely send the Heavenly Messenger; let us place our hope in His coming.

5720. May the Child of Peace come into this world, and may the nations of the world go out to meet Him, to welcome the God of Peace and cry out for help to the One God.

5721. Then, when He appears, the gates of heaven shall open and all shall be filled with God's mercy; they shall breathe a sigh of relief from destruction after centuries of pain, suffering and anxiety caused by war.

5722. It was never God's intention that nations should slaughter one another for their accursed wealth, whilst their 'veils' of materialism blinded them, preventing them from perceiving the matters of harmony, peace and reconciliation.

5723. Such is God's power to eradicate hatred from people's consciences and 'give them hearts of flesh', full of harmony and mutual love.

5724. God has the power to build a house for Elah – a House of Prayer for all nations, laying love as its foundation.

5725. A house that is not a place of strife will be lost, just as places where war rages are the work of evil; their deeds bear witness to a love of evil, and their foundations are torn down and destroyed; love is withdrawn and desecrated.

5726. Let us not preach fear or hatred; let us lay the foundations of a house of peace, a house far from suffering but close to compassion, full of mutual empathy.

5727. Let us dare to oppose all acts of war; let us be those who dispel the veils of hatred.

5728. Let our forces sign peace treaties, so that one nation does not take up arms against another.

5729. God causes people to love peace, to unite, to sign peace treaties; and who is the creator of peace, if not God?

5730. And who is the creator of unrest and war, if not tyrants?

5731. Sign letters of agreement and unite in mutual admonition; unite in the bond of brotherly love.

5732. By resolving quarrels, disputes and hate speech, you will not please me, but your neighbours and God.

5733. Enter now into the shadow of God with all His satisfaction, so that holiness and the reflections of the Holy Spirit may be mirrored in your conscience.

5734. Let your conscience be pure; let your hands and deeds reflect the righteousness of your mind.

5735. Show brotherly love, so that I may use the cup of reconciliation and harmony, and drink once more from the fountain of Elah's love.

The Good News

5736.

He is the One who sustains all things, the infinite and all-knowing Elah.

5737. He, in the court of His angels, is exalted above the heavens and beloved above the infinite worlds.

5738. He is the infinite Elah, living beyond time, the Creator of all things visible and hidden!

5739. To no one, neither to men nor to the Sons of God, has He given the power to create all worlds.

5740. All the stars of heaven sing, all the hosts of heaven sing – ‘Glory to God the Most High!’.

5741. He covered the world with a cloak so that He might not be seen; He hid Himself in the holy tent.

5742. He spread out the world through the tent in which He dwelt.

5743. He strengthened the hearts of men and angels, that they might acknowledge Him as the sole ruler of the universe.

5744. They do this not because they fear Him, but because He is the source of infinite love.

5745. Our Elah is the rising and setting sun, and His radiant splendour illuminates all who seek His One.

5746. His splendour has shone upon the horizon of Sei – the Messiah.

5747. A wife must not be dependent on her husband, nor a husband on his wife.

5748. We are to treat women with respect as a gift from God and as sacred beings.

5749. Many have treated women with hostility and ordered that they be beaten and abused – which is abhorrent behaviour and an immoral command.

5750. We also know that Jesus will not return to earth and that this is a fable created by Christians; we know that Elah, our God, is One and will return to our hearts when we create paradise on this earth, bringing lasting peace among nations as well. Behold, these words shall be a cup of joy; recite these Words, do not forget them.

5751. Recite a few verses for me from this Book, lift up the cup of Her countenance, pour out your joy upon the people.

5752. He who has a good heart now proclaims to the whole world – Yahweh is the only Creator and Saviour, and there is no other true God.

5753. Today is the time to rebuild the Temple on Mount Moriah, so that the world may know that Elah is exalted among the nations.

5754. This is a House full of Love, full of love for the Name.

5755. My Elah is Elah from above, not from below, so can He not be a man?

5756. Build the Temple in your hearts – with the letters of God that I establish, not with buildings and bloody sacrifices; purify yourselves so that the Holy Spirit may dwell within you.

5757. Glory to God, the One, the Undivided, who was never born nor created!

5758. He, the true God, who teaches all righteousness, delights in His love.

5759. O Elah, all who thirst come through your door, they come graciously to the waters of your gracious heart.

5760. From the depths of God’s soul, from the depths of the infinite sea, I have raised my soul above all Oneness.

5761. I have purified my soul, Elah, I have beheld the Most Pure One; I have become truthful, Elah, I have beheld the One free from all sins.

5762. His nearness, in the sea of my knowledge, is the distance from a ship at sea to the nearest port.

5763. Truly, He is the Most High; there is none and there shall be none equal to Him.

5764. Let us therefore desire with all our heart and soul to know Elah, who reveals Himself through His messengers.

5765. Those who reject Him and turn away from Him are wretched and destitute, deprived of the source of life!

5766. Be faithful, perfect in your faithfulness, and you shall attain Paradise.

5767. Give me courage, Elah, my Only Saviour.

5768. I have discovered the pearl, but there are countless people who do not seek God’s pearl and cast it aside; could it be that they are considering seeking an empty shell? The Holy Spirit whispers these sacred words into my ear, ceaselessly proclaiming: 'Elah is One; let the world know that Elah is One and indivisible'.

5769. Mercy flows from God; His love, like an ocean, pours out upon all beings. Do not forsake His love, hope and mercy.

5770. Share His love with all beings on earth, whether animals or people.

5771. Remember all people as precious treasures.

5772. And of every gentle animal as a living, sentient being that breathes and is of great worth in God's eyes!

5773. This is a reminder not to harm your wives, not to waste your children's childhood, and not to neglect them.

5774. I entered the Valley of Peace for a moment and heard the voice of God saying: Verily, Elah is the One God, He is Undoubtedly the Beneficent, Elah shall be the One upon the earth.

5775. God's throne is stern and full of wrath when wives are abandoned for others, and children weep and are neglected by their parents.

5776. May God punish every parent who rejects, neglects and abuses their children, and may he who abuses his wife, disregarding the Elah of the world and raising his hand against her, be cursed.

5777. Be perfect, then, and cast out all anger and hatred that has taken root in your families!

5778. Pain and suffering will indeed befall anyone who harms their neighbour, be it a brother, father, son, wife or daughter.

5779. I have divided the souls of drops of water; these Words have flowed forth, and from them have flowed endless streams flowing into the infinite Ocean of Divine goodness. Truly, every one of our behaviours and deeds influences how we shape our world today.

5780. We must not judge good deeds, but we should punish and judge evil deeds and not allow them to spread throughout the world and continue to consume it with their destructive fire of wickedness.

5781. The destiny of every human being is to make another human being their companion; the highest task of every soul is unconditional service and the attainment of the highest goal – to love one's neighbour in such a way as not to harm them, inflicting no wounds upon soul or body.

5782. True spiritual progress consists in loving Elah, professing that He is one and indivisible, and in unconditional love for others.

5783. I went in search of the Truth like Abraham; I turned night into day like a friend of God.

5784. Like the messengers, we can attain the attributes of God Himself by drawing near to Him above the imperfections of this unjust world.

5785. All who follow the path of righteousness are indeed precious pearls before Elah, which neither fade nor perish, resurrected in a heavenly body.

5786. So go and ask Elah eagerly, do not cease to ask questions – Elah is open to all answers, so Do not be prisoners of people and their traditions; go out and look upon the works of Elah.

5787. O Infinite One, we ask You today to bestow upon us all good things, to help bring peace to the world, so that people may not harm one another, that all may love one another and not despise one another.

5788. Grant, O Spirit of Elah, that joy may cover sorrow and happiness may cover misfortune, when all people cast aside quarrels and hatred towards one another.

5789. Soar like birds and fly towards the perfection of knowing God, inhabitants of this world – I call upon you to establish the House of Peace, the House of Light and the House of Joy for all nations.

5790. The Covenant of Abraham

God is the giver of promises.

5791. Therefore, obey the wise men!

5792. Abraham became the guardian of God's laws after the Flood.

5793. There is therefore no doubt that the love of God the Father and my ministry are spread through my knowledge to all people, and everyone who accepts these commandments and lives in accordance with them is under God's rule and is free from the influence of death.

5794. We can be children of the promise not merely in name, like the Jews, but we can be children with circumcised hearts, and anyone whose heart is softened may enter into a covenant with Abraham.

5795. Let us journey to the Heavenly Canaan through our lives, just as Abraham did.

5796. It is best to be humble like Abraham and to heed every word of God's Book.

5797. We should not repeat the wrongdoings of the characters in this book, but we should learn from them how to avoid the mistakes and sinful paths they followed.

5798. Abraham brought light to the pagan world of antiquity, and in the same way we can carry the message of this Divine Knowledge, which He gives you, throughout the inhabited earth.

5799. It is also possible to break the covenant with Abraham if one rejects 'this Divine Knowledge' from one's soul.

5800. It is also possible that one will not set an example to one's neighbours and will continue to read the 'Book of the Father' or the 'Book of the Mother' as mere books; in which case, the efforts of such a sinner will bring him neither salvation nor respite.

5801. Thus, salvation began on the day of the covenant between God and Abraham, immediately following the covenant between Adam and God.

5802. This restoration brought salvation, and the grace of heaven was poured out upon mankind; without this covenant, it would be difficult to hope for the salvation of souls and reconciliation with God.

5803. Go therefore and say: 'God is One, indivisible.

5804. He is the One God without intermediaries; He is not a man; He is the God of Abraham.

5805. The prophets Adam, Enoch and Abraham

I shall now present to you the case of the prophet Enoch; the world in his time differed from ours in that it was characterised by pervasive wickedness and disorder.

5806. But God, in His infinite wisdom, recognised Enoch's heart and nourished his spirit with His sustaining power.

5807. God endowed him with comprehensive knowledge, not of how to formulate creeds, but of how to use the law inscribed in his conscience to improve the world.

5808. Behold, our Elah is the Great, the Truly One, the Indivisible, sending prophets for the good of humanity.

5809. He was also one who trusted; one might say that we should act like the poet, walking in trust in Providence, for trust is the better part.

5810. The very finger of God engraved in him the Decalogue, the law of conscience, from which he never strayed throughout his life.

5811. Enoch, in his greatness, was valiant, which means that he unconditionally observed moral laws and did not doubt the righteousness of God's work in changing people's evil intentions.

5812. The saint – Enoch – became like the Holy Spirit on earth; he held back the waters of the Flood and its onset.

5813. Enoch also ensured that the law was not broken in his time; though righteousness was on the wane, God preserved the devout people who did not fall into extremes, but had 'God's Law' – the Ten Commandments – engraved upon their hearts.

5814. Despite his great righteousness, Saint Enoch was mocked by the people of his time for claiming that the Flood could not come and that the waters of the Flood would never flood the world.

5815. Enoch's faith was pure perfection; he was a believer by virtue of spiritual insight, and through his pure conscience he was connected to Heaven.

5816. He was a worshipper, but on the path of the Spirit; in his heart, he rejected the nearness of the One Elah, the Benefactor.

5817. Divine Providence and the safe refuge in God's arms were fulfilled when he himself ascended to God's throne on a fiery steed.

5818. As stated in the Book of the Father and the Mother, not all the events experienced by the prophets of Elah should be regarded as symbolic or fables.

5819. I believe with all my heart that the fiery steed carried Enoch to heaven to meet Elah.

5820. Infinite joy and blissful peace overwhelmed Enoch when he learnt that Elah would save him from death and that he would dwell in eternity with God.

5821. What a beautiful story: Elah himself appeared as a saviour from death and set an example for us, showing that we too shall live in a reborn paradise on this earth as eternally existing beings of light – this will indeed be the resurrection of our souls.

5822. Through luminous bodies, wonderfully endowed in the future, Elah will explain that holiness is openly displayed in the resurrection of bodies, and not concealed.

5823. Our earthly heavens would weep, and the stars would cease to sing, were it not for HaShem, our Elah, permitting the ‘resurrection’ – the manifestation of the sons of men in luminous bodies.

5824. It will be like the resurrection of Enoch in chariots; everything will happen suddenly, and no eye or ear will perceive that their bodies have been transformed into luminous bodies!

5825. This is the miracle of God, the Elah of life, not of death.

5826. Truly, Elah abhors death; He is the Elah of life and grants eternal life to everyone who is faithful to Him!

5827. He, our Elah, will bring peace after the great war; He will also bring paradise and eternity – such is the destiny of mankind – to live eternally with God, having luminous bodies together with Him.

5828. We have no choice but to renounce sin; repentance consists in changing our way of thinking and confessing our sins to the One God, however He may be called amongst men.

5829. He is indeed the Forgiving One, the One who has no intermediaries.

5830. Salvation comes through steps such as changing one’s attitude towards sin and hating it, and persevering in righteousness until the end.

5831. All these steps lead to eternal life, and without them and without faith in Elah Yah as the One God, this cannot be attained.

5832. Through repentance we attain unity with Elah, that is, true devotion, true knowledge of Elah, and trust in Him.

5833. Elah has made the laws of the Gate ‘His garment, and the mystical path’ of this Holy Book ‘His cloak’.

5834. Therefore, do not call every person a sinner; is not the teaching of ‘original sin’ unjust?

5835. In this way, the Laws of the Gate are a repetition of the words of Moses.

5836. One may also call God our Father; so glory be to Yahweh, called Father by many nations of the earth, whose names are infinite, which no one has counted!

5837. We may be symbolically buried for our sins and receive forgiveness for our transgressions by confessing them to the One God, who is our Father, loving and forgiving.

5838. Therefore, man, you need no intermediaries; turn to God, the One Elah and Redeemer.

5839. Nor should you repent with sorrow when you stumble; Elah forgives readily. Let us be grateful as servants, for Elah is called the God of happiness!

5840. He who frees us from all temptations, from all trials.

5841. Our old life can be transformed and purified through the power of Elah, His gifts and repentance – turning away from sin, changing our thinking and ceasing to do evil.

5842. To persevere here means to persevere in good deeds and faith in the One God, in a manner pleasing to God.

5843. Every good deed is recorded by the angels and by the angel whom Hindus sometimes identify with the ‘god’ Chitragupta.

5844. The fact that angels record our deeds or strike evildoers from the heavenly books is repeatedly confirmed in the ‘Book of the Father and the Mother’. It is therefore true that God’s messengers are called upon to act upon us, so that we may come to our senses and not stray from the right path.

5845. May the name of our Father, the loving Elah, be exalted above the worlds.

5846. Become, then, disciples of God, not my disciples, but apostles of God Himself.

5847. To have eternal life and be certain of it, do not hesitate to persevere in righteousness – keeping all the commandments of the Decalogue.

5848. It is a difficult path, full of many hardships, trials and adversities, but it is worth the effort.

5849. The best example for us are all the prophets of the 'Mother and Father of the Book'; from their discipleship, attitude and lives, we can draw values and benefits for ourselves and our future eternal life with Elah.

5850. Those who worship the One God and repent of their grave sins shall be clothed in the light of light; as a reward, the Most High shall place a crown upon the heads of the rulers of the earth.

5851. The call to serve our neighbours – wives, husbands and children – and to do good deeds is a form of work for God.

5852. It is also worth observing whether people in the world share a common goal and how they are developing, and we should be grateful to God that no unnecessary quarrels or hatred arise amongst us.

5853. Let us also give people the freedom to express themselves; let us give them the freedom to speak on spiritual matters; then there will certainly be no disputes or quarrels, which form the basis for unnecessary inter-faith wars.

5854. Let us therefore be grateful to God the Father for caring for us, for bestowing upon us life-giving rain and for not allowing people to hate us.

5855. It is also important that we free ourselves from the influence of sin, which can be like a millstone that we have been dragging spiritually throughout our lives.

5856. We must face this burden and cast it aside, throwing it into the depths of the ocean.

5857. Therefore, just as we strive for unity in Elah, let us also strive for unity within our families.

5858. Elah has enabled me to overcome my weaknesses, and as I change my thinking and strive to do good, I also strive to persevere in this attitude, to persevere to the end in love, in the loving House of Elah.

5859. From the fall of Adam and Eve, we learn that it was a test through which they came to know good and evil, and by knowing evil and its terrible consequences, they will be able to strive to do good.

5860. The desire to do good and the act of doing good are a continuous process, and salvation depends on our faith and good deeds.

5861. To become a better person, one needs a strong desire for change and, like Abraham, to go through trials, through good and bad times, in order to achieve contentment and happiness in life.

5862. We must be circumcised in heart to be saved, freed from the influence of sin and death.

5863. Let us appreciate that we are blessed through the covenant with Abraham, so let us say: I must lead a holy life to receive the blessings of Abraham; I must pray only to the One Elah, that He may bestow upon me infinite blessings.

5864. I trust God more and believe in Him when I remain in constant communication with Him through prayer.

5865. I also believe that Elah will come very soon because of the many trials we are currently going through.

5866. Elah will come to give us peace, restore paradise and re-establish the order of the days of Eden, before the fall of Adam and Eve.

5867. We, as human beings, are responsible for our existence here on earth; our actions affect the social and spiritual environment in which we live, so we would do well to observe the laws of the land, the laws of God, and the laws for all people – the Ten Commandments.

5868. Elah never accused Eve's mother of bringing death into the world, nor did he blame her for breaking the law.

5869. Elah did, however, warn that the consequence of sin would be death, and that in Him, as the only Saviour, we are to await a return to the days of Eden.

5870. Elah pours a single drop into the ocean; we are like a single drop of God's knowledge.

5871. The waters of His ocean are bestowed upon both heaven and earth.

5872. With the love of His Words, He distributes them drop by drop, filling the bed of the all-encompassing sea.

5873. Can we recognise His pearls, such as His Holy Word, His proverbs and advice, given here?

5874. On the Day of Resurrection

God is Elah of miracles – He is able to deliver the dead from the sleep of death, and when the Arm of Elah returns, the saved will surely be literally clothed in new bodies – like the light of morning.

5875. Why do you cause yourselves suffering by rejecting the joy and miracle of Elah of the heavens?

5876. The rejection of the resurrection of the body is the error of paganism.

5877. The Unchanging Law of Moses

There is but one Elah; He is the Elah of gentleness

Let yourselves be enveloped by love and tenderness, just as He Himself bestows them; the love and tenderness of the Mother led Him to teach His companions to renounce greed and pride, and to follow and act in the same way.

5878. Renounce pride by loving your neighbour – your mother and father, your son and daughter.

5879. Honour your mother and father if they deserve it, wrote Elah of Wisdom on the tablet of my heart – indeed, they should be honoured, provided they do no harm to anyone.

5880. Were Moses' mother and father like pure souls, because they were righteous before God?

5881. Moses' mother and father had great hearts, full of care and love for the prophet who was to bring unparalleled light to the world.

5882. Moses' father was not characterised by cruelty or bestial behaviour, as uncivilised Hebrews are sometimes portrayed.

5883. Elah established a covenant of love and support between Moses' parents and Moses himself, so that, as a wise man, he might spread the glory of Elah amongst the righteous people.

5884. A father's love never ceases.

5885. Can a prophet, as a pure soul, perceive faults?

5886. Moses, too, was righteous among the righteous; the children loved him not out of pain or fear, but because he was an exemplary father and husband to his people.

5887. Moses was gentle towards children and righteous towards the people.

5888. May my God, Beloved, immerse Himself in the sea of light; in the depths of Your sea I have found the treasure of the Torah.

5889. Do not give in to sorrow whilst you live; let us embrace one another tenderly, just as Moses did with his own children.

5890. Moses, in his unparalleled wisdom, forbade the killing of children, the rape of women, and even cruelty towards animals not yet born.

5891. Today we live in a world of grace; the killing of the sinner has been replaced by God's mercy, so there is no need to demand the blood of sinners or to punish them.

5892. In those days, in ancient times, Moses' killing of sinners stemmed from the need to maintain independence, unity and justice, as far as was possible at the time.

5893. Despite Moses' seemingly cruel commands regarding the killing of a disobedient son, these commands were abolished long ago by the rabbis.

5894. And God was quick to forgive and gave sinners a chance to reform.

5895. Patience and forgiveness towards others is a wonderful principle.

5896. By the radiant Elah, God of all comfort!

5897. Has Moses' soul drowned in a sea of light?

5898. Let all my wickedness vanish, for he is the dust of all his iniquities.

5899. Righteousness shall spring from My dust; I use My dust for purification.

5900. These Words which He now writes down are the same as the Words spoken by God on Mount Horeb to Moses; they are the same Words of Truth sent to Isaiah, and they are the same Words of Truth sent to the Book of the Mother.

5901. Was not Jesus Himself a prophet who, in times past, proclaimed the coming of the Messiah to distant nations?

5902. If Moses led Israel out of spiritual Egypt, can the Messiah of the present age lead the world out of the bondage of sin?

5903. The light of the herald of dawn is a ray of divine light!

5904. Truly, let all hatred cease, let love never pass away!

5905. This principle for our times is one of Elah's most important concerns: the eradication of all manifestations of war and hatred, and the instilling in people's hearts of mutual respect and love for one another, is the greatest safeguard against unnecessary wars and bloodshed.

5906. The Book of the Mother proclaims that God is far removed from bloodshed, hatred and the instigation of wars; it is fanatical people, in their egocentricity and by desecrating the sacred scriptures of the 'Book of the Mother' and the 'Book of the Father', who portray God as a bloodthirsty tyrant, but Elah is far from war; it is He who unites nations and spreads peace amongst many.

5907. The Gate proclaims that God is just and does not commit tyranny; people often justify their evil deeds by saying that 'God commanded them to do so', because 'that is what a certain holy book says'; this is an attempt to exonerate themselves from fanaticism and the consequences of their evil deeds; God truly condemns such people.

5908. 'I use my powder – far from selfishness – as a remedy for my eyes, so that my eyes, like the seas, may teem with pearls' – salvation.

5909. The Holy Spirit – the Shekhinah – is like a fertile garden of love; it is boundless, bearing fruits other than joy and sorrow.

5910. Truly, the Almighty, incorporeal God is the very source of goodness, so let all those who ascribe cruel attributes to God be cursed!

5911. There is therefore no need to judge and persecute sinners if they do no harm to others.

5912. Such are the transgressors of the law, those who stand out because they bring harm, hatred and strife to the world.

5913. God is the centre around which the holy angels circle, singing songs of praise: From age to age, He alone is merciful and forgiving!

5914. He is the most perfect in the universe and calls us to friendship amongst people, so as not to bring wrath and misfortune upon anyone, and commands us to befriend both the deserving and the undeserving, and to forgive the transgressions of both the deserving and the undeserving.

5915. Elah is indeed the first source, the light and the spiritual Sun, who does not impose His will to do good or the need to worship Him upon free beings in the universe.

5916. In order to worship Elah and do good unto Him, people must have free will, without anyone being forced to do anything.

5917. This is precisely what God has done; He is the Elah of free will.

5918. He did not make us His slaves, but prepared us for freedom, so that we might journey with Him to heaven.

5919. This is God the Father's true devotion to our cause, when He does not command us, but gives us wisdom and conscience so that we may manage this wisely.

5920. The gift to us is not to serve Elah as slaves, but to submit to His law out of love for His person.

5921. There is nothing more precious to Elah than devoting one's heart to His cause, giving oneself to Him out of love for people and for everything that glorifies Him in life.

5922. Let us remove the perversity of human traditions from the ear of the mind and follow God, who is the One Saviour.

5923. Let us remove joy from the ear of the mind; let us hold fast to virtue.

5924. He has also sent to our conscience a mediator, the Holy Spirit, who tells us what we are to do, so that we may not cling to any religion, but trust in Him, God, and in the Scriptures, 'the Book of the Father'. These words come from the Most High.

5925. He thus declares, with regard to all preachers who come from Him, that all the words of the preacher must be in accordance with the Words of Elah, 'the Book of the Father'; otherwise, the preacher does not speak from Elah: 'You shall convey My words to them.'

5926. And whoever trusts in these words revealed in these sermons will be truly happy, not straying to the right or to the left, like a 'flock wandering without a shepherd'.

5927. Moses sprinkled the water of life in the desert; likewise, do we live in the desert, longing for living water?

5928. Similarly, we live in spiritual Egypt, longing to break free from the bondage of obedience to men; shall we then obey God?

5929. Amen.

5930. Jerusalem

The people of Israel neither knew nor fully understood God's promises, which were first given to Abraham and then to all the nations after him.

5931. The law governing our holy faith is the Decalogue given to Moses by God on Mount Horeb.

5932. This was the first covenant that God made with the Israelites, and it was also given to the Egyptians who joined the Israelites.

5933. This is a law that cannot be broken, for to do so brings down curses; but if one keeps this law, God sends down blessings.

5934. This is God's will revealed to Moses along with the Ten Commandments, upon which all other books of the Bible are based, together with the revelations of the prophets and the Law of Moses.

5935. The Law of Moses is divided into laws directed towards God and laws governing human relations.

5936. The laws governing human relations concern morality and not harming others, whilst the laws concerning God concern the fact that He is the One and Only and worthy of worship.

5937. There were certain conditions for offering sacrifices in the Temple, and this was precisely the purpose of the Temple – to purify oneself of sins before God.

5938. The temple was a form of mediation, just as the Holy Spirit is today.

5939. Therefore, the purpose of the temple was to unite man with God and to await his return to unity with God, not to repeat bloody sacrifices over and over again.

5940. The 'Third Temple' signifies the gathering of all people, regardless of race, nationality and language, into one family.

5941. A temple built of stones – symbolic people as a symbolic Third World – is far more precious and valuable to God than buildings erected by human hands.

5942. The temple of unity opens the gates of heaven on earth.

5943. A temple built of people as sacred stones is a place of comfort and growth in Elah.

5944. In ancient times, the temple was a place of encounter with God.

5945. For the ancient Israelites, it was the holiest place on earth, where God revealed Himself in the form of the Shekinah.

5946. God Himself descended to earth in the form of the Shechinah to dwell in the temple and give meaning to Moses' mission.

5947. Ceremonial law, such as the Sabbath and other rituals, has not been abolished and replaced by a false 'law of love' and faith – for moral law remains constant and unchanging, just as God Himself is.

5948. Take my word for it that God has no intermediaries, and prophets are not equal to the God of Gods.

5949. The three parts of the temple may reflect how we relate to one another and purify ourselves on the path of our conversion.

5950. The first part of the temple may symbolise being among pagans, merchants, etc., where we realise that the temptations we experience are dangerous and harmful.

5951. The second part of the temple reveals the spirit of the temple calling us to a change of heart and a change of mind – to repentance.

5952. The third part of the temple may show the person closest to God, becoming a sanctified man and woman, full of blessings from Elah.

5953. I am showing you what the Holy Spirit has revealed to me in His wisdom, but Elah alone knows the whole future and the whole past.

5954. He is beyond human understanding, and His knowledge and understanding of the future belong solely to Him, so ask Elah.

5955. Perhaps He will grant you a revelation: God has long declared that there is no God but Me; I alone am invisible to bodies, yet visible to souls.

5956. If God alone is the source of life and immortality, then He lives forever.

5957. Truly, He would rather meet His souls and rejoice in their radiant resurrection than allow them to remain for eternity in the grave of death!

5958. Our Elah is the giver of life, not of death; the giver of health, not of sickness; for He alone is the infinite spark that creates life: He, Elah, is the Living One, the Holy One, who never dies.

5959. Truly, there is no greater Saviour than Elah; He is the only Father who can save, who can free us from the burden of sins.

5960. Prophets are like Revelators of the Divine Will; they are imbued with divine attributes, as the Prophet declares: These prophets, like mirrors, will always reflect rays of light, taking nothing away from the Sun's warmth, adding nothing to it, nor taking anything from it

'The Father of the Book' – the Bible, 'The Mother Book' – these Scriptures warn against adding anything to it: 'You shall not add to what I command you, nor take away from it, keeping the commandments of Elah, your God, which I lay upon you.'

5961. And I shall regard the entire Mother Book, as He foretold in His words, as the instrument by which the Holy Scriptures and His commandments have been confirmed. All these Holy Scriptures are merely a commentary on the Tanakh.

5962. The Resurrection is to be understood in a figurative sense, as described by Gate in the Book of the Father – as the appearance of a new Revealer.

5963. The Resurrection must also be understood literally, as described by Daniel in his book, as a resurrection in luminous bodies – guf latif.

5964. God's true position is that there will be a literal, luminous resurrection, that there will be a literal Day of Judgement, that death is not eternal, and that eternal life is a literal reward for believers – this may seem to contradict the teachings of the Gate, but the first believers in God did not deny the resurrection of the body – yet now this knowledge has been revealed, and 'in the last days many will study it, and knowledge will increase'.

5965. Indeed, certain tenets and teachings of Islam and Christianity must be rejected, and in their place must be introduced the truest, enlightened understanding of divine truths through the Mother Book, which must be accepted as the most faithful interpretation of the Laws of God.

5966. Christianity and the path of Ahura Mazda, despite the beauty of the teachings preserved from their prophets, do not, however, originate from God, but are the work of men and human philosophy. There are many books, including the Gospels, which are full of human weakness and the deification of men instead of the Most Merciful God.

5967. Such books contain divine sparks, as well as traces of human hands and human thoughts.

5968. The words of the 'Father of the Book' – the Tanakh – warn against human philosophies.

5969. A true preacher is a true warner against false doctrines embraced by the unwitting; I speak the truth, even if it is uncomfortable, and I say things that people will not like.

5970. A true teacher is also a gentle strengthener of hearts, awakening them from the slumber of sin, not through condemnation, but by leading souls towards Unity in love for the One All-Merciful.

5971. Elah is merciful; He truly does not allow some to be deprived of their possessions and loved ones, even if they are sinful and unfaithful.

5972. Coercion breeds only misery, a desire to know the unknown, a sinful life and another wave of enslavement.

5973. Elah, on the other hand, wishes to be loved in freedom!

5974. .

5975. There is nothing worse than the law of retaliation, the 'death penalty', and hatred.

5976. Who, in the end, is holy? Is no one holy?

5977. Yet Elah is able to purify us through her law and the reading of these Words.

5978. On what grounds, then, does anyone pronounce the 'death penalty'?

5979. Do you not call yourselves gods, you who pronounce the 'death penalty'?

5980. Truly, anyone who punishes in accordance with Muslim Sharia law and applies 'state punishments' alongside corporal punishment makes himself a 'god' – superior to the neighbour upon whom he inflicts punishment.

5981. Such a decree has never come from the mouth of God; it is a human invention and a cruel human custom.

5982. I have decreed its justice, so that the money may be distributed as intended. The surplus must go to the poor; this is an offering for sins.

5983. This surplus is a tithe or other tribute, which is to go to the poor and to God's people in a value greater than that for the sake of the Holy Faith.

5984. The proclamation of the Holy Faith should be carried out in accordance with the duty of every believer.

5985. One should take into account and not neglect the duties, actions and families of believers.

5986. Let us therefore raise the banners of peace, true peace that will not pass away, peace of mind and friendship.

5987. Let us build the 'New Jerusalem', that is, let us build brotherhood among nations; let us forge and destroy all weapons, so that every weapon, like 'hooks', may become useless.

5988. God, grant that Your will be done, that wars may vanish, and that peace may reign forever amongst the nations!

5989. Each of us has an inner Light within us, which we recognise in other people and their faith, a light coming from God, obscured by superstition and religion.

5990. We need to pray to God directly, without the need for intermediaries.

5991. God will be King of the whole world; so declared the prophet: 'On that day there shall be one God, and His Name shall be one'.

Christians believe that 'the Son of God' is to be understood literally, but was Moses the Son of God?

5992. God truly needs no intermediaries to draw near to Him and understand Him.

5993. 'I call upon Elah, who is worthy of praise, and I have been delivered from my enemies.'

5994. We must not rashly assume that there are no dangers in life.

5995. The idol of wealth and materialism – the spiritual Antichrist – has flooded today's world with its filth; it is clear that the idols of entertainment are overflowing with immorality, addictions, alcohol and the influence of evil people.

5996. In vain do Christians await the return of Jesus, since he himself has turned to dust and his spirit has met with God?

5997. Is it not the case that Christianity and Islam are the perpetrators of bloodshed and hatred in the world?

5998. There is no peace on earth, yet it is taken away by people who call themselves 'people of the Book'?

5999. My words come from God; you can bear witness to God through your lives, not just with words, so be a light amongst people!

6000. Conformity to the world and its way of thinking should have no place amongst us.

6001. Judge for yourselves whether my words come from the world of light or from the world of darkness.

6002. Accept these words of purity as the words of God Himself.

6003. These are the commandments I proclaim: It is better to do everything in a spirit of love, mutual forgiveness and reconciliation than to hate one another without cause.

6004. First, serve one another at home.

6005. There is nothing more precious than family, love for children, and mutual devotion to children!

6006. Praise parents who care for their children.

6007. Behold, if your Father has wronged you, you will not forgive him.

6008. A father's love for his son depends on the circumstances.

6009. A father cannot force or command, but he cares tenderly for his son. No violence can come from the Father's mouth or His hand.

6010. Do not harm yourselves.

6011. Meaningless love, devoid of feeling and care for a child, has no right to exist.

6012. Elah is with you and stands by your side.

6013. Be like a belt of compassion; surround everyone with your love. God truly does not hate; He is compassionate. There is nothing more special than His creatures, who need care and our commitment.

6014. Treat your wife as your own soul; you must not punish her or even think of raising a hand against her.

6015. God hates those who boast of their violence and anger.

6016. God – He brings not war, but peace; therefore I come to You on my knees, O great Saviour of mankind!

6017. Just as my love for You sprouted from a seed, slowly from a bud I saw the light of hope; the sun of Your Spirit blinded me!

6018. Let us love God's creations, people and animals, with all our hearts; let us not harm them, but protect and cherish them.

6019. Your gift to humanity is the love You have bestowed upon us, so that we may be gentle, live in peace, and never harbour hatred towards one another.

6020. God's love is timeless; it traverses all ages with the speed of lightning and does not bypass the heart of any being who heeds Your guidance!

6021. Love will never perish there; virtuous feelings will never vanish, whilst hatred, divisions and loneliness will surely perish.

6022. Materialism, selfishness and greed kill souls, and getting rich does not bring happiness.

6023. A woman needs no veils – a woman full of righteousness is clothed in faith in the truth, just as the First Man clothed her, purified light!

6024. But Elah hates violence, and anyone who uses violence has clearly condemned themselves to the fire!

Do not inscribe upon the tablets of human hearts hatred of evil and darkness – selfishness, lust, anger, greed, complaining, pride, envy, lies, self-hatred, violence, insolence, cruelty, neglect of children, despondency, dishonesty.

6025. And contempt for parents, rudeness, insincerity, laziness, vindictiveness, ingratitude – may we show repentance within ourselves.

6026. Avoid these demons, destroy them.

6027. Wherever God leads, there I follow Him.

6028. God is my Saviour and King; through the Holy Spirit He instructs and strengthens me.

6029. As a disciple of God, I am a follower of the Gate, a follower of His commandments which He has given us.

6030. I am also His citizen awaiting the revelation from heaven of the New Jerusalem; already here on earth I can look forward to paradise on earth, and thanks to His Word I can change for the better day by day

Possessing knowledge of the 'Father of the Book' – the Tanakh, or the 'Mother of the Book' – these Scriptures, does not mean being a disciple of God and following Him.

6031. It may happen that a person who reads the Bible over-interprets it, picks out from the Scriptures those commandments that suit them, or becomes a fanatic, thus turning into a hypocrite.

6032. Such actions cause God the Father much suffering, and people drift away from the source of life, i.e.

6033. from all the Revealed Books right up to the Mother Book, through the workings of inner temptations – the symbolic 'devil' and his unworthy deeds.

6034. A true follower of God lives like the prophet Abraham and does not utter fine words, does not exalt himself or his own worth; he is 'humble of heart'.

Every day, Elah, through the Holy Spirit, tells me what to do and how to behave, so that I may love my neighbours and lead them out of darkness into the light.

6035. Like the fools of today, some people think they will be blessed and saved through their good deeds, but this is a lie of the ‘devil’ – their own ego; no one can be freed from sin except through God’s grace.

6036. God sends Satan so that believers may choose between truth and falsehood.

6037. Unlike the ‘adversary’ – Satan – he is God’s helper; he is not a demon, but an angel who tempts mankind towards evil.

6038. The Word that passes through me tells me that Satan darkens the hearts of many people through witchcraft and false revelations.

6039. The consequence of following the path of evil stems from fear or delusion, but even there a divine spark shines, for Satan is a servant of God; he is the accuser so that God may judge in righteousness.

6040. The beauty of false revelations is infinite; the words spoken by these people are like leaves blown to God by the wind – they lack the power of the Holy Spirit, any saving power to change people’s hearts; the teachings of philosophers and others are good and useful only insofar as they are in accordance with the letter and spirit of the ‘Father of the Book’ – the Tanakh, the ‘Mother of the Book’ – these Books; the rest must be rejected if their teachings are not in accordance with Holy Scripture.

6041. The revelations of philosophers and other mundane poets should not be rejected, provided they are in accordance with the New Scripture, and everything that they and other philosophers do not teach in accordance with the New Scripture must be rejected.

6042. I warn you, no true prophet presents the ‘Father of the Book’ as a collection of stories that never happened; every true prophet will speak in accordance with the letter of this Holy Book.

6043. As has already been said, the elaborate words of false ‘prophets’ do not prove that their words come from God.

6044. For those very false prophets who dream visions, and whose visions do not come to pass – they certainly prophesy to their own shame and ruin, saying what pleases everyone.

6045. O sons and daughters of God, do not turn away from the path of God

He, your God, is One and Indivisible

These are words of comfort and

Elah is a witness for you,

He bears witness to Himself

The One Faith

- 1 This is the faith from ancient times, from eternity to eternity.
- 2 Here is an explanation from the One Reality, which neither is born nor dies
- 3 These are proverbs from God, given
- 4 Only in the Primordial Point 1) – all mysteries can be perceived
- 5 Only in His ‘Faces’ 2) are all worlds reflected
- 6 Only by holding fast to the Perfect One, accepting no companion on our journey to Him 3)
- 7 Only God is the One Saviour, the ‘First and the Last’ – existing from
- 8 Perfection, He is the Only One in the Primordial Point for all eternity 4),
- 9 Only God is the One Just One – “Thus says God, the Only Reality of the people, their Redeemer, the God of Hosts: I am the First and I am the Last, and there is no God besides Me” – therefore worship no foreign god 5),
- 10 Only God spread out the heavens over the chaos; He is the only One who suspended the earth over the void 6),
- 11 Only God is like the ‘Sun of Righteousness’, which rises in the morning in its power,
- 12 And those who faithfully obey Him for the glory of God are like stars that shine alongside the ‘Sun of Righteousness’ in all their power 7),
- 13 And the proud fall before His Majesty, but the humble receive salvation 8),
- 14 And these are the ‘salt of the earth’, who have cast aside arrogance, restraining their self-exaltation,
- 15 And those who exalt God alone, the only Saviour of the nations, shall be called the arm that sustains the universe,
- 16 Only God is truly worthy of praise; therefore, let us praise only Him, the Merciful, the Saviour of all mankind 9),
- 17 And the One Reality now “leads us from bondage to freedom, from bondage to redemption” 10),
- 18 Only You shall be called by the nations, our One Reality, our Saviour and Redeemer of us all, the One True God of the nations, Saviour from all suffering, Deliverer from all difficulties,

The Book of Reflections

19 I declare—this inspired work, the ‘Book of Reflections’, is destined to manifest itself fully upon the earth, to become a place of pilgrimage for the whole world. And the Book of Reflections has vowed to preserve spiritual purity, venerating the house in the City of the Covenant, so that the bodies of the saints may manifest “angelic bodies” 11), which will represent His “exaltation” 12), the land of souls will point to His ‘unity’ 13), the land of spirits will point to admiration for His ‘Glory’ 14), and the land of hearts will proclaim – ‘Glory to the Most High God’ 15!). Since the One Reality is now creating the ‘New Heavens and Earth’, He creates, and They are, and we shall return to Him in Unity. In the first invocation, ‘Praise’, the fire of love of the Eternal Light rises; in the second invocation, ‘Unity’, the desire for the ‘renewal of the Judges’ 16), in the third invocation, “Glory to the One Reality”, His unchanging Light of Unity shines, in the fourth invocation, “Glory to the Most High God”, the “dust of existence” 17) is destroyed, for they shall rise to resurrection.

The Primordial Scripture as the “Book of Origins”, “The Great Light”

20 “And God made two great lights: the greater light to rule the day”

The Primordial Scripture is the Primordial Scripture, the “Great Light” illuminating the souls of the blind, the “Sun of Truth” and full of the Word of God, requiring no additions, entirely sufficient for salvation.

21 “Your words intoxicate me! Your Scriptures (the Original Scripture) are absolutely true, untainted, and worthy of seeking answers, counsel and guidance within them. May everyone who seeks comfort in your Scriptures be happy.” (Gems 87)

“We should humbly study the Original Scriptures (the Original Scripture) to find the true meaning, and not be guided by impulse and fanaticism.” (Gems 286)

“The Father of the Book” – the Original Scripture, “The Book of Reflections” – the Original Scripture warns against adding anything to it: “You shall add nothing to what I command you, nor take anything away from it, whilst observing the commandments of the One Reality, your God, which I command you.” And I shall regard the entire Book of Reflections, as He foretold in His words, as the instrument by which the Original Scriptures and His commandments have been confirmed. All these Scriptures are merely a commentary on the Original Scripture. (Gems 2123)

“God has commanded me to continue writing and working until my cause achieves complete victory. It is obvious that the Original Scripture itself requires a distinction to be made between prophecies, historical events, or commands and prohibitions applicable at a specific time – which are to be fulfilled with love for God and people, and this is more important than observing rigid and restrictive laws. We must understand the Original Scripture in both a figurative and a literal sense, and this depends on the context of the narrative.” (Gems 283)

22 The Original Scripture is the ‘Sun of Truth’, Zer Anpin, the source of all mercy – Rachamim – from which flow the rivers of national redemption and love for every human being. (Sha'arei Orah, Sixth Gate, Fifth Sefirah 36, Sha'arei Orah, Fifth Gate, Sixth Sefirah 201)

23 The Primordial Book is like the ‘Book of Origin’, from which all people in the world draw their strength; it is the Great Sun, from which life flows for every human being. The ‘Book of Origin’ comes from the higher masculine world, above the canopy of the Heavens; may it remain exalted.

24 ‘The Holy Law is light’, which means that the Holy Law – the teaching that flows from it – is joy (simha).

“The Book of the Father” (Aramaic: Ktaba Aba)

“The Book of Reflection”, “The Little Light” replaces oral traditions, the Qur’an, the Gospels

25 A lesser light to rule the night; He also created the stars

The One Reality has sent down many signs to His people, “verse by verse, commandment by commandment, a little here, a little there” . Little attention is paid to the Original Scripture, and the One Reality has given instructions , the “lesser light”, to guide every person, regardless of nationality, gender or race, to the “greater light” – the Original Scripture.

26 My Writings exalt the Original Scripture as the ‘greater light’ and always lead all men and women to the Original Scripture in its entirety. They point to the Original Scripture as the sole principle of faith for every human being and of practice, and as the Sun in Heaven, the ‘greater light’ to which My Scriptures lead, just as the moon becomes the ‘New Holy Covenant’ – the ‘Book of Reflection’, the ‘lesser light’ reflecting the life-giving rays of the Sun of Truth.

27 Come under the wings of the Cherubim and become angels, flying in unity towards the One Reality. This is the New Age of Aquarius, where the greater light and Glory of the Most High shine through the darkness of past nights. It would be ingratitude to scorn the little soul and mock the ‘Mother of the Book’, for the fullness of the Sun of Truth, the ‘Father of the Book’, has shone upon the vastness of human darkness. The radiance of the Father’s glory and the perfection of His holy law can be understood only through these ‘New Scriptures’.

28. If the New Holy Covenant, containing this ‘lesser light’, were read constantly with a view to observing its principles, so much good could be achieved. The result would be an extraordinarily high level of social development, and hard work and focus on this Book would bear the marvellous fruit of the unification of humanity. Given the current reality, a vast number of people would be saved in the Merciful Book of Reflection.

29 If only some people were to familiarise themselves with the text of the ‘New Holy Covenant’ and acquire some knowledge, just as Christians and Muslims have done, is it precisely because they do not possess these New Scriptures that they believe they can deny the existence of God? Almighty God is responsible for establishing the fundamental orders of the universe: The Books of the Mother and the Father, the stars and the firmament that surrounds us, serve them alone. He created the ‘lesser light’ as the glory of the moon – the New Holy Order – so that it might come in its own time in the ‘last days’ and shine upon our world with the Great Light. And here come Christians, people and Muslims who have not recognised the power of this Light; who are they? Poor them, impatient in their deeds, unfulfilled in Daat; can they stand under the banner of God’s peace? Can they become ‘children of God’, like ‘stars’ as human beings and ‘children of the rising Sun’ as the various nations of the earth, whilst remaining in darkness?

30 Ktaba Imma (The Book of Reflection) is Nukvâ d-Shlāmā, the ‘lesser light’, which introduces an understanding of Ktaba Aba (The Primordial Scripture). From hashkā – darkness – the One Reality created Ktaba Imma, that it might be ‘upon the face of the deep’. The Almighty brought forth Nehorā – light – ‘He who shapes the light’ from hashkā, the all-encompassing darkness. In Oraytā

Hadṭā, ‘YHWH will cause his face to shine’, building ‘a new heaven and a new earth’ for the whole earth. Ktaba Imma is the Nukva of the lower world (tahtāyā), the feminine counterpart of Sihṛ (the Moon), reflecting the life-giving rays of Nehorā from Ktaba Aba; when the Two Books unite, they are called ‘Adam’. Both Books are like “the chariots of God” guarding the Qaddishe ‘Elyonīn – the Saints of the Most High with their presence, snatching the chosen Avdā – the “Servant” – from beneath the wings of hatred.

31 In this blessed period, the Holy Law Transmitted Orally, the Qur’an and the Gospel are abrogated.

The Four Points of God’s Majesty

Praise, Holiness of the Name, Unity, Showing Respect to God

32 It is fitting for the power of this Revelation to set forth in words the points of God’s Majesty – His “Glorification” 18), “Holiness of the Name” 19), “Unity” 20), “Showing Respect” 21). Observe the Ten Commandments, which are the laws of God, out of love for the One Reality, the All-Merciful. The One Reality said: “There is no such thing as too many lights, so place as many as you can in this place, in your Mother’s Book.” There, the lanterns will hang like stars in the sky. They will contain the infinite “teachings of the ancient rabbis” (the oral Holy Commandment).

33 The Exaltation of God – O great, mighty and awe-inspiring God, God Most High, Creator of heaven and earth

34 The Holiness of God’s Name – “Bless the One Reality, O ye His angels, ye mighty ones who fulfil His word, heeding the voice of His word.”

35 The Oneness of God – O, listen, O nations, for the One Reality is your God, the One Reality alone.

36 Showing reverence to God – I worship before Your holy temple with reverence. The One Reality, I love Your dwelling place, the place where Your glory resides. I will worship You and bow down; I will kneel before the One Reality, my Creator. I will offer You a prayer, the One Reality, in the time of Your grace. O God, in Your abundant goodness, answer me with Your saving truth.

37 Such is the teaching of the Mother of the Book, that the Original Scripture is the question, and the Mother of the Book is the answer; but the Earlier Traditions, though they are the root of all faiths, including Christianity and Islam—a collection of historical books—are superseded by the ‘Mother of the Book’ as its commentary. The Book of Reflections thus becomes its complement and the key to them all, teaching all nations the ways of God.

38 What is Exaltation, the Sanctity of the Name, Unity, and the Showing of Respect, O man?

39 The Exaltation of God – ‘O great and mighty God, whose name is the Only Reality of the Hosts’, ‘Great, mighty and awe-inspiring God’, ‘Great and awe-inspiring God’.

40 “Why is He strong?”

The source of our desire lies at the threshold of the Almighty Friend; we rely on the will of our Friend; in Him we place our trust and strength

41 “In what has He made Him great?”

The Great God is willing enough to be exalted amongst the multitude of His wondrous works.

42 How did the One Reality become ‘mighty through His mighty deeds’? It was through the salvation of Daniel’s friends in the fiery furnace.

43 From the court of God’s majesty comes a song: God has become mighty amidst His wonders.

44 The holiness of God’s name – “Bless the One Reality, O ye His angels, mighty in strength, who carry out His word, heeding the voice of His word.”

Why do ‘the angels first carry out His word, and then listen’? . The angels were messengers of God’s Majesty, faithfully and respectfully conveying His words to Moses. The angels treated the Holy Commandment as a treasure, worshipping the One Reality of the Universe, the King of Kings.

45 Why did David make such a statement? ‘David perceived the grandeur of all creation and recognised that they are merely servants, carrying out the will of their Creator. Truly, we are all here to serve and exalt the One Reality of all worlds; standing in the circle of unity, we are servants of the Most High; looking at one another with eyes of love, we know our One Reality.

46 The Oneness of God – Listen, O peoples, the One Reality is your God, the One Reality is one ‘Hear, O people: the One Reality is our God, the One Reality is one.’ From this verse, it can be inferred that Unity absorbs all attributes from ‘all the worlds of God’ into the Name YHWH.

The knowledge that the One Reality is One and Indivisible in its Essence is the path of one unchanging truth, unchanging in time and circumstances, just as the Word of the One Reality is Eternal and Unchanging – no other Scripture can stop it, so the One Reality is Eternal and Unchanging. “The grass withers, the flower fades, but the word of our God stands for ever”

47 Showing respect and reverence to the Most High – “How lovely are Your dwellings, O Sole Reality of the hosts! My soul yearns and faints with longing for the courts of the Sole Reality; my heart and flesh joyfully cry out to the living God.”

Indeed, the fear of God precedes the entire Holy Law and is the foundation of the whole Word of God. The Most High rewards good with good, and repays evil to those who are not enlightened by the wisdom of the law.

True fear is expressed in these words: “You shall love the One Reality, your God, with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your strength.”

Thus, sincere fear of God is the reason for ‘creating a pure heart and renewing a righteous spirit’. One might say that love and fear are united in our minds for the Most Beloved 48 People who believe in God and His words will pray there together. Fear the day when all will be revealed.

49 But creation never looks at the truth of the evidence, so it does not know the Truth. They see countless crowds of pilgrims, but they do not see in whose shadow these crowds are moving, nor what evidence they might accept to undertake the many hardships of the journey. Yet they undertake this pilgrimage without knowing why, for it has become the seat of glory. However, everything these beings do is based on this verse: It is God’s duty that people should make the pilgrimage to the House of God in the City of the Covenant.

50 The same word existed when the Mother of the Book was revealed, and thereafter it shall be expanded. The same inspired words also existed when the Holy Law of Moses descended. However, Christians, pagans and Muslims realise that they have no companion in the Father and Mother of the Book 22), so they remain in the darkness of the Point of Origin. Later, when they find friends and this becomes the centre of glory, they all do so. If that Muslim, Christian or Jew who is currently on a pilgrimage to unite with God knew that their union existed at the beginning of the revelation of the Holy Commandment of Moses, they would not follow the commandments of men, but the Word of God – this Word – acting not merely through hearing, but through zealous service – in accordance with the desire of the Most High 23), arising for the unity of the whole world.

51 The world was created for mankind out of God's love in unity with Him

52 The One Reality now unites the whole world for His Holy Name and manifests Himself through His Holy Eternal Light as an ocean of Mercy and Unity.

53 Verily, there is no Being but the One; the One Reality is All-Merciful, Loving, All-Powerful in Salvation.

54 In accordance with the desire of the Most High, rest in love in accordance with the commandment of Your will. In Your mercy, O One Reality, our God, grant us such rest that on the day of our rest there may be no oppression, sorrow or lamentation. Let us, O Only Reality, our God, behold the consolation of the City of the Covenant, Your city, and the rebuilding of the City of the Covenant, Your holy city, for You are the Only Reality of salvation and consolation.

55 Today you see that the testimony is exactly the same, and you see how foolish the others still are! They move in the streams flowing from the sea of testimony contained in the Book of God, but they pay no attention to the sea itself. Thus, the order says that creatures are but shadows, and believers are the light. Believers are the light because they see things clearly.

The sun, which is the symbol of Truth, is too high to be brought near to anything. In this sun of truth, the only thing that can be perceived is God, the One Reality of all worlds.

21) Showing respect (Aramaic: Yaqārā)

22) in obedience to the Original Scripture – the Book of the Mother

One universal faith

56 The Universal Faith is accessible to all people, regardless of their nationality, race or origin. And the followers themselves should call themselves Nurani, believing in the One Universal Faith – Nurani (Aramaic: Bnay Nura, Arabic: – Nurani), professing universal values, which means relying on the Book of Reflection – the Book of the Mother and the Original Holy Scripture – the Book of the Father. And spiritually, the entire Qabla of Rome is Edom; the Qabla of Ishmael in Mecca will fall and remain forever the exalted Qabla – the One Almighty Reality in the City of the Covenant.

So that the darkness of the night may be destroyed

57 – On 10 June each year, a great prayer to Adonay must be recited as the Great Invocation to the God of the Ancient Days, to commemorate and exalt His Holy Name among all the nations of the earth

Attitude towards the Primordial Scriptures of the World

– The Oral Holy Commandments, the Gospels, the Koran and others

58 All these scriptures may be read if they agree with the Primordial Scripture, verse by verse, but in the present age they have all been superseded by the ‘Book of Reflection’.

59 All these books will soon be forgotten and superseded by the ‘Book of Reflection’, whilst the ‘Book of Origin’ will remain unchanged for ever, as the Prophet said: ‘For out of the City of the Covenant shall go forth the law, and the word of God from the City of the Covenant’.

The Role of the Hakim

63 The Hakim is a cleric who is to interpret the Father and the Book of Reflection so that they are consistent with one another, true, and accepted as the ‘water of life’ flowing from God’s paradise.

Nurani

64 Believers in the Cause of God – the Nurani – should call themselves Nurani – in Aramaic this is Nuranaye, meaning ‘those who are filled with the light of God’, which signifies those enlightened by the Light of the Eternal Light. Believers in the Cause differ from everyone around them in that they are not merely human beings, but people who profess that the Original Scripture is the Sole Source of Truth, the ‘Book of Origin’, and that the ‘Book of Reflection’ is its explanation.

Elam’s blessing at the end of time

65 Shema’s firstborn son was Elam, who spoke an Iranian language and was the ancestor of all Slavs. Elam’s sons were, in the Slavic language, the Venedi, the Slavini and the Ants, who emigrated from Iran and settled in Edom – Europe. “I will establish my throne in Elam”—what does this message mean, what mystery does it reveal to us? It means that in this age a great blessing begins thanks to this work and this revelation, for in these days the Original Scripture, the ‘Book of the Father’, will spread among all nations like waters covering the sea.

Jesus and Muhammad as teachers of the nations

66 The true circumstances of the birth of the teacher Jesus should remain unknown to us. He was not God, but a man whose fate became a parable of light and shadow.

67 The Gospel and the Qur’an are full of distortions and are so distorted that it is difficult to discern the truth in them. Neither of these books is the Word of God.

The Book of Reflections

68 The Book of Reflections is the most accurate and purest commentary on the Old Covenant – the Original Scripture. There will be, and has never been, any other book written by human hands that was, is, or will be equal to the previous Revelation.

False Messiahs

He who asks and convinces others that he is the fulfilment – is not the fulfilment. For the Messiah does not ask – he acts. And yet your question about his coming is necessary, because it reminds others that the Messiah will come when they cease to ask about him and begin to live as if he were already here.

The causes of racism

70 Racism in any form – whether directed against other nations or peoples – is a sin against the Creator, who created man ‘in His own image’. Anyone who despises another human being because of their origin despises God Himself, who created them.

Anti-Semitism has no justification whatsoever. It stems from prejudice, fear and a closed mind towards God, who is the Creator of all people and nations. Judaism, rooted in God’s covenant with the people, carries a message of openness, hospitality and justice towards every human being, regardless of their origin or gender. The God of the people has never been a God of exclusion, but the God of all humanity, ‘for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all nations’

71 The trials of the people and the causes of their suffering: they were often misunderstood by the nations, were a people burdened with shame, and in times of conflict aroused opposition

72 Anti-Semitism towards the people also stemmed from erroneous interpretations that equated the God of the people with the enemy, and the people themselves with rejection. These were distortions that led to hatred. In reality, the people remained a “holy nation”, and their fidelity to the one God is a source of blessing for all. The prophets speak of this people’s suffering as suffering that leads to the ultimate healing of the nations: “By his wounds we are healed”. This people is not rejected, but loved: “I have loved you with an everlasting love; therefore I have continued my faithfulness to you.” This people remains forever God’s people, blessed and exalted, and all racism and hatred towards them is a sin against God himself.

Bridge

73 However, although the entire Sacred Oral Tradition is the source of all faiths and is sacred—Christianity, Islam and Judaism—and the Earlier Traditions are a collection of historical books, these books are superseded by a bridge full of light in the Book of Reflections. The Sacred Oral Tradition is like the shadow of a tree: dark in itself, but indicating that there is light cast by the tree.

74 In the future, the ‘Book of Reflection’ will be accessible to all humans and non-humans and will be recognised as the Book of Tradition, one of the Best Explanations of the Original Scripture.

75 The Oral Holy Commandment and true faith are not a collection of rules – Halakha and rabbinical interpretations – but pure and radiant faith – Nurani – a faith of perfection and conscious knowledge derived from the Oral Holy Commandment. The Book of Reflections is free from the legalism of Halakha – the way of the rabbis – and the revelation of this book is living, enduring and not confined by the teachings of the rabbis.

The Oral Holy Commandment is an echo – an echo may sound hollow, but it proves that the voice did indeed resound in the Bridge of Light.

76 Who, then, is the teacher? Every person will be responsible for seeking wisdom and learning from it when they rely on the Book of Reflections and the Book of Origins – the Primordial Scripture. Teachers are those who believe only that God is One and Indivisible – He who is neither born nor dies, He the Majestic, the All-Merciful.

Amen.

Shar d Ruh

1 Say that we live together in harmony, and God is our true witness. He helps us in all our disagreements. He is self-sufficient and all-merciful.

2 The Lord commanded the establishment of the Supreme Spiritual Council – Shar d Ruh – to unite heaven and earth in the Kingdom of His Oneness.

3 Moreover, beautify and purify your souls, for salvation lies in deeds, not in faith or the lack thereof. Truly, purifying oneself of bad habits bears precious fruit, blessed by the Lord of all Worlds. Every human soul can purify itself of bad habits and addictions and beautify itself through righteous deeds.

4 Be vigilant and strive to avoid evil, for this is the condition for attaining the happiness and grace of the Most High, the All-Merciful.

5 Let us not succumb to anger and lust; let reason govern our lives and let us control our improper behaviour.

6 The path to inner purity lies in vigilance, in focusing the mind on the knowledge of the worlds of God and of God Himself. We possess the faculty of reason, granted to us by the Almighty, the Immaculate. It is a sweet fragrance to Him and a delight to society when we attain the fullness of love and unite in prayer to exalt ourselves in friendship with the Most High God.

7 Let us be mindful that the Lord is ever-present; He is neither man nor flesh. Let us trust in Him in all our affairs; He is the One who receives our prayers, the All-Patient, the All-Powerful in action.

8 Neglecting one's children and wives is a sin. The opposite of all neglect is vigilance, so that one may avoid all neglect and remember one's family, uniting through the bonds of love.

9 Husbands should care for their wives with respect, and wives should obey their husbands in what is good and right. Let both be united in faithfulness and cooperation.

10 Remember to be constantly vigilant and to achieve balance and moderation in all things, in eating and in marriage; let there be equality.

11 And do not bind one another with spiritual bonds; let husband and wife be responsible for one another; let them consult together.

12 Restraining anger towards one's neighbour requires care; strive to reconcile with a quarrelling neighbour and repay compassion with compassion.

13 Let reason prevail over animal nature and evil inclinations; let us also be just and not easily give in to anger and rage; let us know that reason should rule us, for therein lies human perfection and every blessing.

14 Let us not stray from the path of good deeds, for then all good works will fill the earth with the blessings of heaven.

15 The Most High has granted us reason and wisdom so that we may use them properly, without falling into extremes or following the paths of cunning, unless it is for the purpose of worshipping the All-Protecting, All-Merciful Lord.

16 Greed and the desire for wealth to such an extent that the poor are destroyed are also diseases of the soul; avoid them at all costs.

17 May our whole life be adorned with all the counsel of good people, and the greatest remedy for the soul is when the mirror of the heart reflects its pure and beautiful rays, enriching itself with all just principles that benefit all people and the whole of society.

18 The greatest joy for God is to bring happiness to loved ones, to pray to the Most Merciful God, and to reflect noble values; therein lies the whole beauty of the perfect human being.

19 It is good to give everyone their due, for this is justice, and through this ability the soul shines with perfection like the morning star.

20 This divine faith, this path of Light – Nurani – is based on purity of thought, word and deed, and relates to the purity of the heart.

21 All believers belong to Shar d Ruh, and every believer in God has several duties towards their fellow believers – forgiving mistakes, showing warmth and kindness, keeping secrets during persecution, helping to meet needs, being friendly, willing to cooperate and benevolent.

22 It is not good for people to live in solitude; abandon asceticism and separation from people, be companions to people and remain in constant friendship with them.

23 On the Day of Atonement, do not show too much repentance nor grieve excessively, but rejoice and be glad that the Lord has forgiven your sins, provided they are minor.

24 Do you not know that every person suffers? Take care not to use harsh words, but respect your neighbours. Do not humiliate other people, whether you know them or not, but show everyone the respect they deserve.

25 Create heaven on earth through your good deeds; bring about peace and harmony amongst yourselves; cast aside your bad qualities and unite with all that is friendly to you.

26 Do you not understand that animals also feel? Violence against animals is forbidden, provided they do not harm us and are gentle. Show kindness to animals that pose no threat to you.

27 The Pen of the Most High has decreed the establishment of the Supreme Spiritual Council – Shar d Ruh.

28 We should show full respect to the Mother and Father of the Book, the Holy Scriptures, and base our lives on these two books.

29 Remember that only the Nabi is the guide, leader and messenger of the Scriptures.

30 Furthermore, the council of elders – Savayya, elected every five years to the Council of 72 by all believers – is important; let it ensure peace and unity for its people.

31 Also important are the Abdayya d-Qahal, who lead prayers, teach and explain the Holy Scriptures, and convey the Lord's commandments to the people. They should be an example of humility and purity.

32 The greatest honour and blessing from the Lord rests in the hands of those who proclaim the Truth – the Mevasserin. It is their duty to proclaim the message of the Most High in love, unity, non-violence and justice.

33 Everyone has their duties and rights within the community, and all decisions are made through ittfaq – discussion, not coercion – for everyone has a voice in the Qahal – the assembly. Verily, we are all children of the Most High and we are all His beloved.

34 Ensure also that no harm comes to children, wives, and all fellow believers in the community.

35 In matters of the Holy Scriptures, you shall study the abjad and gematria to find in them the answer and the hidden Truth.

36 Do not silence women, but let them speak on an equal footing with men, for the truth is neither half nor a quarter; it is as full as the full moon; it matters not from whose lips it comes, but that it is pure and does not violate the fidelity of the Scriptures.

37 For God, gender does not matter, but love for Him and love for one's neighbour; therefore, all women and men should deliberate, decide and adjudicate in the affairs of the Qahal.

38 Mutual cordiality, friendship and balance within the Qahal are essential, as is the complete equality of women and men, so that harmony may be complete. Let every view, stance and conviction flow from a place where understanding flourishes.

39 In the Law of the Mother of the Book – Nuqtat Umm al-Kitab – it is also commanded that no creature, neither angel nor human, should be worshipped.

40 There is no beginning or end to God; before Him all the nations of the earth shall bow down, worshipping Him, the God of Hosts; every human tongue shall pay homage to Him, saying: Our God is the Most High and the Most Merciful.

Amen.

JAWAHIR
Gems
Part 5

1 God bears witness that there is no god but Him; He is incomparable.

2 O you who believe, rely upon God in all your affairs and remember Him constantly, the Forgiving One. Hold fast to faith, full faith, being utterly certain of God and that He is wholly sufficient.

3 Is it not reasonable to believe that the attainment of complete happiness requires patience and God's help? Verily, the Lord is a help in all trials.

4 Let us adorn our lives with precious pearls; our life is a trial, and the birth of pearls is like the path of obedience, that is, the path of habits of obedience.

5 In knowing God and accepting His commandments lies constant growth; through the steps of knowing His will and love for His Oneness, we shall become like stars illuminating the path of those who wander in darkness.

Neglecting ties with family and God is a fault, the opposite of building relationships with loved ones and abiding in God, remembering Him and bearing witness to Him through faith. Trust in the Lord with all your heart and do not rely on your own understanding.

Praise only the One Most Precious Lord, the Loving One; place your trust solely in Him; cast aside human thoughts, do not trust them – do not make them intermediaries on the path to Unity.

9 The Lord is not far away; He is near. Man should unite with Him, feel His supporting arm upon his own, and acknowledge His authority in all his ways of life.

10 Therefore, recite the prayer of His Name – Azaana – morning and evening.

11 Whoever accepts the prayer of faithfulness to the Most High shall be freed from the power of worldly cares and the power of governments.

12 Let us serve God in our animal and angelic inclinations, for He is Forgiving and Merciful.

13 Be courageous in following God's way, and do not give in to anger, but let reason rule your minds.

14 Everyone's excessive anger should be tempered, keeping anger and temptation in their proper place.

15 Anger should not rule the life of the head of the family; justice and harmony should reign in the family, and husband and wife should work for the good of the whole family, forgiving one another and recognising each other's faults in moments of misunderstanding.

16 True courage lies in standing up against lies and evil, not in silently enduring hardship, suffering and oppression.

17 My friend, how would you answer the question: who is powerful? Is not true strength and courage rather in mastering one's own desires, rather than in directing the steps of one's neighbours?

18 Do you not think that anyone who masters their anger is like a warrior of the soul, conquering the city of patience, gentleness and moderation? The valour of the warrior of the spirit in their courage is greater than that of a warrior.

19 How would you behave, dear man, with regard to human life and respect for it, to human dignity? Human dignity is his treasure, so whoever interferes and shames his neighbour before everyone shames himself and makes himself proud.

20 Do not shed the blood of life on the path of the Lord – that is, do not diminish the dignity of any man or woman.

21 Every person should always be as delicate as a rose and as brave as a lion, as strong and steadfast as an oak towards a friend, family and neighbour.

22 On the path of life, every person should learn perfection from little friends, modesty from cats, reciprocity and sociability from dogs, and from ants the avoidance of theft, for their deeds bear witness to their wisdom.

23 Truly, the Father of the Book – Abba Ktava – is the truth, he is the Seal of the Living God. Let us therefore be courageous; even if enemies stand in our way, let us not fear.

24 O good man, how will you answer the question of who is truly strong? It is he who overcomes his evil inclinations. For strength is not measured by violence, but by mastery over evil, animalistic inclinations.

25 Do not say in the presence of your soul: ‘I will put off my affairs until later.’ It is better to proceed gradually with patience than to convince yourself and put everything off until later.

26 Patience and learning go hand in hand. If you understand little, know that you are close to understanding everything; but if you think you understand much, in reality knowledge is far from you.

27 All sages and prophets climbed the path of perseverance and patience until they reached the lamp of the Most High, warming themselves in His Sun, whilst those who walk impatiently are like those who walk along the paths above the ravine.

28 So too on this path below the ravine, in the turbulent waters of the muddy river, doubts and resentment flow, and sorrow and pain befall the traveller of impatience. But happiness and comfort touch those who persevere in patience; their sorrow and pain will pass, and they will be warmed in the arms of the Almighty.

29 Rejoice not, nor grieve too much, for all things come from the Lord; the song of joy and sorrow comes from Him. The faithful servant is patient on the path of his destiny, gathers his pearls of goodness in a pouch, and is unwavering in his journey of worshipping the One.

30 Every wise person finds happiness in patience and obedience to the Lord’s commandments, refraining from impatience, extremes and disobedience.

31 Respect for mankind, teaching one another lessons in harmony and friendship, together with patience, are among the greatest virtues. This means that the soul refrains from a lack of understanding towards one’s neighbour, refrains from a lack of kindness, and refrains from a lack of self-control.

32 Proclaim that this is the Divine Book and there is no doubt as to its truths. It is the vast heaven of the Lord’s Oneness. Proclaim that this is the Temple of the heart, the Most Holy Source of knowledge. Proclaim that this is the Tree of Life, the divine revelation, the Revealed Word, the Light of knowledge at the end of days.

33 Let them therefore know that if they believe in the signs from the Lord, they shall say, ‘Amen’.

1 Give Him glory, all the earth and the heavens. He testifies that there is no God but Him. He is the One, exalted beyond the comprehension of all things. He is incomprehensible in His essence, accessible only to the prophets in Miidam, who exalt His Oneness. He is not like a woman or a man; no one is His equal. Give Him glory, peoples of the world, and worship Him alone. Bear witness to His Forgiveness and Mercy, all the earth. Worship His Majesty, Power and wondrous Glory. Hold fast to the hem of my garment, for these are the signs of His Revelation.

2 Every human being has been created as a spark of holiness, so women and men are equal, though they exist within the depths of this world's impure veils. They are holy to God, provided they act justly; they are chosen vessels. Be friends to your neighbour and to the stranger; do not destroy anyone with needless judgement.

3 Do not ask the stranger at your door whence he comes, but dry his cloak when he travels in the rain.

4 Share your bread with the poor, for hunger knows no bounds; help the oppressed on your path to knowing the One.

5 Let the sick blame themselves for their sins, for they are not to blame in this world; their condition is a lesson in patience for many.

6 Do not put your neighbour to the test to see if he deserves punishment, for harm does not bear fruit in the form of punishment.

7 Do not humiliate the weak on your path, for pride and arrogance precede your downfall; you bind your soul in the chains of your selfishness.

8 Justice without mercy is like a sword aimed at the innocent.

9 Children without parents, widows and the lonely do not need the pity of passers-by and the faithful, but open doors and words of comfort.

10 Listen to people's pain and sympathise with them; listen with your heart, and if necessary, speak less, for the language of the heart needs no interpreter, only the showing of friendship in friendship.

11 When someone lacks strength, support them with a friendly arm, smoothing their path with love, without rushing them.

12 Begin the prayer of your heart by feeding the needy, binding up the wounds of the injured, and comforting the suffering.

13 Let those who thirst for the water of the Almighty follow the path of healing, seeking forgiveness only in Him.

14 Shar d-Ruh is the home of the community, the source of unity for all believers. Everyone has the right to the first sip, to draw water from the spring of life and share it with their neighbours.

15 May 'Abdayyā d-Qahal protect the wounded; may he set aside his pride for the sake of his neighbours.

16 In the assembly and outside it, address people by name, with respect; do not force them to repent in the presence of all.

17 May the way of YHWH be like a string on a lyre, and not a rope wrapped around the necks of believers.

18 Avoid divisive language; build bridges of reconciliation and mutual friendship, not barriers.

19 Celebrate in friendship with all your neighbours; leave no room for hostility, contempt or quarrels.

20 Show respect to the elderly; offer them a chair to ease their weariness. Let no one be superfluous, whether sick or healthy, for we are all children of the One.

21 Let children be like stars to their parents, and parents like the Sun of Truth to their children.

22 Punishment without return, including the death penalty for the innocent, is deceptive anger. Seek redress, not retribution.

23 Before you condemn, open the window of your heart; consider, is there peace within your lungs?

24 Let this world remain in diversity; no one needs to exalt themselves above their neighbour; let everyone be guided towards Unity in the worship of the Lord of Ancient Times.

25 God's mercy and forgiveness are the greatest law of mankind and of God, tipping the scales towards the balance of body, spirit and soul.

26 Discipline towards children has its limits; it must not restrict compassion towards them or the comfort offered after a light punishment.

27 Hatred, mistrust and contempt are a blight on the Qahal – purify them with friendship, truth and closeness.

28 Let respect and dignity flourish towards every person; this is not a reward, but the very air of life; share it fairly with everyone.

29 Teach children with words of kindness and friendship; may they, taught mercy towards their neighbours, blossom like roses, like ripe apple blossoms; may they break the bonds of hatred, hostility and strife.

30 May Shar d-Ruh blossom like a rose from a bud; may the poorest, the outcasts and the suffering find refuge in every petal.

31 Open yourselves like a rose to the radiance of the Most High. Shine in the power of His Authority, in gratitude for kindness towards one's neighbours and friendship towards every human being.

32 He, the Majestic One, is the Light in the kingdom of heaven and earth and in the world of Miidam, between them.

33 He is the Most High, the God who enlightens your hearts, strengthening your steps so that you may not walk in darkness, but in the light of His radiance.

Amen

Part 7

1 O Lord, my God, in the crown of Your tree You are the Most Glorious, the Primordial Point. Among the branches of this tree of knowledge grow fruits that bow before His Mysterious Name. O my Friend and Saviour, let us not withhold praise and adoration from You. And what will you say, dear man, of the blindness of the heart? What lesson will you impart to us?

3 Most people see with the eyes of nature, of people and their works, but fail to perceive the vision of adoration for the One God, the Most Beloved. Embrace the vision of the heart to know your Beloved and recognise His Glory.

4 Is it difficult for you to recognise the Point of Revelation in the Book of the Mother – the collection of Holy Scriptures?

5 There is no doubt that the nations will await, through me, the coming of the Promised Messiah, who will reveal the Breath of the Most High. Likewise, you too should await the manifestation of the Supreme Knowledge after me, by the Will of God.

6 In vain do Christians await the second coming of Jesus; in vain do Muslims await the return of the Mahdi? Both are dead and shall never return. It is not the wisdom of those who pride themselves on their knowledge, but the humility of my soul that brings this spark of knowledge.

7 Humility, not mockery of me, is the source of all understanding; whoever humbles himself before God shall know the limits of His knowledge.

8 Humility is the stairway of piety to heaven. Punishment also leads to fear of sin; it does not foster pride or holiness.

9 Is not the blindness of the heart a lack of humility and a union with pride on the path to God?

10 Do not look upon the greatness of My deeds nor upon My errors, but look upon God. And when you remember God, let your heart tremble before Him; be humble and confess to Him only your sins.

11 Note that God dwells in our community, in hearts united by love; there He has taken up residence. Note that faithfulness to the community is a reflection of the Shekinah within us and dwelling amongst Her in Unity with God. Only a faithful person becomes fulfilled amongst those close to them in the community, serving God and people out of love for them.

12 The Lord replied: be my disciple – love peace, strive for peace, love people and bring them closer to the Book of the Mother.

13 And the earth is still stained with innocent blood; war follows war, and tyranny and violence spread across the land like a fire. Yet true seekers of truth and God's love yearn for union with the Beloved, and their eyes and hearts are open to know the Primordial Point in all its fullness.

14 And how, dear man, are you to understand the path of repentance? Repentance is the casting off of the burden of guilt before the Perfect God, the All-Merciful. Repentance is not a punishment, but the soul's return to its Source, union with the Beloved.

15 You should recognise in God not an enemy, but a Friend on your path of repentance, the sole deliverer from sins, who has bestowed upon you Unity in obedience to Him and in His unceasing love.

16 May the Name of the One God be glorified among all nations, for He is the Star shining with the brightness of a thousand Suns.

17 O, say: Let us reflect the radiance of this Star, for the Creator of the ends of the earth is the One Life-giving Source of Salvation.

Amen.

Leet bar mineh

1 Leet bar mineh – Verily, there is none but God, the One, the Lord of the Day of Judgement, the Resurrector of the dead.

2 What fruit have the clergy's deeds borne? Are they not even worthy of being mentioned before God by the name of dust – which in itself is but a speck of the universe? If they slander me, they fall into idolatry, for no one can command the torch of My knowledge. I praise only the Lord; He is the Fire that illuminates my torch; He is the pure tree of all worlds. Now I reveal the Holy Scriptures through these verses to please the Most Merciful Lord, to renew the faith of Abraham. And the Lord has commanded me to proclaim peace amongst all the nations of the earth until the day when the Anointed One, who unites us all, is revealed. The Lord commands that all souls of the whole earth be brought to judgement; so who can slander me whilst remaining on earth, not believing in God and His signs? Behold, these divine Scriptures are holy; they are a sign and a seal for you; add nothing to them and take nothing away from them. And you must not harbour resentment towards your neighbour, but rather apologise to your neighbour, and the Lord will forgive you in silence.

3 Bring all the multitudes of mankind under the shadow of His Majesty; let every tongue praise the Lord, the Lawgiver, the Unchanging One, the King of Kings. Let not even a trace of oppression or sorrow touch those who belong to the Mother of the Book, even during the conquest of the earth by the pure word of heaven. Use neither violence nor coercion, but employ the stratagems of the spirit to bring all people under the one canopy of the All-Merciful. This commandment applies to those who do not belong to the Mother of the Book, and does not apply to the Nurani themselves—except when the Anointed One appears, then all shall become clear.

4 Verily, He is Mighty over all things, Rich in forgiveness. Verily, Lord Jah is the best of the Lords of forgiveness; He is the Most High, the Most Exalted; He is the Lord Most Unapproachable. He is not powerless against the doubters, nor harsh towards the unrepentant; He is the Lawgiver and Judge of us all. Neither in the heavens nor on earth is there anything like Him; nothing is equal to Him.

5 O come, let me explain to you the principle of every faith in God – O listen, O nations of the world, the Lord is one. Whoever has come to know the knowledge of the Most High – Yadata Elya – cannot return to darkness.

6 Knowledge is the gateway to God; come and recognise the signs of God; do not be among the stubborn. For a hardened heart – Libba d-Kefa – is like a precious stone that does not reflect His power. O Lord, remove our evil inclinations, purify our path, remove our animal hearts from our bodies. O our Lord, remove our animal nature forever; let no one sin against You, the Most High, nor against their neighbours. When this comes to pass, death will be swallowed up forever, and the world will be perfected in the earthly kingdom of our Father. Lord, create a world free from suffering, injustice and evil. O Spirit of God's generosity, shield us, fill our hearts with Your wisdom.

7 Perfect yourselves in gentleness of heart, capable of giving alms generously for the forgiveness of our sins, to help our poor neighbours. You shall pour upon yourselves the waters of healing and receive forgiveness from the Lord, and you shall become pure.

8 The Ray of Unity touches the hearts of all who have opened the eye of knowledge – Basiruta. Truly, the Supreme Primordial Point is the divine source of knowledge – Mavua Elah d-basiruta – of all that exists, for He created all that lives and all that has died upon the earth. May every person open their mind to the rays of knowledge – qarnin d-yadata – and let him not reject the signs of the Almighty Lord.

9 The Eye of Knowledge is the contemplation of divine matters in their entirety, in a symbolic and hidden manner. The Eye is the spark of knowledge within man, just as the Sun is the star of the universe, so the soul is the spark of harmony with the Most High Lord.

10 Through the ages, various prophets have proclaimed the divine song, bringing diverse messages to the world, so that we may remember that in the unity of His teachings He is the One Indivisible, the Lord who does not take a human body as His dwelling place. Recognise the spark of knowledge of God – nurta d-yadata Elah – in every revelation that descended into the worlds of God before this great revelation. For the spark of knowledge shines in all the hearts of God's prophets, like the rays of the Sun reflecting their splendour in a mirror. Therefore, whoever truly believes in the signs of God regards all of God's revelations as equal, for they all originate from the same Primordial Point – Nuqta Qadmaya. Let man beware lest he destroy this understanding within himself through pride, for pride – gawta – extinguishes the rays of knowledge, and humility is the mirror – makika hi maarata – in which the Most High God beholds Himself. Come then, light the Nura d-Raza – the lamp of mysteries in vessels full of oil, that it may reflect all divine virtues, removing animalistic inclinations from within. O say, O God – let it be! Let the ocean of your knowledge fill the whole earth.

11 Come then, eat milk and honey to your heart's content, partake of revelation to your fill, doing so in humility and full of knowledge.
Amen.

The Lord of Guidance

1 To the Lord of Guidance, to the Lord of Everlasting Days, the One, to the Lord, the Comforter and King,

2 Every commandment issued by the Merciful is a manifestation of His wisdom.

No commandment has been issued in passing or without purpose. Truly, there is no cruelty in God's law, but equality, for God does not issue commandments that would lead to misfortune for the sake of suffering itself.

3 God's commandments are like the rays of the rising Sun, which flow from the four worlds to illuminate the World of the Body – Alam d-Gushma. Every act of justice is the radiance of Amud descending and returning to the Primordial Point – Nuqta Qadmaya, sprinkling the earth with every blessing.

4 In every age, God reveals commandments suited to the needs of humanity. There is no difference between the old and the new law, for each was appropriate to its own time.

5 The diversity of the law is like the blossoming of colours in a crystal, born of the same sun of Truth. But the law of love for one's neighbour and the Oneness of God is eternal and unchanging, like God Himself.

6 It is not for man to judge God's commandments with his limited understanding.

7 It is not within our power to explain the fate of the wicked, who will perish in the fire of the earth, nor even the sufferings of the righteous, who will be comforted.

8 Do not ask about mysteries which the human mind cannot comprehend, nor even the Witness of Revelation.

9 Every law of the heart – Orha d-Libba – is a letter from God to humanity, and each of its letters – atavan – carries with it a specific, radiant insight.

10 And when a person serves out of love for God – avuta – they become an instrument of His will on earth.

11 In the four radiant worlds of God – Arba Almin d-Zivu Elah – every fulfilment of the law is a movement of Glory – Shevha, which returns to its source in God – Mekora d-Elah, destroying evil itself in Unity with Him and restoring order to the world.

12 Those who reject Orha d-Libba cut themselves off from the source of life. They stray from the path of Glory and enter the abyss of illusions.

13 Every nation has been promised that it will take the cup of unity and drink the sweetness of peace when the Anointed King of Peace is revealed. Only the righteous live by their righteousness, not by faith in the stories of the Holy Scriptures; faith alone does not save, but good deeds do.

14 Truly, the One God is our wealth. God's mercy, not His severity, embraces those who seek Him, even if they have not yet fully known His Majesty.

15 Every commandment is therefore a manifestation of His fatherly tenderness, and every principle of wisdom is a model of His grace.

16 O our Lord, tell us what is good in this life and in the life to come, when the Anointed King of Peace is revealed. Truly, we turn to You today in repentance.

17 O our Lord, Thou art He who embraces all in the embrace of Thy forgiveness.

Forgive us our sins, our King, Lord of all worlds. In Your Majesty You are free from all physicality, all boundaries, free from place, utterly independent in Your existence.

18 O our Lord, You are the One who is Absolutely Invisible; upon the Throne of Your Precision You become the Lord of Middam; in the circle of Your angels You become the One Praised. You are the arranger and organiser, dwelling in the light of the morning and in the darkness of the night, aware of all four spheres of the union of souls. You do not share salvation with people; You are the Sole Giver of Salvation. O my God, You are absolutely pure, a close friend, an eternal lover, self-sufficient and eternal.

Amen.

Consecrate, O my God, this entire Tree of Unity

1 Consecrate, O my God, this entire Tree of the Unity of the Scriptures exclusively to Your Name, that it may bear branches, leaves and shining fruits.

2 Verily, God knows all that has been and all that will be, and nothing can be hidden from His Eye.

3 By the Eternal Saviour, He knows what is hidden and what is revealed. His knowledge is not like the knowledge of created things, for the Lord is not known through the senses, but through the Testimony of Revelation and the prophets. There is nothing He does not know; He is the All-Pervading Spirit. His ways are not our ways; He guides as He wills, whether by a steep or a straight path, all is in accordance with His divine plan. All is precious to Him; every creature and every human being has their place in His remembrance.

4 Our Lord is the Best of Advisers, and His deeds in heaven and on earth are pure wisdom, for what He decrees becomes reality. And whoever asks and acts in accordance with His counsel shall suffer no defeat. Furthermore, remember what has already been proclaimed, that the Lord is Unchanging, and His thoughts endure for ever, like counsel that endures from generation to generation.

5 The Lord vanished into the point of His existence – Nuqta d-qyumeh nafshah; He expanded to vanish, spread out His cloak and contracted, and thus the heavens and the earth came into being, and all living creatures appeared.

6 From His Crown – Kellilah – the worlds descend, and insight returns to His Crown of Knowledge – Daat.

7 All people receive a portion of the Crown of Knowledge through the prophets and these holy books.

8 Every revealed book is a mirror of the four worlds from the Crown through the world of insight; all of them reflect a part of His wisdom, and the Mother Book is the Name of God in the form of letters.

9 No one should think that the Primordial Point – Nuqta Qadmaya – manifests only once, for His Knowledge is eternally alive and speaks ceaselessly, also through These Writings.

10 Knowledge without end – Yedta d-let lah sufa – is like the sea, from which every revelation is a wave, but the sea of truth – Yamm d-sharrara – remains inexhaustible in the Mother Book.

11 Man knows only as much as he is able to bear, for the capacity of the heart – Rahbuta d-libba – has its limits, but the heart of God, the Heavenly Presence, has no limits.

12 In the Shekinah – God's love expands the hearts – Hube d-Elah marhib libbin – of those who seek Him with love and are faithful to Him. It is an eternal truth that knowledge of the Presence is bound by a chain of love, for without love, insight does not expand.

13 Let every person seek knowledge of the Presence through love, for love comes through full insight.

14 O Thou, Thou art truly the Most Glorious God, the Saviour of us all. The All-Glorious Lord of Hosts, praised by all nations, the most exalted in Thy Majesty. He is truly Self-Sufficient, the Almighty Lord of care and protection.

Amen.
